tag, must also have a valid cow permit.

Antlerless areas this year will be different than in the past. It used to be that a hunter, if he had both a bull and cow or buck and doe tag, could hunt either at the same time in the same area. Now a hunter must hunt a bull during bull season and cows during cow season with the same applying to the doe permit season.

If a hunter should harvest a bull or buck during that season, he is not eligible to go after a cow or doe in that appropriate season.

Road closures will give the deer and elk a better chance to escape and will produce an increased quality hunt, Ward said. It will also prevent the spread of noxious weeds and erosion on private land.

The main areas of closure, which include 30,000 acres near Texas Butte and a large area southeast of Heppner, will be mainly situated in lands owned by Shirley Rugg, Dick Wilkerson and Jack Glavey.

Elk hunters enjoyed 15 per cent success last year when 5200 hunters harvested 754 elk. Most of the animals were taken during the first three days of the season, due to accessibility by roads. That's one of the reasons for closure, enabling the herds to spread out a little.

A new and increased bail should deter many hunters who would like to get an early start on their big game bag this year. Violations for taking an illegal elk has jumped from $305 to $505 and bail on deer violators has increased from $205 to $305.

According to Groshen, early season poachers are off to a slow start. Some violations have been reported for chukar and pheasant hunters but "there is not much indication of illegal deer kills."

Oregon State Police have been patrolling the area with a plane this fall. Also, an OSP cadet will be working the Heppner unit the entire season.

Groshen and Ward agreed that the deer are in the foothills rather than the timber like last year. Ward said though, that the big bucks would be hiding away in the pole thickets of the timber areas.

Deer are concentrated along Willow, Rea, Rock and Little Butter Creeks, Ward said, along with the North Fork of the John Day. The Heppner Unit represents a million acres.

Groshen noted that hunter courtesy has improved and said that more and more hunters are reporting violations this season. Hunter conduct has improved, Ward said, and the group as a whole is "pretty good." Groshen said a small group is causing all the trouble.

Kegler's Korner

The Sparetimers League began its season last week with 30 bowlers composing 6 teams. High game was rolled by Darlene Arrington. She had a 177 game to go with a 476 series. The teams are pretty evenly matched with Peterson's Jewelry leading after the first week.

Standings
Peterson's Jewelry	3-1
Central Market	3-1
Morrow Grain Growers	3-1
Gardner's Men's Wear	1-3
Fiesta Bowl	1-3

Coast to Coast
The second week of bowling, Roberta Klaus had high game of 190 while Inetia Cantin rolled high series of 517. Danonne Nelson converted the 5-7 split with some tricky bowling. She placed her ball between the two for the conversion.

Standings
Peterson's Jewelry	6-2
Morrow Grain Growers	6-2
Central Market	4-4

Card netters win

Ione's Cardinal volleyballers pounded Riverside Tuesday in a two game set.

The Cards disposed of the Pirate netters, 15-9 and 15-12 as Debra Palmer led the attack with a 12 point effort.

Ione's JV setters also kicked Riverside, winning in three games, 15-11, 4-15 and 15-12. Jan Peterson scored 12 points.

Earlier this week, Ione fell to Arlington. The varsity, paced by Susan Thompson's eight points, fell 15-8 and 15-11. The Ione JVs also dropped their match to the Honkers, 6-15, 16-14, and 12-15. Robin Leavitt scored 10 points in the losing cause.

Fumbles thwart JV win

A 30 yard pass interception and a fifty yard fumble recovery, turned into touchdowns by Sherman County, stopped Heppner's junior varsity Monday, 28-6.

Sherman scored two TDs off their offense, one a 60 yard pass and another a long sustained drive but coupled a pair of defensive TDs to bounce the JVs.

Heppner's lone TD came on a six yard run by Dennis Peck.

Peck was the JV's leading ground gainer, picking up 78 yards on 11 carries. Eric Clough threw four completions in 15 attempts for 36 yards in the air.

Steve Marlatt carried the ball twice for 28 yards and with Peck, sparked the Mustang ground attack with 113 total rushing yards.

Defensively, Jack Yocom paced the Mustangs with 28 points on 11 unassisted tackles. Randy Warden and Jim Parker were also cited by George Koffler, JV mentor.

the Spray touchdown barrage. Gary started with an 11 yarder, Jim followed with a 39 yarder, Gary ran a 23 yarder and Scott Richardson added an 18 yard run.

Sherer, this week's Player of the Week for Ione, paced the Card defense with nine unassisted tackles. Dennis Stefani also had nine and Gaustad had six.

Ione faces Mt. Vernon there Friday.
