

CowBelles in annual membership drive

Morrow County CowBelles are ringing bells again, as they open their annual membership drive and prepare for the annual meeting to be held Nov. 30, 1:30 p.m., at the Elks' Lodge in Heppner.

With the risks and gambles of the beef industry greater than in past years, activities of the CowBelles and others supporting the beef industry grow in importance. Anyone in this area interested in the beef industry is a welcomed member. Claudia Hughes, membership chairman, will accept the small fee required for membership at any time.

CowBelles promote the industry and a number of activities are carried out each year such as the Beef-a-Rama last spring, beef education funding for local schools, father of the year contest and activities to honor the chosen father, promotion of beef certificates, educational information on meats and meat cookery, and other similar projects.

CowBelles and prospective members are invited to attend the Morrow County Livestock Growers meeting starting at 10 a.m., Nov. 30, stay for the Farm-City Luncheon at noon, (guest speaker, Stafford Hansell) and attend the CowBelles meeting at 1:30 p.m. Plans for the coming year, election of officers and appointment of committee chairmen will be on the agenda for the annual fall meeting. All CowBelles are encouraged to bring along a new member and become involved in the planning of activities and programs for the coming year.

What's in handwriting?

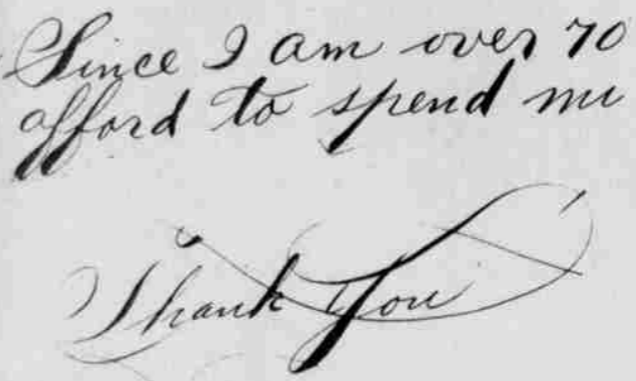

By MARGARET McNAIR
Handwriting Analyst

An example of rare handwriting received last week by the Gazette-Times provides us with the answer to an oft-asked question:

Is handwriting analysis influenced by the writer's penmanship or so-called "pretty" handwriting?

No. Handwriting analysis is not influenced by the appearance of the handwriting. Handwriting analysts discover the writer's character and personality regardless of how it may have been altered by practice or "schooling." The writer must reveal his own individuality because he, not his teacher or some textbook on penmanship, is doing the writing. No person can write exactly like someone else, for no person thinks exactly like someone else. Therefore, handwriting analysis is a reliable tool for discovering the truth about ourselves.

In this example of handwriting we see the traits of showmanship—playing to the grandstand—combined with artistic ability.

Showmanship is that quality or trait which wants to attract favorable attention. The writer who uses showmanship is not satisfied to do a plain job. He uses effects, calculated effects, to gain self-display or the attention of others.

We see vigorous flourishes indicating speed of thought, energy, drive, enthusiasm. We know the writer possesses manual dexterity plus understanding and organization of line, form and color. These qualities add up to artistic ability, highlighted throughout with showmanship.

Yet, we know much more about this writer, for he reveals that emotional experiences of others as well as his own touch him intensely. He expresses himself freely, oftentimes bluntly outspoken. He is logical and analytical, creative and exploratory in his thinking patterns.

There is an exaggerated strain of determination—a showy, bluffing sort of determination. He will bluff. He will make a great show of doing what he has set out to do. He is not only determined, but he wants us to see his determination.

Pride and dignity keep the writer within the bounds of reason and moderation. Furthermore, the determination serves the positive value of strengthening the writer's purposes and makes his practical goals possible.

Questions about handwriting will be answered free of charge. Write to Margaret McNair, The Gazette-Times, Box 337, Heppner, Ore. 97836.

Early mailing for Christmas

Postmaster Hubert Wilson has some tips to insure that Christmas greeting cards and parcels reach their destination in time for the holidays. Parcels and greeting cards for those in overseas service (going by air mail) should be in the mail by Dec. 2.

Parcels going regular mail for delivery within the continental limits of the United States should be in the mail by Dec. 10, and all greeting cards by Dec. 15.

Artifactory's role expanded

The craft demonstrations for this year's AAUW Artifactory features arts not demonstrated at previous Artifactories.

Six demonstrations have been scheduled for the Saturday, Dec. 7, arts and crafts show and sale at the Degree of Honor building in Heppner.

Plans call for a visiting artist to demonstrate the art of raku, the making of Japanese fired pottery. Shari the billing are the Sweet brothers of Heppner demonstrating stained glass. Marvin Peterson of lone demonstrating silk screen dyeing and Kathy Peterson, his wife, demonstrating string pictures. Jennie Howell of Heppner will make corn husk dolls and Teresa Hughes will demonstrate leathercraft.

Anyone wishing to exhibit their work may contact Leese Martin, AAUW, is urging everyone with a craft to exhibit their work whether they wish to sell or not. AAUW has been sponsoring the annual event to give everyone in the county the opportunity to show off what they can do. Members of the branch feel that some outstanding work is being done in Morrow County, and the public should have the opportunity to learn of it.

TURKEY HOP IS SATURDAY NIGHT

The annual Turkey Hop dance, sponsored by the Soroptimist Club to build its scholarship fund and to get the community together for a night of dancing, will be held at the Morrow County Fair Pavilion Saturday night beginning at 9:30 p.m.

Loan Officer Jerry Huff discussing the First Courtesy Card program with Ed Gonty.

Now, for people on both sides of the cash register:

First Courtesy Card makes check-cashing safer and easier.

Whatever your business is, First Courtesy Card from First National Bank of Oregon makes it easier and safer to accept First National checks from your customers.

That's because the First Courtesy Card lets any businessman accept a customer's personal check for up to $100, and rest assured it will never come back stamped "Insufficient Funds," even if the account has been closed.

What's more, you don't have to sign up, pay a fee, fill out forms or even do business with First National Bank of Oregon to benefit from the plan.

More than 200,000 Oregonians already have a First Courtesy Card and thousands of businessmen are accepting their checks with confidence. If that sounds good to you, contact First National for more information.
