Pioneer Profiles of Speech

By Justine Weatherford

Amanuel C. Petteys was born in New York in 1830, the son of a Christian Church minister. Seven years after the death of his father in 1846, his mother, with her two sons and three daughters crossed the plains, enduring many hardships during their 16 months journey.

In the spring of 1854 they settled near Salem where they lived until 1868.

Amanuel C. Petteys came to what is now Morrow County in 1868, driving a herd of cattle across the mountains from near Salem. He settled at the forks of Rhea and Willows Creeks near the present site of the Jordan Elevator. He obtained a homestead and lived there the rest of his life.

Mrs. Petteys, the former Catherine (Katie) Gienger, tells of crossing the plains with her family in 1863 in a 62 wagon train: of coming to Morrow County in 1871 when only 14 years of age, and of her marriage to Amanuel Petteys in 1880 in Pendleton.

The Petteys had seven children: George Amanuel (Mannie), Albert O., and daughters, Mrs. Fred Nicholson, Mrs. C.W. Swanson, Mrs. Frank Engleman, Mrs. J.K. Crozman and Mrs. E.P. Newton.

Mr. Pettey followed the stock raising industry for many years and operated an early stage stop, was a pioneer postmaster and served as county assessor in 1896.

The Petteys place, known as Petteysville, included more than 1,000 acres. The post office located in their farm house was also known as Petteysville, and Amanuel was postmaster for 17 years. At first the mail was brought in by a buckboard, but later they used a regular stage-coach. They received their mail on a stage that ran between Leonard's Bridge on the John Day and Pendleton.

The Morrow County Museum has a collection of biographical facts about the Petteys, including two feature stories from early Oregon newspapers. One from the Salem Statesman dated June 18, 1919, tells that Amanuel C. Pettey started reading the paper with its first issue. He continued as a subscriber with the bi-weekly paper coming to his lone address until his death in 1919. He paid for the first of his 68 years of subscriptions by running the paper's handpress.

Another interesting article written by Fred Lockley of the Oregonian in 1929, tells of a personal interview with Mrs. Pettey.

She says, "In the early days we did our trading at The Dalles, for there was no town at either Heppner or Arlington, and of course there was no lone or Lexington."

Petteysville was sold to Marion Palmer in 1967, after son George Amanuel (Mannie) who had farmed it became ill. Mannie never married. After he left the farm, he lived with his sister, Mrs. Edith Nicholson, lone. He died in April 1965, at the age of 85.

His brother Albert, preceded him in death. Albert had two children: a son, Gilbert and a daughter, Olive. Amanuel C. and his wife, Katie Gienger Petteys, are buried in the Petteys Cemetery along with many others, four generations of their distinguished pioneer family.

We'd like to get to know you.

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for redress of grievances, "First Amendment to the Constitution.

"Is life so dear, or peace so sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!" Patrick Henry.

"Restriction of free thought and free speech is the most dangerous of all subversions. It is the one unAmerican act that could most easily defeat us," William O. Douglas

Among the "unalienable rights" that we cherish, perhaps the most basic are the rights to say what we want, when we want and where we want; to assemble with others to talk freely; and to worship in the way we choose. Our Founding Fathers, who had seen the corrupt side of governmental power, insisted on First Amendment liberties as a bulwark against tyranny.

But are these rights absolute? Most of us don't really want others to be able to say or write anything, anywhere, at any time, so we limit these basic rights. Hanging witches, banning books, jailing dissidents, and requiring or prohibiting prayers—this "Free country" has done all of these. And the practices of some religious sects have been prohibited by the nation's laws. Is freedom so fragile that we sometimes must—or think we must—defend it by denying it to others? Or is the surest way to defend it through what Oliver Wendell Holmes called the "free trade in ideas"? On the other hand, are there no limits at all to freedom? What is the dividing line between art and pornography? Between reasonable protest and impermissible violence? Between religious principle and anti-social practice? When does the expression of an opinion become treason, endangering the common good or the rights of others? What makes up an "unlawful assembly"?

The Sedition Act of 1798 threatens anyone who utters or writes "false, scandalous and malicious" comments against the government of the United States with fine and imprisonment.

In U.S. v. Cruikshank (1876) the Supreme Court holds that the right of the people to assemble peacefully for lawful purposes existed long before the Constitution was adopted. The Court traces the right to English law and describes it as a distinct, separate and independent right.

The 1963 March on Washington, led by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., demonstrates the importance of mass assemblies as a way of shaping public policy in the area of civil rights. Such meetings, sometimes marked by violence, become an important tactic again during the Vietnam War.

A wedding shower was held in honor of Mrs. Robert Drake at the American Legion Hall, Saturday evening, Oct. 25. Helping Mrs. Drake open her gifts were her daughter Chris Gillette, and Renee Flack. The tea table was centered with a bouquet of yellow and orange mums made by Mrs. Helen Martin.

