

Heppner deer kill same as last year

Opening weekend deer hunting success varied widely across the state according to reports from Game Commission field biologists. Gusting winds and at times heavy rains kept deer kegged up in many western Oregon areas.

Hunter pressure in eastern Oregon was about the same as last year in many areas with reductions reported in a number of districts. Exceptions were the north central district and the Ochoco district with 30 per cent and 15 per cent increases in hunter numbers respectively. Hunters throughout central Oregon enjoyed good success with increases in harvest ranging from an estimated 50 per cent in Klamath County to 130 per cent in the Ochoco district. Yearling bucks made up a large part of the central Oregon kill.

About the same numbers of hunters as last year were out on opening weekend in north-east Oregon. In the Heppner district, however, a 20 per cent decline in hunter numbers was noted, and a 10 per cent drop in Wallowa County. Pressure was also down somewhat in Grant County.

Hunting success was about the same as last year in Heppner and Grant districts and up considerably throughout the rest of the northeast region. Hunters checked in Wallowa County enjoyed 23 per cent success and those in Baker and Umatilla counties did nearly as well. Again, more than two-thirds of the harvest was made up of yearling bucks.

In Lake County, about the same number of hunters took more than twice as many deer as last year but elsewhere in southeast Oregon hunter numbers and success dropped off sharply. In Harney County there were 10 per cent fewer hunters and 15 per cent fewer deer checked, and in Malheur County hunter numbers were down by 30 per cent from last year and the deer kill dropped by half.

All of eastern Oregon had periods of rain or snow. Nearly half a foot of snow fell on Steens Mountain, driving some hunters down to lower elevations.

This fawn stands on three legs looking helplessly at the photographer. The fawn had been hit in the right front leg. It was not broken, making it an easy prey for dogs and coyotes. The fawn's brother had been shot and left to rot in the adjoining field. This "hunting event" took place on Sand Hollow Road.

MOONLIGHT SALE NEXT THURSDAY

Heppner merchants will hold a Moonlight Sale, Thursday, Oct. 25.

Stores will close at regular time and re-open at 7 p.m. for the sale. They will remain open until 9 p.m.

Many items of interest to all members of the family are to go on sale, according to reports from various merchants.

IMELS COVER A LOT OF TERRITORY

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Imel are home after a month's trip to the Grand Teton country, Yellowstone National Park and Jackson Hole.

On their way to Chicago they visited several ghost towns, and spent a week in Marion, Ohio, visiting friends and the Harding Memorial.

They visited in Ft. Wayne, Ind., with relatives of Mr. Imel. His ancestors came to Oregon in 1853 from that fort.

Delsie Chapel looked after the Imel home while they were away. The Imels spent Oct. 1 visiting in Walla Walla with Delsie's sister.

Rural users lead in energy conservation

Columbia Basin billings of accounts for August and September indicate that rural residential users are leading the way in conservation efforts.

For August the rural users cut use by 14 per cent average and cut their use 4 per cent average in September.

Manager Dave Harrison reported that the "town" residential users had increased use in August by 13 per cent and showed an increase in September of 14 per cent over last year.

The small commercial users had shown an increase of 9 per cent for August and an 8 per cent increase in average monthly use for September.

Harrison said he hopes town users and small commercial users will follow the lead of the rural members and to place more efforts on conservation of electricity to save water in reservoirs for hydro generation period late next winter.
