DEAR MARGARET:

Would like to know about what my writing reveals.

M. W.

DEAR M.W.:

Your handwriting reveals that you are a very warm, impulsively expressive, social individual. You feel life's ups and downs and no one doubts how they affect you. At times you say and do things you don't really mean, and don't expect others to take them seriously after you have had time to think them over.

You are creative and logical-minded. Further, you have the ability to sense through intuition what is happening around you because of your hunches or premonitions.

You react automatically when you hear music because you have a fondness for anything rhythmical.

A pessimistic slant on life often gives you a negative approach. Watch this tendency. Chase gloom away by using your sense of humor and cheerfulness to lighten a situation, to stimulate genuine fun, or to bring out a smile or hearty laugh. This will combine sympathy and kindness in the happiest way.

Irrigon

Christmas was delayed a few hours for Pastor and Mrs. Robert Schmall when their 2-year-old son Daniel accidentally got his finger smashed in a door.

He was taken to St. Anthony's Hospital in Pendleton on Christmas Eve, where his finger was sewed up after losing the fingernail on a little finger. He was kept over night at the hospital.

The family finally arrived at grandmother's house in Portland at 5 p.m. Christmas Day with Daniel a little pale and with a very sore finger.

A New Year's Eve service was held at the Assembly of God in Irrigon. The women of the church brought their favorite cake or a batch of cookies for refreshments.

The 4-H Pebble Pups had a field trip Dec. 28. They visited the Little Gem Shop operated by Mr. and Mrs. Zachery Brown in Stanfield. Mr. Brown demonstrated how rocks are sliced and shaped to make jewelry.

The group of 7 boys and girls ages 10 to 14 were accompanied by co-leaders, Mrs. Rose Wilson and Mrs. Margie Shade.

A graveside funeral was held for Mrs. Lola Jancurra of Seattle, Dec. 30, 2 p.m., at the Desert Lawn Memorial Cemetery.

She is survived by her husband, Clarence Jancurra of Seattle; daughters, Sharon Cassidy, Seattle, Barbara Sue Carlson, Bellevue, Wa.; a son Douglas Jancurra, Seattle; and her father, Jay Berry of Portland.

She was preceded in death by her mother, Carrie Berry, and her sister, Barbara Rosencrans.

She was a former Irrigon resident and leaves many friends, a number of cousins and other relatives in Irrigon.

Robert Rucker, Irrigon, was taken to Good Shepherd Hospital, Hermiston, Dec. 26, by ambulance for a possible coronary.

Ron Currins overrun for Christmas

One of the larger family gatherings along Butter Creek on Christmas Day took place at the Ron Currin home.

Members of the George and Bob Currin families and the Bill Healys joined Ron and Judy and their five children for dinner and festivities.

An interesting visitor was Celia Currin, Bob's daughter, who had just come from New York City where she has been on the staff of Forbes Magazine for several years. Celia resigned her position with Forbes and took a $65

"hippie" bus trip from New York to the West Coast. She amused everyone by describing this experience and the 34 other persons on the bus.

Celia will visit in Pendleton, Portland, Pilot Rock and on Butter Creek before she seriously looks for further employment.

Celia is remembered here through her writing for the East Oregonian. She is a graduate of the School of Journalism of the University of Oregon.
