

Heppner women visit nations capitol

Mrs. Harold Erwin and Mrs. Ted Smith have returned from an eastern visit with relatives and a look at many national historic sites. Both of them feel strongly that every American should try to visit the nation's capital and see the sites in the surrounding area. Mrs. Erwin's sister, Mrs. Duckworth of Clarkston, made the trip with them.

The trio flew into Washington at night and agreed that the city was beautiful both by night and by day. There is no building taller than the capitol dome. They traveled Pennsylvania Avenue, visited the capitol, saw the White House and its gardens, visited Arlington Cemetery and the Lee Mansion and many other D.C. shrines. They viewed the Washington, Lincoln and Jefferson monuments, government buildings, museums, galleries and the Potomac River.

When Mrs. Erwin entered the House of Representatives, Rep. Al Ullman of this Oregon District was speaking on tax and energy proposals.

Mrs. Erwin and her sister spent a morning at Mt. Vernon, drove through the Shenandoah Valley and into the Blue Ridge Mountains. They enjoyed Fort Jameson and the replicas of the small boats used by the settlers when they sailed the Atlantic to the new world.

The sisters were guests of Mrs. Erwin's niece and nephew (Mrs. Duckworth's daughter) Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fondahn. He is president of the Protein Grain Products International. The ladies were entertained at many luncheons and parties.

One evening they were guests of Chet Lee the ASTP Program Director for the Apollo-Soyuz Test Project. They were shown a model of the space crafts that will dock and perform tests and experiments in space. They saw an unedited film which showed the space successes and failures of the Soviet Union and the people of both nations who will participate in the coming joint space effort.

New books at library

A great collection of new information is now available at the library in the new 1975 World Book Encyclopedia and the 1975 Rand-McNally Atlas just purchased.

Among the new adult books are nine "Jaina" books which increase that series to its full number, 16. Other newly arrived fiction includes "The Promise of Joy" and "The Massacre at Fall Creek." Interesting non-fiction books such as "Good Guys Finish Last," "Helter Skelter," and "The Bermuda Triangle" are current best sellers.

A large selection of new children's books has arrived just in time for summer reading. Included among these books for youngsters are seven that have won the Caldecott Medal.

Mrs. Weatherford says the library will be closed next Saturday, July 5, but will open tonight from 7:30-9:30 and on Sunday from 2-4 p.m.

Borrowers with books due on July 5 will not be fined if they get the books back on July 6.

Mrs. Smith visited in the home of her brother, Grant Conway, an Ione native, who was with the Import-Export Bank until his retirement.

Two high spots of her visit were being in the James Madison House to attend the Washington Arts Club as a guest of her sister-in-law and taking a long look at the craft demonstrations at Harper's Ferry, West Virginia. The Madison House served as the temporary capitol of the U.S. after the British burned the old capitol in 1812.

The Craft Fair was put on by mountain folk who came to Harper's Ferry and camped in tents while they daily demonstrated many old handicrafts and folk dances. Harper's Ferry, like Heppner, has been subject to many floods, as it is near the confluence of the Potomac and Shenandoah Rivers.

Mrs. Smith was away from Heppner a week longer than Mrs. Erwin because she stopped over to visit family members in Missouri.

Legal secretaries hold meeting

The June meeting of the Pendleton Area Legal Secretaries Association was held at the Sky Room in Pendleton. Sheriff William McPherson and Hal Galloway gave a very informative talk on locks, keys and theft prevention in general.

Different kinds of locks and keys were shown and how they can be opened with credit cards, scissors and screwdrivers.

Slides were shown on some of the recent burglaries in Umatilla County and of the damage done.

Hints were given on how to make your home burglar proof and Sheriff McPherson advised that they will come and inspect your home and offer suggestions for safety. He also suggested that everyone should mark their valuables with their driver's license so that stolen items may be returned to the owner and using the driver's license is about the fastest way to check.

Next story hour Monday July 7

The American Associated Women sponsored children's story hours have proved increasingly popular this summer. A crowd of four to eight year old children poured into the library to hear Mike and Cathy Anderson. Some 45 children were present for that session.

The next story teller is Kathy Wolff for Monday, July 7, a student at Heppner High School. Kathy is well known and popular to young children around Heppner as a baby sitter. Linda Bier and Jeanne Howell will be assisting Kathy.

The session begins at 10 a.m. and lasts until 10:30.
