Book Review

Basketball for Young Champions
By Robert J. Antonacci and Jene Barr

This long-awaited addition to the "Young Champion" series is a complete handbook for the young basketball player. From early days when peach baskets were used, the authors tell the story of basketball and discuss the rules of the game.

Passing, shooting, dribbling, training, making plays, equipment and scorekeeping are some of the many topics covered. Included, too are the variations for the girl's game and Biddy Basketball, while valuable drills and exercises are suggested to help young players develop their skills.

The book is illustrated throughout with clear action drawings by Richard Leach.

"The Unwanted"

By Dr. Christian Barnard and Siegfried Stander

The Unwanted is the story of the making of a heart surgeon told with the knowledge and intimacy and excitement of a man who has achieved worldwide recognition in that field, Dr. Christian Barnard.

The story of Dr. Deon van der Riet weaves the present with the past to re-create the people and the events that have shaped and formed his life. His training, a youthful love affair that returns to haunt him, and often difficult marriage, the resumption of a friendship with a boyhood companion, now a brilliant and controversial geneticist, and always, in the past and in the present, the tense, emotion laden atmosphere of the hospital, where each day there are seeming miracles, tragic failures as well.

"The first duty of friendship is to leave your friend his illusions." Arthur Schnitzler

Hardman 1902

By G. Bleakman and J.F. Royce

Dairyville was founded in 1879 by W.H. Royse, but changed to Hardman in 1883, in honor of David Hardman, who was then postmaster.

The town stands on the site of the old cheese ranch, on which a few stones remain, indicating the spot where the stone chimney stood.

From 1878 to 1883 settlers were few and far between, and they without exception were engaged in raising stock, mostly horses, the country at that time being the equine paradise... the bunch grass knee deep everywhere furnishing an ample supply of food summer and winter. Among the leading horse raisers of those times we can mention are Messrs. Tupper, Perry Oiler, Stewart Bros. and Old Charlie Miller, and we can say that those parties verified the old adage, that nothing succeeds like success.

Subsequently about 1880 the wool industry made the appearance and today is the chief occupation of all who can find range. To such an extent is the business carried on the stock raising is entirely crowded out except a few animals owned by farmers and small ranchers. The leading sheep men of those days were the Rood Bros., IFM Farrans, Wright & Bisbee and O.E. Farnsworth, whose son, Col. Frank Farnsworth has established his reputation as one of Morrow county's sheep kings. But times began to change, stockmen could not always have free and unlimited range.

The village of Hardman has a population of about 200 souls and boasts of a neat M E church, also a school house, which is considered one of the best of the country school houses at the present under the leadership of Prof. Anderson assisted by Miss Anna Bayliss, who yields the rod.

At the south end of town is a skating rink. Two fine buildings grace the town, one the Odd Fellows Hall, the other the K.O.T. hall.

Two blacksmith shops ornament our main street. Cline and Ashbough and R. Stillwell are the proprietors.

There are three general stores, Mrs. E.E. Beakman, Royce & Son and H.A. Warren. There are three hotels, the Dairy house, run by Lena Owens; the City Hotel conducted by Mrs. R. Stillwell and the Old Hotel managed by W.P. Reid.

Hardman has a saloon, Fred Deford, proprietor and a barber shop conducted by Mr. Robertson. The surrounding country is noted for its fine crops of grain and hay, also potatoes, small fruit and vegetables.

There is some talk of having the town incorporated in the near future. We need it. Rowdiness is getting too rampant.

We have the best public well in Oregon, with water unlimited.

LOTS AWARDED BID

Lott's Electric, Heppner, was awarded the bid to assemble the sequence motor on the starting control board of the rock crusher. Lott's bid was $2,460.46, some $200 less than other bids submitted to the Morrow County Court last Wednesday.

NEWS OF JAPANESE EXCHANGE STUDENTS

Shirley Palmer, Heppner, coordinator for the group of Japanese exchange students coming into Morrow County next summer, recently returned from a meeting in Corvallis with information that ten young people, accompanied by a chaperone will be assigned to our county. Seven applications have been received in the extension office from families wishing to host the young visitors, as well as one for the chaperone. Anyone wishing information on the program, or application forms may call Birdine Tullis, extension service, Heppner, 676-9642.

It is important that host family applications be in by Mar. 1, as individual assignments will be made to host families shortly after that time. Families are encouraged to write to the Japanese students prior to their arrival to become acquainted and assist them in their use of the English language.

Families who have applied to serve as host families are Jerry Myers, Don Bennett, John Gochauer, Roger Palmer, Bob Abrams, Kenneth Belcher, Des Witt and Vern Evans.

REV. NORVIE O. CLIFT
Evangelist

Feb. 11-13
Feb. 15
7:00 each evening
Sunday
11:00 a.m.

Rev. Norvie O. Clift, an outstanding evangelist in the United States and Canada, will be our special worker. Mr. Clift, a graduate of Pasadena College, is in constant demand for revivals. He has served 15 years as a full-time evangelist; a successful pastor in Watsonville, CA, and Cheyenne, WY, First Church; and three years as associate minister and youth director with the First Church of the Nazarene in Los Angeles.

Mr. Clift uses magic with a gospel message for the Sunday school and on week-nights. All will enjoy his inspirational choruses and gospel magic. His positive and inspiring Bible messages on holiness appeal to both young and old. During the summer months, Mr. Clift devotes his time to conducting Kiddie Crusades, youth camps and camp meetings.

Your presence will contribute much to the meeting. Be sure to be with us and bring your entire family to our special services.
