Students at Press Conference

Five Heppner High School journalism enthusiasts attended the 46th annual Oregon Scholastic Press Conference on the University of Oregon campus Oct. 13 and 14. During the trip, the group was able to tour the press rooms of the OREGON STATESMAN and the CAPITAL JOURNAL in Salem.

The automation of the newspaper printing proved interesting for the group when they were able to see the three-story presses in operation. They were able to watch photo-receivers and tele-type machines as they received news information and photographs from different parts of the country. Guide for the tour was Ron Cooper, a photographer for the STATESMAN, and the group was able to visit with Wendel Webb, managing editor of the STATESMAN, who told the group how rapidly newspaper printing is changing.

Dance Team Sponsors Taco Feed

The Heppner High School Dance Team is having a Taco Feed on Friday at the high school in the cafeteria. Serving will begin at 5:30 until 7. Everyone is invited to eat Tacos before the game starts. Mothers will be helping the girls with the preparations. The Taco feed is a benefit of the new outfits recently purchased by the girls.

The girls will perform again during half-time of the Maupin game.

Candidate speaks at HHS

Dave Green of Madras, Republican Candidate for the Oregon House of Representatives in District No. 35 addressed several classes at the Heppner High School this past Thursday. His presentation fell into two areas, that of a purely political speech to give the students an opportunity to compare it with other political speeches and an explanation of the organization of a political campaign.

Speaking very candidly Mr. Green explained the reasons for design of a brochure, the Oregon laws on campaigning and campaign advertisements, travel schedules, costs, platforms, and the part of the young and first time voter in elections.

The Republican candidate complimented the students for their interest and excellent broad based questions. Green spoke out strongly on his feeling for the continued need for local control of school districts which produce the kind of education he saw in Morrow County. Stating that the typical candidate would not normally go out of his way to create controversy he never-the-less felt an obligation to students that was perhaps different than the typical voter audience and thus spoke out on his feelings about gun control, lowering of the drinking age and reinstatement of the death penalty for extreme cases.

Robert Nash and Dale Holland were the teachers for the classes Modern Problems and Political Science.

"Rights and Responsibilities of the Student Press" was the central theme used for OSP conference. Several sessions were scheduled for the delegates, including yearbook planning and layout, panel discussions, photography sessions and exhibits. The group was told that their responsibilities to their papers were the same as papers published for the public and were subject to the same laws concerning libel and obscenity.

The teams battled on even terms in the second half and Clint Carlson, Leland White and Billy Lindstrom led the team on offense and defense.
