Board votes to separate

The Morrow County Mental Health Clinic Advisory Board voted at their monthly meeting, Jan. 22, to separate from the Umatilla Mental Health Program.

The Umatilla-Morrow County Mental Health Services started the joint venture three years ago with the idea that when the Morrow County Mental Health Program had established itself, the two programs would separate. The current acting administrator, Bruce Barnes, and the Umatilla County Commissioners feel that the Morrow County Mental Health Program is well established and should be independent. With this knowledge, the Morrow County Advisory Board agreed and voted ten to one to separate.

The Advisory Board also discussed these reasons for the separation: (1) 80 per cent separated already; (2) have our funds through fees and the county to finance the program; (3) difficult administrative arrangement while the two clinics are united; (4) the director of Morrow County Program has greater interest and knowledge of the county's needs; and (5) if the clinics separate, Morrow County will still obtain consultation from Eastern Oregon Comprehensive Community Mental Health Center.
