The possibility of buying, displaying and selling commemorative coins was considered. The availability of $5,000 in "to be matched" funds for a Morrow County project was discussed. Sweeney will name a fund-raising committee soon. One project is for development of Hager Park.

The next meeting of the county-wide committee will be Feb. 18, 7:30 p.m., at the courthouse. After this meeting there will be a rotation of meeting places including Lexington, Ione, Boardman and Irrigon.

Rare books, magazines on sale at library

Beginning Thursday, Feb. 13, 7:30 p.m., the public can buy unusual and rare books and a few old magazines at the Heppner Library.

These could probably be sold for good prices elsewhere, but the library officials feel that interested local persons should have the first chance to select from them.

Within the last year the library was given many books, including collections of older books from the Gilliam, Cohn and Jones families. These books have been sorted and resorted. The Morrow County Museum is keeping those volumes that Mrs. Rachel Harnett judged historically significant.

The public library has shelved many of the books. However, there are many duplicate volumes, some books that are out-moded, others that qualify as "collector's items" and not library circulation.

GLEND A VanWINKLE TO WED IN SALEM

Mr. and Mrs. William J. VanWinkle, Lexington, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Glenda Kay, to Thomas M. Bradd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Bradd of Salem, Ore.

DENA STRUTHERS

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Struthers, Heppner, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Dena Renae, to Lyle G. Wiese, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle H. Wiese, Grants Pass. Miss Struthers is a senior at Heppner High School. A June wedding is planned.

The money from this special sale, along with receipts from the on-going sale of duplicate National Geographics and other books, will go toward the expense of converting the back room for children's use. This special book sale will run only one week, during regular library hours, and will end at 9:30 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 20.

JEANNETTE KLINGER TO WED FEB. 14

Friends and relatives are invited to attend the ceremony.

What's in handwriting?

By MARGARET McNAIR
Graphoanalyst

Dear Margaret McNair:

As a reader of the Gazette-Times I have been reading your column and have become interested in handwriting analysis and was wondering what sort of qualifications are required or what sort of schooling. It all sounds very interesting and I will look for your answer in the paper. While you are at it, what can you tell about me from my handwriting?

Sincerely,
P.M.

Dear Margaret McNair:

DEAR P.M.:

You can study Graphoanalysis through the International Graphoanalysis Society. IGAS is unquestionably the largest functioning body of handwriting analysts in the world. It is an association of professional handwriting analysts, plus a school which offers both extension (home study) training in the science of personality assessment through handwriting analysis and a program of resident training in the institute held during the annual International Congress in Chicago.

More than 35,000 individuals have been trained in graphoanalysis. Graphoanalysis is a special term that applies to the system taught by the International Graphoanalysis Society. It is the only system of handwriting analysis that can produce scientific validation data, the only one sponsored by a world-wide organization, and the only one whose practitioners are required to abide by a Code of Ethical Practice.

The mentality of the individual applicant is the deciding factor in determining the qualifications for acceptance into IGAS membership for training to become a Certified Graphoanalyst.

Graphoanalysis is taught by mail and through trained teachers whom IGAS has licensed and approved, who give personal instruction.

Further information about graphoanalysis training or services may be had without charge from the society.

Selected questions about handwriting will be answered. Write to Margaret McNair, the Gazette-Times, Box 337, Heppner, Ore., 97836.

A handwriting "profile" discloses that you respond quickly to emotional situations of others as well as yourself and are demonstrative of your feelings. To be sure, your feelings tend to be governed by your heart, but no matter: rapid comprehension, dignity, self-respect, and judgment in decision-making hold your reactions under control.

Your thinking pattern is exploratory and analytical. You like to go to the source for desired information. Of all knowledge you want to know why, how and if.

Your goals are practical, within easy reach, although you could set goals for yourself farther into the future and find success. Your high ideals, mental ability to organize facts and use them in new ways, initiative and tact will see you through to completion of the project.

You respect the beliefs of others and expect the right to make up your mind in your own way. Other people's opinions of you affect you at times and cause you to be touchy or easily annoyed.

You give your individual attention to a project and glory in a job well done. Remind yourself often that you possess innate strength, can face facts, solve problems and achieve success.

RAY BOYCE picks Gail Hughes, Heppner, as last weeks winner in the Who's Who Contest.

Mystery Person jackpot $22.50

Gail Hughes, Rt. 2, Heppner, won $20 last week for identifying Sheriff John Mollahan as the week's Mystery Person.

She missed the number of clues, however, which would have netted her an additional $15. So this week's jackpot goes to $22.50 and it will be possible for the winner to receive $42.50 by identifying the Mystery Person and also getting the correct number of clues.

Had Gail Hughes listed five or six clues she would have been judged winner of last week's jackpot of $15. A clue from the previous week was inadvertently left in the Gazette-Times, and would have been counted correct had she listed five or six instead of only four.

The five clues were: peace symbol (which is what a sheriff is); money grabber (he's also the tax collector); book of the Bible (John, what else?); shamrock (for the Irish he is); Marsha? (remember the song about John and Marsha?).

All these clues also fit Marshall Lovgren, city recorder, and many submitted his name. It wasn't planned, it just worked out that way!

All the council officers were re-elected for another year. They are: Lorraine Powell, Hermiston, president; Ist vice-president is Pat Standerfer, 2nd vice-president, Dallas Price, secretary, Leona Wilson, treasurer, Hazel Hubel, all of Pendleton.

Ruby Becket reviews Sam McMillan book

Ruby Becket reviewed Sam McMillan's "The Bunchgrasses" for the Bookworms at their Jan. 28 meeting in the home of Inez Erwin.

Mrs. Becket brought some of her personal collection of old Lexington pictures with her. As she "hit the high spots" of the book, she added personal reminiscence and circulated the old photos.

She explained that she and Sam McMillan were born about one block from each other in "Old Lexington." "My paternal grandparents, the Thornburgs, and Sam's paternal grandparents had lived beside one another in Tennessee. The McMillans came out west first and took a homestead, then the Thornburgs arrived and homesteaded nearby," she recalled.

Mrs. Becket's maternal grandparents, the Parkins, were already established on the land now farmed by Norman and Fred Nelson, having taken a homestead there earlier. In some way Ruby Becket is related to most of this area's older families.
