

Around About

with Justine Weatherford

I have been trying to do a little serious, but belated, spring house and garage cleaning, and I am again considering what a great system marriage is—especially for some males.

Why do menfolk keep the things they keep for years and years? As we moved three times within four years (all right here in Morrow County), I found it just didn't make sense to unbox lots of stuff. Last week I finally got around to some box openings.

Of course, the necessities of life, those important things I've collected, are so reasonable and worthwhile. But why have we kept moving those boxes of HIS old stuff? I wonder if any other couples have similar problems?

As I recall our last several moves, whenever I'd ask my husband what to do about certain gear, his stock reply was, "Take it to the dump"—except for those boxes of HIS things, which we moved and moved.

So, in a rush to get ahead of summer visitors, last week as the temperature shot up, our fireplace kept us even warmer when I was granted HIS permission to burn a large per cent of his marvelous collection of cancelled checks, mementos and memorabilia. Ah, now there will be a little more room around our place for significant things like I collect.

My burning wasn't quite completed when a cousin from California came by—but observing my situation, he kindly stayed very briefly and moved on to Pasco.

A good letter from the travellers Eleanor and Ed Gonty tells us of their visits in North Dakota, Minnesota, Illinois, Indiana and Iowa. Their son Doug is travelling with them as they move along east to his port of embarkation for continued Army duty in Europe. Son Tom, who went as far as N. Dakota, came home to care for the home place.

Eleanor writes, "Don't let anyone tell you that retired people can travel and live as cheaply as at home. I think we should keep going—hate to face the gas bills." (The Gontys travel in luxury in a new motor home which could be guzzling considerable gas.)

Her letter continues to say that living seems higher in the Midwest. A point of interest is, "Teachers here aren't hired on yearly contracts, or given one. At the end of the year they are fired and may be re-hired in the fall."

Did you all enjoy those great TV pictures from London? Long live Elizabeth Regina! Another TV gem I happened to catch as I was ironing, was Annie (Little Orphan) singing to her dog-friend Sandy. She sang "Tomorrow" which is a hit from the current Broadway musical. It made me think of Tom Franks, and I wondered if he realizes that the title of his column is being made famous.

Last weekend I went to Portland to pick up a ten-year-old grandson, Scott Haberlach, from the Seattle area, who will be with us until June 27 or 28. Scott and I enjoyed the great Saturday parade of the Rose Festival, the first I have seen in person for years. Maybe lively Scotty will bring a new, youthful prospective to our aging Weatherford lives. We aren't at all accustomed anymore to living with a pre-teener.

Mrs. Alena Anderson returned from two weeks visiting in Portland with her daughters, Dee Martin and Nancy Parent and four granddaughters.

Dee took her mother to Portland after a Memorial weekend visit here. Nancy brought her mother home last weekend.

Alena attended two high school graduations: her granddaughter, Lisa Parent, was graduated by Oregon City High School and granddaughter Suzanne Martin was graduated by Wilson High School in Portland.

Mrs. Doris Cutting, now of Coquille, will be a guest in the home of Ida Farra here next week. Doris and her husband, Rev. Edwin Cutting, were with the Heppner United Methodist Church before they were assigned to the church at Coquille.

Doris has many friends in this county and in the Echo community, where she and Mr. Cutting also served the United Methodist Church.

Lynne Gochnauer leaves for eight weeks in Australia

Lynne Gochnauer, an upcoming senior at Heppner High School, will leave Portland June 18, to spend eight weeks with the Campbell family of Walsend, New South Wales, Australia.

The trip was arranged through the Lions' International Youth Exchange Program and Lynne is the first participant from this area. The program was started in 1961 and designed to "create and foster a spirit of understanding among the people of the world."

Lynne will share in the family and community life of the Australian culture and although she won't be attending school, she plans to visit, sightsee, and learn as much about the country as she can.

She will fly with Judy Schnebly, a senior at Pendleton High School who has planned to stay in Australia the entire year and will attend her senior year of high school there.

The host Campbell family, which includes three daughters ages 16, 14 and 2, will meet the plane carrying Lynne, Judy and 86 other young Americans at the Sydney airport.

Lynne will carry slides of her home, community, school and state to present at Lions' Club meetings in Australia. She plans to return home August 15.

Lynne is the daughter of Judy and John Gochnauer; her father is a member of the Heppner Lions' Club. Lynne's grandparents are Virginia and Hal Whitaker.

Bike ride nets $$$

With sore seats and tired legs more than 45 riders participating in ESA's Million-Dollar-Bike-Ride pedaled the last few feet of the 22-mile trek to help raise funds for St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital.

But it all seemed worthwhile as volunteers learned from Bike Ride Chairman Ellen Kennedy that their efforts had raised more than $1,700.

"We were so pleased with the turn out and response of the people," Mrs. Kennedy said. She mentioned people like Jame Launer, who volunteered his services, and Marlene Gray, who arrived at checkpoint No. 2 with water just in time so none left thirsty.

All the riders are now out collecting the money pledged. Any questions or further donations should be directed to Ellen Kennedy, 676-9708.

Lutheran youth at coastal retreat

The junior high school confirmation class from Hope Lutheran Church and Valby Lutheran Church will be going to Walport on Monday, June 20, for a retreat at one of the cabins along the Oregon coast.

The confirmation classes of the two churches have made the trip for the past three summers. While at the retreat, they will be studying the history of the Lutheran Church as well as some of its major themes. The afternoons and evenings will be used for fun and relaxation along the coast.

The ten students and two adults will be leaving at 9 a.m. from Hope Lutheran Church, and will return to Heppner around 6 p.m. on Thursday, June 23.

Justice Court correction

In last week's Justice Court news, Darrel McLachlan was incorrectly identified as Delbert McLachlan.
