

AROUND ABOUT

with Justine Weatherford

This week's column is being written in Portland where I am spending many hours at the Emanuel Hospital while Bill is having tests and is recovering from surgery on his neck.

This large medical complex employs more people than populate Heppner, I think. It is a beehive of activity. When my first son was born here over 36 years ago the entire hospital only covered one block—now along with its out-patient services and extended-care buildings it must cover about seven or eight blocks and has acres of parking spaces.

One change I don't appreciate is the closure of the nurse-training school. So many fine nurses came from Emanuel. Now the building where the girls lived during their student years is filled with offices.

While I was waiting around I tried to reach our Lexington friend, Greg Davidson, for a little telephone visiting. I couldn't reach that busy, envolved, young businessman. His friend with whom I talked said that Greg had appointments for all of that day and was very busy most days.

As we made four trips along the Columbia River we noted that many new islands have come into being during the low water period. I contemplated having the fun of naming some of those new bits of land.

It was amazing to us to see the great number of expensive motorhomes and assorted recreational vehicles moving east or west along the highway. We wonder if the motels are suffering this summer because so many folks travel with their own accommodations? Also it is hard to understand how our country can be depressed economically when so many have invested so much in these deluxe travel arrangements.

We know that they are not energy-conserving vehicles. Maybe all their owners drive little economy cars to and from the jobs where they earn the money for traveling so well.

Ola Mae Groshen's mother lives very near my brother's home, where I stayed. I had a nice visit with Mrs. Hough on Saturday morning. Like her daughter, she is a pianist. She used to play in movie theaters, years ago.

On Saturday evening I was able to take in some live theater. There is a good variety of live entertainment in Portland area this summer. My family arranged for us to attend the Portland Civic Theater's production of "Hello Dolly".

It was a most delightful show—easier to understand than the Shakespearean productions I have attended in Ashland quite a few summers past.

Hopefully Heppner will be having live theater next winter under the leadership of Marsha Matthewson.

Lt. Col. Lanham completes training

Army Lt. Col. Michael C. Lanham, recently completed the 10-month course at the Industrial College of the Armed Forces, Washington, D.C. His father, Conley J. Lanham, lives in Heppner.

The Industrial College of the Armed Forces is one of two senior service schools comprising the National Defense University, located at Ft. Lesley J. McNair.

The graduate level courses at the college cover the entire field of national security affairs, with emphasis on the management of resources in dealing with problems of national security.

Lt. Col. Lanham entered the Army in November 1956. He received an M.B.A. degree in 1960 from the University of Pittsburgh and received his commission through the Reserve Officers' Training Corps program.

Public librarians meet to discuss state grants

Thursday, July 14, librarians from Eastern and north-central Oregon met with Elmer Baldwin and Bill Gregory of the Oregon State Library in the Umatilla County Library at Pendleton.

The meeting was arranged by the State Library so that regional public librarians could consider the proposals for the distribution of state funds for public libraries that resulted from action by the recent legislature.

The State Library's representatives were gathering information about the needs of public libraries in this area and are also holding similar meetings in Ashland, Salem and Portland. They stated that the rules and eligibility requirements and procedures for applying for money will be sent to libraries later. The grants for development, equipment and special projects will extend over two years.
