

While most hunters in this area were preparing for elk season, other were doing some target practice. This fawn happened to be a target. The fawn was found, unable to walk, by Forrest Godin, minister of the Nazarene Church, while pheasant hunting on Sand Hollow Rd. He placed the fawn in the back of his car and returned home to notify State game officials, who had to dispose of the little doe. This is the third fawn killed in this area.

Conservation groups meet at Warm Springs

"Soil and Water Conservation Districts Response to Public Concern" is the theme of the 25th annual meeting of the Oregon Association of Conservation Districts to be held Nov. 7-9 at Kah-Nee-Ta vacation resort in Warm Springs.

On tap for the three-day meeting will be speakers such as Sam Chinn, National Association of Conservation Districts President; Donal May, Oregon Operations Office of EPA; Kenneth Spies, assistant to the director of the Department of Environmental Quality; Mike Thorne, State Senator from Pendleton; and Ken Smith, manager, Confederation of Warm Springs Indian Tribes.

According to Dave Franzen, Morrow Soil and Water District conservationist, "The meeting will feature panel discussion on district policies concerning education publicity, public lands and water resources. A report on the existing seven committees will also be given."

Dick McElligott, Ione, is Oregon Association of Conservation District vice-president. He will be in charge of the finance report.

Northern 4-H Clubs members get awards

North Morrow County 4-H Clubs held their annual 4-H Family Night at the A.C. Houghton School on Oct. 18. The evening began at 6:30 o'clock with a ham dinner sponsored by the 4-H leaders council and the 4-H Community Club. Parents brought salads and desserts.

Karen Richards, an 8-year 4-H member, was in charge of the program. Awards were given to each member for simply joining and being a member of a 4-H Club, but special awards went to those who excelled in some area. Hero and Heroine awards went to Extension Agent Mike Howell and Extension Aide Birdine Tullis of Heppner. Appreciation awards to adults for contribution to 4-H went to Gladys Hobbs, who has the largest square dance club in the state, and for cooking at the 4-H Camp in June at Cutsforth Park. Another award went to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fredrickson who donated watermelons to the 4-H square dancers at the county fair.

Junior Leadership pins went to Kathleen Evans, Maryanne Proctor and Denise Henkle. Robert Richards received an achievement award; Wayne Huwe and Marcie Linnell received an award in 4-H Livestock Club; Maryanne Proctor in horsemanship; Peggy Brandt received an award sponsored by Birdine Tullis for the best secretary's book; and Christy Brandt, an award from the Rhea Creek Extension for 4-H cooking.

Ag future theme of forum

"Who Will Control U.S. Agriculture in the Future" is the topic of a day-long forum, Nov. 13, at the Indian Hills Motor Inn in Pendleton.

The forum is sponsored by the Agri-Business Council of Oregon.

It will cover policies affecting the organizational structure of U.S. agriculture, and will explore factors that influence its future organization of production. Alternative ways of producing agriculture will also be discussed. These ways include government controlled agriculture, agriculture controlled by co-ops, and large corporate producing agriculture.

J.B. Wycoff, Bruce Florea, and Robert L. Sargent, extension economists from Oregon, Washington, and Idaho, will lead the forum discussions.

The forum begins at 9:30 a.m. and ends at 3 p.m. Dick Jones, Pacific Power and Light's Columbia division manager, will speak on the energy crisis at the noon luncheon.

The forum is open to all interested persons. Contact Harold Kerr, Morrow County Extension agent, for further information.

MCGG to meet Nov. 5

Denver Grigsby, Boeing's general manager of the Boardman Development Project, will be speaker at the annual dinner meeting of the Morrow County Grain Growers, Nov. 5, at the Morrow County Fair Pavilion.

The dinner meeting will also feature the election of the new directors for the coming year. Four directors and five associate directors will be elected.

According to Larry Mills, MCGG manager, officers and committee reports will follow the elections.

The dinner will start at 6:30 p.m. with the Willows Grange serving.

LIVESTOCK JUDGING TEAM AT COW PALACE

The five-member Blue Mountain Community College livestock judging team, instructed by Riley Freeman, took part in cattle, sheep and swine judging competition at the Cow Palace in San Francisco, Oct. 27.

Susie French, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond French, Heppner, and Kirk Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Robinson, Heppner, are members. The team spent four days in San Francisco, returning to Pendleton Oct. 28.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Norris went to Portland Sunday where they met Mr. and Mrs. Ken Norris and Ken Jr. and spent the day shopping and visiting.

Learning to use local services

How can the district attorney, banks, library, employment service, and many others benefit you? What services do they render to make your community a better place to live?

These two questions are the main topics for the November extension study group sessions.

Dennis Doherty, assistant district attorney, Cheryl Brunton, employment counselor, Ken Belcher, manager, First National Bank, and Tiny Sweeney, county health nurse, have prepared study topics for the November meetings.

South county women are invited to attend the lessons Nov. 14 at the Phyllis Krull home, Nov. 15 is the date for the Boardman and Irrigon study group session. The session will be held at the Molly Bishop home.

The Cooperative Rural Manpower Project announces the following job vacancies in Morrow County: one year-round farm job, and several farm-type jobs in the North Morrow area.

For further information, contact the local County Extension Employment Office in Heppner, 676-9642.

"If you like kids, then why not become a 4-H leader and put excitement in your life." Birdine Tullis Morrow County extension program assistant, asks.

Morrow County needs more 4-H leaders to guide 4-H'ers in many different interest areas, hobbies or skills.

Contact Mike Howell, Morrow County 4-H agent, or Birdine Tullis at 676-9642 for more information.

Two Morrow County judging teams will be participating at Pacific International Livestock Exposition in Portland, Nov. 10 - 17.

The livestock judging team consists of Mark Sargent, Heppner, Karen Richards, Irrigon, and Kimee Hague-wood, Heppner.

Marcy Linnell, Boardman, Mary Healy, Heppner, Judy Healy, Heppner, will compete in the horse judging event.

Morrow County women interested in learning or reviewing basic techniques of sewing knit fabrics may contact Birdine Tullis, Morrow County extension program assistant.

Knit Knack workshops will be held in Heppner, Boardman, and Irrigon later this fall.

Workshop topics include construction of knit tops, exposed zipper, waistband application for skirts and pants, and lingerie techniques.

A special session on creative teaching techniques will be offered to Morrow County residents, Wednesday, Nov. 7, 2 - 4 p.m. at the Methodist Church basement, Heppner.

The session is designed to assist Extension study group members and other interested in learning more effective and creative ways of presenting materials to groups.

Mrs. Mike Howell and Mrs. Liz Curtis will conduct the session.

Machinery. To an agribusinessman it's one of the basics.

If you're a farmer or rancher in Morrow County you don't need to be told how important quality equipment is to the over-all success of your operation. At First National we know that the very basis of our local economy depends on the use of adequate machinery.

That's why we have low-cost loans readily available for the purchase of cars, trucks, tractors, combines, planters, balers, choppers. Whatever it takes to meet your production needs can be financed with a loan from First National.

Manager Ken Belcher and loan officers John Messick and Mary Eleanor Gilman at our Heppner branch are all experienced in helping local businessmen with their financial planning. Whether your specialty is beef... wheat... alfalfa... they'll be glad to help. So if you're ready to add new equipment or replace the old, visit First National in Heppner.

We'd like to get to know you.
