SWC Districts State Meet

Dale Boner, Dick McElligott and Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Jones of Morrow County attended the Oregon Association of Conservation Districts annual meeting November 8, 9 and 10, at The Dunes Motel, Lincoln City.

Some 230 representatives of local conservation districts wound up three days of convention here today.

The convention theme was "Districts Role in Land Use Planning." That subject, sediment and soil erosion control and tax protection for prime agriculture land were major topics for discussion and resolutions.

The next Oregon legislature will be considering some land mark legislation on these subjects, too, according to speakers at the convention.

State Concern

State Senator Hector Macpherson of Albany Thursday told of two bills he plans to introduce at the next session. One on land use planning and another aimed at giving greater protection to prime agricultural land through revised taxing regulations. The land use planning law would divide planning into two main classifications: One of local concern where planning would be determined solely by local governments; the other of critical state concern. He cited the Oregon coast and Columbia Gorge as areas of critical state concern.

Also on Thursday, Association President Stanley Christensen of McMinnville told district supervisors legislation likely would be introduced on soil erosion and sediment control. He pleaded for districts to get involved "or someone else will do it who is less qualified."

New Department?
Chairman George Nicolescu of the State Soil and Water Conservation Commission told delegates an attempt will be made to create a State Department of Natural Resources which would include these divisions: Forestry, water resources, soil and water conservation, geology and mineral, nuclear and thermal energy, marine and state lands.

Too Far?
Editor Philip Bladine of the McMinnville News-Register voiced criticism of environmental extremists who would lock up Oregon's resources.

Bladine ranged from forest to land use to DDT in degrading environmental actions which he said, threaten the livelihood of businessmen and wage earners.

"When you have a poor area (economically), you have a poor environment," Bladine said.

"A man isn't going to be interested in environment if his chances of making a living are impaired," the editor told conservation district supervisors.

Bladine said land use is going to be the second hottest issue before the next legislature - (presumably taxes would be first, in his view).

Developers
Klamath County Commissioner, Lloyd Gift, former director and president of OACD, showed slides and discussed problems of subdivision development in that county. He said many people are being misled by developers to settle on land not suited to septic tanks and without feasible water supplies. More stringent state action is needed, he said.

Wes Kvarsten of the Mid-Willamette Council of Governments said there has been a "real turn around" in land use planning and it is now being recognized for what it is.

The Mid-Willamette Council of Governments takes the position that good land use planning has to be based on soil information.

"It's fine to be concerned about other areas, but basically we had better be concerned about the livability of the places where we live," Kvarsten said.

Among recommendations put to the convention was a plea for help in bringing about a shift of SCS and Districts from a largely rural-agricultural orientation to a more balanced effort between rural and urban.

doesn't have the control over development that his own county has.

"We're going to have to accept growth, however," Lewis said.

Developer Problem
Lewis said an industrial or commercial developer has to deal with as many as 26 different governmental officials in getting plans approved.

Soil Erosion
Environmentalists have not faced up to the fact that downstream, downhill, toward the ocean is where all the sediment goes. State Representative Paul A. Hanneman of Tillamook County said in his keynote address.

Most of the environmental groups have been blind to the one thing we have been sensitive to," Hanneman said. "To them soil erosion is something that happens on farms and is of concern to farmers."

He expressed hope that more attention will be given to effects sediment and soil erosion have on people and places downstream.

Hanneman indicated legislators and districts concerned with sediment problems need to work with "in" groups that have most of the power with legislators on environmental problems.

He pleaded for support and testimony from conservation district leaders during the next session.

New Directors

Names of three newly elected directors of the Oregon Association of Conservation Districts were announced on the opening day of the convention. George Stubbert, Sutherlin city manager; Dave Hanzel, Klamath Soil and Water Conservation District; and Truscott Irby, chairman of Baker Valley Soil and Water Conservation District.

OACD President Stanley Christensen said one director position, that formerly held by Harlan Cantrall of Jacksonville, still is vacant.

Stubbert succeeds Don Fisher of Junction City as director from Area 4; Hanzel succeeds Lloyd Gift of Bonanza as director from Area 8, and Irby succeeds Elmer Case of La Grande as Director from Area 10.

The OACD Board of Directors is made up of directors from 11 areas of the State.

Resolutions
The pre-convention meeting of the Oregon State Soil and Water Conservation Commission approved a resolution urging the Army Corps of Engineers to immediately begin removal of silt from Tillamook Bay and mouths of rivers emptying into the bay.

The resolution presented by Commission Member Jack Madison of Tillamook, named the Tillamook, Kilchis and Miami Rivers. The Commission urged that disaster funds be made available for the project.

New Program
Heads of two agricultural agencies told Friday morning of changes their agencies are undergoing under the thrust of new programs.

A.J. Webber, state conservationist for the USDA Soil Conservation Service, and Dr. Lee Kolmer, director, OSU Cooperative Extension Service, spoke at this morning's session of the annual Oregon Association of Conservation Districts convention in the Dunes Motel.

With the aid of slides, Webber showed and told how SCS personnel will be surveying and monitoring resources for better planning and use of resources, both urban and rural.

New programs funded at the federal level are broadening the scope of extension service efforts, Dr. Kolmer said. These include such things as marine resources, expanded food and nutrition, and community development.

"We are not abandoning our traditional agricultural programs but adding to them. The level of agricultural assistance will remain the same but the quality should be better because of better trained personnel and reorganized staffing," Dr. Kolmer said.

