

A new 200,000 gallon water storage tank arises on the horizon to ease the growing pains in Irrigon. Residents are presently using daily more than twice the capacity of the smaller 20,000 gallon storage reservoir, according to Mayor Chester Wilson. Irrigon's first City water system was completed in 1969. Before that time clusters of homes were served by wells owned by individuals.

Overdue books pose problem

At the recent meeting of the Heppner Library Board, a check was made on the large number of overdue books. The librarian has been trying to contact persons who have been careless about returning books.

The State of Oregon has strong laws about library books. Section 111-352 states: "Whoever willfully or maliciously detains any book, newspaper, magazine, pamphlet, or manuscript belonging to a law, city, county, school district, state or other public or incorporated library for 30 days after notice in writing from the librarian of such library, given after the expiration of time which by regulations of such library such book, newspaper, magazine, pamphlet or manuscript may be kept, shall be punished by a fine of not less than $5 nor more than $25, or by imprisonment not exceeding six months; provided, that the notice required by this section shall bear upon its face a copy of this section."

The librarian is expecting to get notices in the mail more regularly and is also reminding book users when they are delinquent by telephoning them.

William P. Klinger and Victor Klinger were weekend callers at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Klinger.
