

Academic awards at Heppner High

BOB NASH, Heppner High School's Teacher of the Year.

Students and teachers at Heppner High School were honored with academic and dramatic awards Thursday night when the school's annual Awards Night was held.

The banquet marked the end of activities and announcement of awards for the 1974 school year, "something we've been looking for all year," Principal Jim Bier said.

The awards began with the "tapping in" ceremony for the new National Honor Society members. Local Chapter President Greg Davidson led the formal rites and installation of new members. Honored were: seniors, Jean Christman and Dyrk Dunlap; Kathy Hedman; juniors, Kelwayne Haguewood, John Roark, John Kilkenny, Dena Struthers, Mary Healy and Joe Kenny; and sophomores, Tim Skow, Steve Jones, Lori Dunlap and Elizabeth Hellums.

The physical science awards were presented by instructor Duane Neiffer for academic excellence in his science classes. Award winners for the classes were: physics, Luke Padberg and Dyrk Dunlap; chemistry, Anita Davidson and Mike Mills; earth science, Tim Skow and Rhonda Harris; and "Rockhounds," Chris Rauch and Steve McLaughlin.

Madge Thomson presented the library awards for the year to Patricia VanSchoiack and Jim Marquardt. As with many of the other awards, the library honors went to the students who gave just "a little more than was required."

Mrs. Jane Rawlins handed out awards for the language arts department at the high school. The literature award went to Charma Marquardt and John McConnell captured the award for creative writing. Marjie Roberts was awarded a scholarship to the Shakespearean Festival which has been presented the past two years.

The biology awards were given by instructor Stephen Brownfield to outstanding students in his classes. Outstanding teacher aides selected were Mike Mills, Cyde Allstott and Sandra Palmer. John Roark was selected as the top Biology II student and Sharon McCarl was honored as Biology I student. The ornithologist award winner was Steve Peck and Cyde Allstott was selected as the best all-around biologist.

Chuck Starr gave the mathematics awards to: Algebra I, Sharon McCarl, Algebra II, Anita Davidson, Advanced General Math, Greg Clow, and Geometry, Shannon Kelly.

For the commercial and business departments instructor Walt Pilgrim gave shorthand awards to Jean Christman, Anna Coulter and Elizabeth Hellums, and Anita Davidson received the book-keeping award.

The social studies awards were presented by Bob Nash for excellent work in that department.

Those receiving the social studies awards were Greg Davidson and Brian Sweeney for current news, Cyde Allstott for modern problems sparkplug, Kristi Haguewood for modern problems outstanding student, and Jim Wilhelm for Mr. Dependable. Nash also presented the Spanish awards which went to Tim Skow for best Spanish I student and Shannon Kelly for best Spanish II student.

Kristi Haguewood was formally presented with the Betty Crocker Award which she won earlier in the school year.

Bier gave out this year's awards for perfect attendance to Sandra Palmer and Jim Ployhar. Anita Davidson formally received the Odd Fellows Award for her trip to the United Nations, an honor which was already announced.

The Boy and Girl of the Year honors were presented by Bier to the top students in the high school for 1974. Matt Greenup was selected as Boy of the Year and Kristi Haguewood, Girl of the Year.

The Drama and Thespians Awards were presented by Linda Slusher. Selected as best actor and actress in a supporting role were Randy Morris and Anita Davidson for their parts in this year's two plays. For most improved actress, Cheryl Turner received a trophy, as did the other award winning dramatists. For their work in leading play roles, John Myers and Toni Toll received the best actor and actress of the year awards. The Thespians awards were based on total Thespians points earned by members. Greg Davidson and John Myers each received a top honor for their work.

The awards presentations did not go to students only. The faculty was rewarded for its efforts. Receiving Teacher of the Year honors was Bob Nash, for his excellent teaching practices in the social studies department.

Special awards for the faculty went to Mrs. Elizabeth Daggett for her work in the office and to Mrs. Madge Thomson in honor of her retirement and in appreciation for her help to students in her role as librarian. Mrs. Jane Rawlins received a gift from the Honor Society in appreciation for her work with the organization this year.

Outstanding students receive scholarships

Heppner High School's graduated class of 1974 received honors and awards during the graduation ceremonies, May 23, at the high school.

$100 million in bonds to back veteran loans

The Department of Veterans Affairs will sell $100 million in loan bonds July 9 as the result of passage of Measure 5 in the May primary, according to H.C. Saalfeld, director.

Measure 5, approved by the voters by a 70 per cent majority, increased the limit of bonds that may be issued to obtain Oregon veterans' farm and home loan funds. It raised the limit by $497 million.

Saalfeld said veterans applying starting June 3 may have to wait until proceeds from the July bond sale are received in the first week of August. Earlier, May applicants also were informed they would have to wait for funds until September if Measure 5 failed, Saalfeld said, but passage of the measure permitted take care of May applicants.

Veterans have been borrowing from the program at an unprecedented rate of nearly 1230 loans a month averaging $26.5 million, according to Saalfeld.

Meanwhile, more than 15,000 petitions are in circulation over the state seeking placement of a measure on the November general election ballot that would extend the veterans' loan program to the National Guard, which would create 60,000 additional veterans eligible for loans.

HELP FIND JACK. EARN A REWARD

Sunday evening Ann and Ray Chenhall and their cat "Jack" reached Heppner from Tucson. Jack had not been out of the Volkswagen van for four days and was not at all happy about the plan to keep him confined until early Monday when he was to move up to the Blake Resort with Ann and Ray.

So he squeezed himself out the two-inch opening in the van window and toured Heppner his first night here.

The Chenhalls hope some alert Heppner school-freed youngster will find him and earn the $5 reward they will pay for his return to the W.W. Weatherford home between Court and Gilmore Streets (phone 676-5504).

Jack is a tiger-striped, neutered male and is two-years old. He is wearing a clear plastic flea collar. He isn't too good about answering to his name.
