

Party Line

D. Zita & J. Weatherford

The Oregon State Game Commission is very serious about picking up fresh kill finds on cow elk. One cow was reported to them as a fresh kill and within three hours a helicopter was sighted at the spot picking up the cow. Some institution will have fresh meat and no spoiled meat.

Jeane and Paul Hanson's weekend was a pleasant one. First, Jeane's doctor let Jeannie come home for a few days, as her son, Frank Lovgren, had a ten day leave. Frank was married recently, so with him was his wife, and her children. The West of Willow was the scene of turkey dinner for family and friends. Then, at the Hansons' house, a family reunion and wedding reception was held with a wedding cake and champagne being served.

Last Thursday night, Joyce Winters' birthday was celebrated with a party given to her by husband Herman and daughter Heather. Helping her celebrate the "39th" was Gladys Beckett, Dennis and Ann Doherty, Susie Cooper, Kathleen Healy, Bud and Harriet Batty, Coetta DeBraul and Archie Munkers.

We have a staff of "women only" at the G-T this week. Wil, our news editor, is on vacation, with Lavon Starr taking his place. That means Sharlene Arends, Eileen Saling, Justine Weatherford, Janene Searle, and yours truly say, "We can do it."

Rose and Gerald Bergstrom were waiting for their turf to arrive for the "finished" touch on their new double wide mobile country home, when we went a "visitin'" recently. No TV and their son, Mike, doesn't seem to object. Rose served dinner in their beautiful dining room and then we headed back to town (some twenty miles), leaving our ex-city friends behind.

Leonard L. Gilson, Portland, a civil engineer with the Soil Conservation Service, spent some time here last week. He is the grandson of Henry and Martha Riggs Padberg, county pioneers. He spent Thursday evening at the library reading about Morrow County.

Surely you have noticed that driftwood monster that decorates the ground space in front of the Bank of Eastern Oregon. It is sort of a wooden Loch Ness beast. We wonder if Gene Pierce and his co-workers have given it a name? Do they feed it money?

Next week everyone should enjoy "Charley's Aunt." Play producing is a fine experience for young people, but sometimes they feel discouraged when their efforts are not supported by the community.

This week more children than usual will be at home and round about the community because of the school conference days and the Armistice holiday.

Books for Artifactory

Anyone who is ready to take some of the load off bookshelves and clean off coffee tables is asked to bring surplus books to the Ione Post Office or the Heppner Laundromat.

Saleable books and magazines are asked for by the A.A.U.W. for selling at the December 4 Artifactory in Heppner.

Collection boxes marked "Books for the Artifactory" will be checked regularly at the Ione Post Office and the Heppner Laundromat.

Tami Meador-Donald Sneddon

Autumn wedding for Meador-Sneddon

The United Methodist Church's altar was decorated with red roses, white starburst chrysanthemums, red gladiolus and red and white striped carnations for the wedding of Tami Laray Meador and Donald Niles Sneddon on September 18.

The Rev. Steve Tollefson officiated at the ceremony. The couple was given in marriage by a family group. Mrs. Richard Meador, Mr. Stan Wellman, Baker, uncle of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Blair Sneddon.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Richard Meador, Heppner, and the late Mr. Richard Meador.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Blair Sneddon, Florence, OR.

Tami wore an ivory heart carved by her father for something old. For something new, her wedding gown of organza with lace inset on the long sleeves, and with matching lace bordering the hem of her gown. A garter was something borrowed and blue, belonging to her cousin.

The maid of honor was Leslee Meador, sister of the bride, of Gainsville, TX. Bridesmaids were Julie Bisset of The Dalles, OR, and Tracie Beal, Heppner, friends of the bride. Their long dresses were of red and white gingham with bodices of red velvet. Candlelighter was Mickey Sneddon, brother, of Florence, OR.

The groom chose his cousin, Dave Luce, Florence, OR, as his best man. Groomsman were Tom Sneddon, brother of the groom, Florence, OR, and Pete Wood, Hermiston, OR.

Robert Sneddon, brother of the groom, guitar vocalist, sang Agna Guam, Annie's

Song, and As Fine As Fine As Can Be. Playing the organ was Pauline Miller.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the church social rooms given by the Methodist Women, with Mrs. Howard Bryant in charge. The Elks Lodge was decorated with red and white gingham tablecloths and flowers, for the second reception held the same day.

In charge of the cake and punch tables were Mrs. Stan Wellman, Mrs. H.L. Wellman and Mrs. Merritt Gray. Patti Capps, friend of the couple, Florence, OR, was in charge of the guest table and Nikki Sneddon, sister of the groom, Florence, OR, was at the gift table.

The new Mrs. Sneddon is a graduate of Heppner High School and attended the Oregon State College.

This month, library patrons will have some of their schedules disrupted. On two Thursday evenings, the library will not be open as usual, November 11 and November 25 are legal holidays. Books due on those dates should be returned ahead or on the next library openings, Saturday, November 13 or November 27.

Special services

This Sunday, November 14th, the Heppner Church of the Nazarene will be privileged to have a group of young college men and women here from Northwest Nazarene College in Nampa, ID. They will provide special music and a special service is being planned. The Rev. G.E. Blackburn, Pastor, invites everyone to join them for this morning worship service beginning at 11:00 a.m.

Adult confirmation class

Persons interested in learning about the United Methodist Church in preparation for membership are invited to come to the parsonage on Church St. tomorrow evening at 7:30.

Pastor Steve Tollefson is offering several weekly classes which will also be helpful to members of the church who want to review their understanding of church operation or to increase their knowledge of this ecclesiastical system.

It is planned that subsequent class meetings will be on Thursday evenings, but because November 11 is a holiday for many, this meeting is set for Friday evening.

Organist needed

If you can play an organ and would be interested in performing each week, please telephone 676-9224 or 676-5504.

Next spring, Pauline Miller will terminate her long-time service as organist at the Methodist Church. She and her husband, District Ranger

Sam Miller, will be retiring and leaving Heppner.

A congregational committee has been appointed to find a replacement for Mrs. Miller. They will contact several musicians, but wonder if there are some capable persons whom they do not know about.