The cake was decorated with two white lace hearts coming together in a fan shape, and surrounded by autumn colored flowers. Guests sat around tables decorated with large candles set in rings of autumn colored flowers, and were served by the hostesses Julie Funk, Nancy Leavitt, Winona Roberts, Betty Aldrich and Beverly Phegley.

Mrs. Leo Crabtree and Mrs. Blanche Scheelar drove to Caldwell ID, Tuesday. They went up to take care of the Gelinus children as Sharon Gelinus was called to Great Falls, MT, where her husband is in critical condition following an automobile accident. His brother, Dan Gelinus came from Keene, NH to be with them. Mrs. Crabtree returned home Sunday, and Mr. Crabtree will take her back up on Thursday.

Mr. Alvin McCabe and sons, Kevin and Ashley drove to Moscow, ID Wednesday to see Jim McCabe play football.

Mrs. Roy W. Lindstrom spent most of last week in Portland her daughter, Christina, came from Tacoma, WA and met her in Portland.

Mrs. James Swanson spent last weekend in Portland, returning home on Sunday.

The American Legion will hold a program at the Ione Memorial Field, 10:30 a.m., Nov. 11. Coffee and doughnuts will be served at the hall following the program. Every effort is being made to have an interesting program, and hope members of the community will mark this date on your calendars and plan to attend.

Studded tires permitted Nov. 1

Under state law studded tires are permitted in Oregon during the period Nov. 1 through April 30, Fred B. Klaboe, Highway Division Administrator announced today.

He asked that users delay putting them on their cars until they are necessary because of the damage they cause to non-snow covered pavements. He said Highway Division cars again this year would not be equipped with studded tires.

Sew with Wool Contest

Wool is back in the spotlight as a fashion fabric, and proof of the fact were the 27 high style garments modeled by girls in the "Make It Yourself with Wool" Contest held Oct. 25 at Blue Mountain Community College. Eighteen of the girls modeling their stylish woolen garments and bringing home most of the honors were Morrow County 4-H members.

Winners of the senior division and a trip to Eugene to participate in the state contest was Terry McElligott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry McElligott, Ione. Terry's winning garment was a 100 per cent woolen, double breasted, blue plaid coat. Terry also received a gold bracelet as additional prize. Placing third in the senior division, and winner of a special award for construction was Lori Bergstrom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Bergstrom, Ione.

In the junior division, Grace McElligott, also daughter of the Jerry McElligotts, placed second with her two-piece rust colored double knit outfit. Carol McElligott, daughter of the Don McElligott's received third for styling her bright red plaid outfit.

A pink double knit t-shirt dress with hood, with decorative burgandy stitching, and burgandy accessories won first place honors for Mari Evans in the pre-teen division.

Prize for winning pre-teen division was a beautiful pink sheep pelt. Angie Evans showed her burgandy button front, pocketed skirt with a striped sweater to win second place. Both girls are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Vern Evans, Irrigon.

A new award for congeniality was won by Diane Morter, lone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Morter. Diane's prize was a natural colored pelt. All girls in the contest voted on the congeniality award.

District director for the contest is Mrs. John Doherty, Pilot Rock, assisted by Mrs. Jim West, lone. A lamb shish-kabob luncheon was provided for the girls, their mothers and special guests by Karen Watson, Hermiston. Style show decorations were under the supervision of Jean Conklin, Hermiston. Judges for the event were Pat Terjeson, Helix, Suzanne Coppock, Adams, Kay Foster, Hermiston, Sandi Richardson, Heppner, Donna Bergstrom, Ione, Mrs. Hill, Pendleton and Tedde Holcomb, Pendleton, Narrator for the style show was Tedde Holcomb.

Each girl participating in the contest received gifts of wool yardage and sewing notions, provided by local sponsors. Morrow girls participating in the event were: Sharon Crowell, lone, Danette Daltosa, Helen Daltosa, Boardman; Margaret Doherty, lone, Angie and Mari Evans, Irrigon; Suzanne Keithley, Heppner; Elizabeth McElligott, Diane Morter, Joan Doherty, lone; Erin Evans, Kate Evans, Irrigon; Linda Keithley, Heppner; Carol McElligott, Grace McElligott, Janet McElligott, Terry McElligott, and Lori Bergstrom, lone.

Morrow County sponsors providing prizes were: Jim West, Shirley Rugg, Wavel Wilkinson, Krebs Brothers, Cornett Green Feed, Harold Wright, Terry Thompson, Bristow's Market, Peterson Jewelers, Bank of Eastern Oregon (Ione & Heppner branches), First National Bank, and Turner, Van Marter and Bryant.

HEPPNER HOTEL CHANGES HANDS

Arnie and Rita Hedman have purchased the Heppner Hotel and will assume ownership Nov. 1. Tentative plans are to move their furniture into the lobby and the restaurant portion of the hotel. The lobby will be relocated to the southern part of the building. Hedman stated there would be no changes in the remainder of the hotel at the present time.
