Is Power Available for Electric Heating?

With many new mobile homes coming into our service area and standard homes being built, there are often questions as to availability of electric service for electric heating.

With contractual arrangements on the Boardman PGE project and the Washington Public Power Supply System Nuclear Project No. 4, we will have future power supply (based on projected loads) until the year 2015.

The Board of Directors and Management have been working toward an assured future power supply.

The new Columbia Basin residential rates for electric heating to become effective in May 1974 call for a portion at a 1 1/4 cent rate, with the majority of our electric heating sales to members at 1 cent PER KWH.

Yes, electric heating is available either NOW, or in the FUTURE, and is available at low cost from Columbia Basin Electric Coop.