HOLIDAY GUESTS FOR
Thanksgiving weekend, at the Ervin Anderson home were Mr. and Mrs. Al Parent and daughters of Milwaukie, and Adelia Martin and daughter, Suzanne, of Portland.

Ione to Discuss Serial Levy

By CASSANDRA CHAPEL
The Ione Advisory Committee will meet on Dec. 7 at 8 p.m. in the school cafeteria to discuss and explain the projects to be financed by the special school district levy election. The public is encouraged to attend the meeting to take part in the discussion and hear the explanation of the next phase of the school district's long range building program. Some limited remodeling of the Ione Elementary School is one need that will be discussed.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Drake, Becky and Scott of Fairfield, Calif. visited Mrs. Gladys Drake and Bob Drake, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Tucker and family, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Rowell and Melissa, and Mrs. Theresa White and Sabrina.

Mr. Ernest Drake is a Science Teacher at Armijo High School. He will take the position of the Head of the Science Department.

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Tucker and family, Mrs. Teresa White and Sabrina went to Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Tuckers home for Thanksgiving.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Halvorsen and Mrs. Archie Munkers went to Salem on Wednesday and returned home Saturday. They visited their sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stender. The Halvorsens attended a reception for Mr. Halvorsen's niece, Mrs. Raymond Hoffman, who is Grand Representative to the state of Arizona in Oregon.

They also visited Mr. and Mrs. Jim Johnson of Salem, and the Hershel Townsends of Portland, and Mrs. Lenea Nottage, and did some Christmas shopping.

Football Team Entertained
Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Meyers entertained the Ione Football team, all 28 boys, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Killpack, Mr. and Mrs. Delton LaRue and Mr. and Mrs. John Edmondson in their home on Nov. 29. Everyone enjoyed the delicious Kentucky Fried Chicken. Mrs. Pauline Gates had a cake made for them for dessert.

Mrs. Vera Rietmann went to Kennebec Friday to visit her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Rhode.

On Friday Nov. 24 Alvin McCabe and boys had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Leo Crabtree.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Lancaster and sons of Cecil and Mrs. Al Marick of Ione went to Fox on Thanksgiving to attend a family gathering. There were twenty-eight present.

One day last week Mr. Bill Abalt of Oxbow, Idaho stopped in to visit the Leo Crabtree's. He formerly worked for the Krieb brothers in the late 20's and early 30's. He was finding it a little difficult to find his old acquaintances.

The Willows Grange had installation on Sunday. The installing team consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cobble, Oregon State Grange Deputy, Betty Bonard of Richland, Oregon, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Wycoff from Wallawa, Oregon, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lewis and Mrs. Edith Morin of Baker. Before installation the party had lunch at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Berl Akers. After the Grange meeting they enjoyed a potluck. There were around forty present.

Mr. and Mrs. Berl Akers went to Boardman Monday to the funeral of Effie Miller, a former resident of Ione.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Imel had as their guests on Thanksgiving Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Imel, Jr. and family of LaGrande, Saturday Mr. and Mrs. James Imel of Portland visited with their parents.

Bridal Shower

A bridal shower for D-Ann Barnett was given on Nov. 30 at the Ione United Church of Christ. The hostesses were: Margaret Morgan, Ione Martin, Beverly Wilson, Betty Carlson, Nancy Ekstrom, June Crowell, Katherine Lindstrom and Laurel Cannon. The decorations were done in pink and red, the colors the bride-elect has chosen. A molded cranberry jello salad and homemade nut bread were served. Mrs. James Bloodsworth and Melissa McElligott assisted D-Ann in opening and keeping track of her gifts. Approximately 50 ladies attended.

Super Stitches
The Super Stitches met on Nov. 21st in room 1 of the High School.

Upcoming parties were discussed. The parties are the Christmas party which would be next meeting and a sard party when the snow arrives.

A money making project was also discussed. It was decided to sell owl calendars.

Meeting was adjourned.

Book Tells World's Most Powerful Man

For David Rockefeller the Presidency of the United States would be a demotion. He is considered the most powerful man in the world, reports William Hoffman in his 1971 best-selling expose DAVID This book published by the Dell Publishing Co., Inc. N.Y. City, is available in a paperback edition at $1.25.

DAVID was reviewed for the Bookworm Club at their second November meeting by Mrs. Ted Smith.

"One president after another has done his bidding. The governor of the richest state in the union is his kid brother-in-law more ways than one. His life style would make Alexander the Great weep with envy. The power he wields crosses all borders, can make or destroy governments, start and stop wars, profoundly influence everyone's life—including yours."

Mrs. Smith's listeners were spellbound as she read parts from this exciting life-story to them. The rather short book gives many details of Rockefeller family life—going back to David's great-grandfather Big Bill Rockefeller, born in 1810, a flamboyant patent medicine huckster who advertised himself as Doctor William A. Rockefeller the Celebrated Cancer Specialist, and who sold his cancer cure for twenty-five dollars a bottle. David's grandfather John D., born in 1839, really established the family fortune, which has continued to grow enormously ever since.

Each of the 12 chapters reveals exciting, little-known facts about the lives, loves, and varied experiences of the Rockefellerers, especially David, who reigns as president of the world's most powerful bank, The Chase Manhattan, which now has branches worldwide. David was born to power and he understands its many uses and employs them to the full. This is a book that most readers will

Before the evening's review, Mrs. Forest Godin was introduced as a guest. Plans were made for the Christmas meeting of the group at Mrs. Lucy Peterson's home on Dec. 12.

The husband who promises to move heaven and earth for his bride is the same fellow who, a few years later, growls fiercely when he's asked to move the sofa.
