

Artifactory well attended

Rain didn't dampen the Christmas spirit as more than 500 people swarmed to the 4th Annual Artifactory, Heppner, to purchase home made arts and crafts; watch demonstrations of lost home arts or to join classes to learn new skills.

The creativity of Morrow County residents was evident by the amount of arts and crafts on sale as well as the demonstrations.

Classes of macrame, quilting, broomstick lace and tatting drew large numbers of interested students. Macrame proved especially popular and instructors Judy Wright, Willard French, Sandra Greenfield, Jan Paustain and Patty McCoin were kept busy teaching the art of knotting.

Quilting drew many interested spectators as well as participants under the instruction of the lone Cardinal Club mothers.

Broomstick lace by Leann Rea, tatting by Ruth Bentley, and terrariums were also popular choices.

Martin and Stu Zimmerman not only taught the art of making terrariums, but also served as "terrarium doctors" as they gave advice and answered questions of many who had terrariums at home. Potter Dan Richardson drew large numbers of spectators each time he started his wheel turning.

There were so many displays and demonstrations that crowds had difficulty deciding just which to view next. Each demonstration of a lost home art found eager audiences; soap making by Sharon Harrison and Kathy Peck; candy by Pat Pettyjohn; Christmas arrangements by Mary Van Blokland and Carolyn Cole; corn husk dolls by Jeanne Howell; grain grinding by Corine Miles and shaping yeast rolls by Jan Peterson, all drew crowds of interested spectators.

Door prizes donated by exhibitors and demonstrators were awarded at the close of the day. Winners and donors were:

Eric Thompson; stained glass donated by Rick and Liz Curtis; John Briedenbach, china dish given by Mary Nikkander; Verrae Taylor a dry flower arrangement given by Jeanne Howell; Lisa Nix, a candle donated by Linda Johnson; Bernard Doherty the fresh flower arrangement by Carolyn's Posy Patch;

Jerry Doherty the toile painting given by the Lexington Toile Painters; Susan Gray a pie donated by AAUW; Patsy Anglin was winner of the terrarium given by Martin Zimmerman and son; and Ila Albert, the wooden toy by Martha Doherty.

Growing interest in the Artifactory as a means of exhibiting as well as sales of creative arts and crafts of Morrow County people assures a repeat of the popular event next year. Associated American University Women and Extension Service jointly proclaimed the event an overwhelming success.

TATTING

CANDY MAKING

THE GAZETTE-TIMES

Vol. 92, No. 43

Heppner, OR, Thursday, Dec. 11, 1975

15c

POTTERY

HOLIDAY WREATHS

Santa will call

Youngsters in the area wishing to speak to Santa Claus are asked to send a letter with their name and phone number to Santa Claus, Heppner, Or, 97836.

Santa and his helpers will call the youngster Dec. 17-18 between 6-7:30 p.m., to determine what the children would like to receive from Santa Claus.

A box will also be placed in the post office so youngsters may mail their letters to Santa.

MACRAME

PORTRAITS IN OIL

QUILTING