He left this seventh largest country in the world about the time it achieved its indepen-dence. He observed the great migrations of peoples that were taking place as many Moslems moved west into Pakistan and many Hindi moved out of that area and east and south. He was stationed in northern India near the Punjab which is watered by five rivers.

Three Problems

Rev. Blackaller declared that India has three outstanding problems. One is its over-population (between one-sixth and one-seventh of the world's people-485 persons to the square mile compared with about 57 to the square mile in the U.S.)

A second problem is communication (about 180 languages, including 14 major ones, plus more than 200 dialects). Mr. Blackaller learned to speak Urdu which was used most extensively during the last of England's reign and which, he felt, was one of the unifying forces in the struggle for independence. The 1950 constitution provided that Hindi should be the official language. Religion is the other great problem. Religion is such a culture and their everyday habits. The various Hindu sects are dominant and next is the Moslem group, know as Islam. The Christians are the third largest group. Other religious groups are the Sikhs, the Buddhists, and the Jains. He praised the Christian churches for their cooperative efforts in North India, and he concluded by saying that he really enjoyed talking about his missionary experience which has kept up his interest in India.

After refreshments were served by Mrs. W.W.Weatherford, Mrs. Ida Farra and Mrs. Edwin Cutting, Mr. and Mrs. Blackaller left to drive to Walla Walla. A brief business meeting was held. The evening concluded with a devotional period by the Rev. Edwin Cutting.

It has haunted me lots. It was a tremendous play and excellent acting. Someday 1 may get enough nerve to read the book. When we came from the
