

Veterans Day at Ione

Two women, six small boys, and one toddler girl stood in the rain and watched as a red, white, and blue floral wreath was placed at the base of the memorial flagpole in Ione, Nov. 13.

Herman Bietell, commander, American Legion, Ione Post No. 95, and John Jepsen snapped to a brisk salute and the services were concluded. The wreath, wrapped in plastic to protect it from the rain, rested at the base of the marble plaque inscribed with the names of Trench Aldrich, Herbert Davidson, Alfred Emert, Clarence Harris, Bobby Morgan and Paul Rietmann.

The flagpole was void of a flag. The weather was bad, and Monday was a school holiday.

The women retreated to their cars, the boys disappeared, the men returned to the Legion hall and another Veterans Day had been observed.
