

YCC camp under way at Tupper

Dave Olcott, director of the Youth Conservation Corps program at Tupper, was guest speaker at the Chamber of Commerce meeting Monday.

Olcott spoke of the duties of the youngsters at the eight week conservation program. "This is the first time that Tupper has had the enrollees, consisting of 24 youngsters 15-18. There are 15 boys and 9 girls in the program," said Olcott.

The youths are enrolled in an eight-week program and study such subjects as geology and soil conservation. They are paid $323 for the course, plus room and board.

The youths do a variety of work including clearing trails and roadways. Recently they were engaged in a forestry rehabilitation program of cleanup and planting new trees in a burned out section of forest land.

A typical day's schedule: arise at 6 a.m., breakfast at 7, into the field by 8, ready for the workday. They leave their work area at 4:30 p.m., and have some time to themselves until dinner at 6. After supper, the youngsters are free to relax for a while, writing letters to their parents or they attend a scheduled meeting to learn more about forest conservation. Many local people have helped set up various programs for the youngsters. These programs usually last for an hour or two and enrollees have two hours of free time before bedtime.

Once a week, Thursday evenings, they are brought to Heppner for a visit.

All of their time is not spent on work projects as they are taken on many field trips, recently concluding one to the John Day area. They are scheduled to visit the tussock moth infested area Friday and later will attend the LaGrande Rodeo.

The candidates are from Heppner, Fossil, Pendleton and Milton-Freewater, and were selected by the Governor's Commission on Youth. The emphasis for the program is on management and awareness of natural resources and development of present resources.

Although this is the first time for the camp at Tupper, it is only the fourth year that the program has been in existence throughout the state.

There are 7 YCC programs within the state.

Morrow women enjoy OSU Mini College

The first Mini College for Women held last week at Oregon State University, sponsored jointly by the university and the Oregon Extension Service, attracted 423 women, and provided exciting and stimulating classes. Enthusiasm for the event was expressed by women attending, with most planning to attend again next year.

The new event combined the traditional Oregon Homemakers Council with the new concept of providing educational workshops and classes on more than 40 subjects which could be selected to meet individual interest. Alberta Johnson, extension home management specialist, and the Oregon Homemakers State Council officers and board members, provided the leadership for the mini-college.

In addition to classes and state council meeting, a highlight of the week-long event was the international banquet. Guest speaker was the woman who developed the Japanese Labo and 4-H Exchange program which brought 12 Japanese youth to Morrow County last summer.

Dorris Graves, District 7 Director of Oregon Homemakers State Council, assisted with a number of classes. Announcement of her appointment by Governor Tom McCall to the State Land and Water Conservation Commission was announced in the "Politics and Petticoats" class with which she was assisting, was an interesting addition to the class.

Another surprise Morrow County touch added to the event was provided by Helen Currin and Justine Weatherford. A huge bouquet of roses were added to the decor of Bloss Hall lounge bearing the note "compliments of Morrow County."

Morrow County women attending were Dorris Graves, Justine Weatherford, Helen Currin, Judy Wright, Phyllis Kroll, Julie Nelson, Claudia Hughes, Ann Schwartz, Donna Bergstrom and Birdine Tullis.

First marriage at city hall Saturday

This is a rather unusual place for a wedding story, but this is an unusual wedding.

Dean Teel and Mattie Jewel Lewis will be married Saturday at 4 p.m. at Heppner City Hall. It is the first marriage to be performed in the city hall. It will be the first ceremony read by Mayor Jerry Sweeney. Sweeney didn't exactly ask for the chance to perform the ceremony. It was forced upon him by Teel, who said Sweeney was a friend of his and demanded he personally tie the knot.

Legal questions had to be resolved. According to the city charter, the city recorder is also the municipal judge, and the municipal judge can officiate at a wedding—which seems to rule out the mayor. But lo! the charter also says that the mayor may legally perform all the duties of the city recorder in the absence of the recorder from the city.

City Recorder Marshall Lovgren will be out of town for the weekend.

More than 150 persons have been invited to the wedding, so it may well turn into a "standing room only" affair. The hall holds about 30 persons, seated; maybe 100 standing.

Dianne Cox to be wed Aug. 10

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Cox, Heppner, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Dianne, to Cary Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Davis, Pendleton.

The bride-elect is a 1973 Heppner High School graduate.

Her fiancé is employed by the Paulius Logging Co.

The couple plan an Aug. 10 wedding at the Stanley Cox residence, 560 Cowans, at 2 p.m. Following the wedding, they will reside in Heppner.

4-H camp combined

Decreased enrollments of 4-H campers has made it possible for Morrow County to combine 4-H camp with Sherman, Wheeler, and Gilliam counties this year. The combined camp will be held July 11-14 at Cutsforth Park.

Combining camp will add new resource people, classes and give 4-Hers the opportunity to meet and work with other 4-H youth.

Classes for this year's camp include first aid, gun safety, plaster casting, state forest service, game commission and state police. Also included will be craft classes in tie dyeing, creweling, weaving, leather crafts, rock painting and more. Some special events planned include movie night, special games and Sunday dinner for all parents and campers. A special attraction will be an Army helicopter which will land at the campsite.

Cost of camp is $10 this year. Interested persons may contact the extension office.

FLOWER ARRANGING WORKSHOP

Expertise in flower arranging was provided women of Morrow County at an extension-sponsored workshop last week, taught by guest arranger Mrs. Kemble Tellefson of Milton-Freewater.

The event, following a luncheon honoring extension alumnae, was open to the public as well as 4-H members and extension group members.

Flower arrangements were made by all participants under the guidance of Mrs. Tellefson. Basics of flower arranging, as well as more advanced design and techniques, were included in the workshop.

DUBUQUES ENTERTAIN GUESTS FROM SWEDEN

Mr. and Mrs. Toussent Dubuque of Heppner had visitors from Sweden last week.

Arriving Sunday from Nybro, Sweden, were Mr. and Mrs. Arnie Karlsson, and his brother, Astor Karlsson. Mrs. Karlsson and Mrs. Dubuque are cousins.

Mrs. Dubuque's father, Gunnar Carlson, and her sister, Mrs. Lorraine Ream, both of Yakima, were also here to meet the guests.

The Karlssons left Friday for Yakima where they will take a plane to return home.

The Lexington Grange June meeting will be a potluck picnic at Cutsforth's cabin, Sunday, June 30, with lunch at 1 p.m. Members are asked to bring lunch and cold drinks. A short business meeting will be held in order for the executive board to handle pending business.
