

Field trip taken

The first weeks in May are usually field trip season for students of Morrow County schools. During this time the students visit the museum and the library, in Heppner, and if time permits, they will also visit the county courthouse.

Last Thursday, 55 students from A.C. Houghton Elementary School, Irrigon, were visitors in Heppner. Following a tour of the library and museum they enjoyed a lunch in the city park then went to the courthouse. The students were of the second, third and fourth grades and were accompanied by John Dawson and Mrs. Partlow.

The previous week 60 students from Umatilla Elementary School visited Heppner taking in the same interesting sights.

TOUR TAKEN

Mrs. Partlow, A.C. Houghton Elementary School, Irrigon, gives her students final instructions before visiting the Morrow County Courthouse.

Heppner namesake honored

Heppner namesake Henry Heppner, who opened the first merchandise store in the town in 1872, is featured in a multimedia presentation of the 150 year history of Jews in Oregon, a Bicentennial salute at the Jewish Community Center, Portland, during May. Also spotlighted is one of Heppner's first mayors, H. Blackman.

There is no charge for a retrospective of thousands of photos which take up the entire Jewish Community Center, 6651 S.W. Capitol Highway. The retrospective is especially recommended for students 10 years and older, and for those interested in ethnic studies. Trained tour guides are available for special groups.

A slide-tape show, "Memory is Survival," will be shown to the public each Saturday and Sunday evening from May 9. There is an admission charge of $3.50. The show, under the auspices of the Jewish Oral History and Archive Project, Shirley Tanzer, director, is a culmination of over 3 years of interviews with members of Portland's Jewish community to gather in-depth material on early Jewish life. It is co-sponsored by the JCC and by Portland Section, National Council of Jewish Women.

For additional information on the month-long presentation and on a traveling display available for showings in other cities, contact the Jewish Community Center, Portland.
