

CIM course completed

by Justine Weatherford

A group of 12 county persons recently completed a 40-hour C.I.M. (Crash Injury Management) course under the direction of Pioneer Memorial Hospital's Linda Connor.

The course was set up by Bob Ewell before he left the community; Connor was asked to take over the remainder of the course and administer the examinations by Tom Ford of the Oregon State Police Academy.

Basically the course was for members of the Sheriff's Search and Rescue Posse. Most of the classes were held in the courthouse, with some outdoor instruction being given at the rodeo grounds.

Final exams covering the contents of the studies covered—cardio-pulmonary resuscitation, airway management (clearing throat after choking), common medical emergencies, childbirth, fractures, soft tissue injury and extrication from vehicles—were given last Wednesday.

Connor explained that the course is designed to give competency in treating emergencies until professional medical help arrives. The State Police Academy has sponsored this course in various Oregon areas.

A class member, Dan Mc-

Linda Connor plays the part of victim as Dan McBride, a recent graduate of the Crash Injury Management Ms. Connor taught, practices some new bandaging skills.

Bride, taught one of the final lessons on extrication from vehicles.

Connor is donating part of her teaching fee to the Sheriff's Search and Rescue Posse for the purchase of first aid kits and supplies.

"I surely enjoyed finishing this training program. I feel very confident that these 'graduates' will relate to any emergency with the utmost capability. The public should be thankful for all of the rescuers who took the time to complete this lengthy, very hard course. I salute them," Connor said.

Morrow county snow-mobilizers, skiers, hunters and travelers can rely on better aid than is available in many larger communities because of the CIM course. Another reason for thankful living and playing in this area.

Donna Key Hansen and Paul Garcia, both of Ione, were married at Heppner City Hall Friday, Nov. 18, by Mayor Jerry Sweeney. Cathy and Tony Sanchez, Othello, Wash., were their witnesses.

Landes to move to Walla Walla

Bill Lande, an employee of the Bank of Eastern Oregon in Heppner, has accepted a position in the commercial lending department of the Baker-Boyer National Bank in Walla Walla and will move with his family to that city at the end of December.

Lande is currently the president of the local Lions Club and belongs to the Elks, Odd Fellows and Salvation Army. He is also a member of the Morrow County Planning Commission.

His wife, Mary Pat, has been active on the Heppner Library Board of Directors and in the American Association of University Women. The couple have one daughter, Kimberly, age 5.

Lande worked for the Condon branch of First National Bank before moving to Heppner.

Christian Women to meet at lodge

The Heppner Christian Business and Professional Women's Club will hold a joint Christmas meeting with the Boardman CB&PW Club on Monday, Dec. 5, at 7:30 p.m. at the Elks Lodge.

Marie Hughes, Pendleton, will be the guest speaker for the evening, while Linda Panter, high school home economics teacher, will give a special demonstration on Christmas gift wrapping.

The Heppner High School swing choir plans to sing for the group.

Everyone attending the meeting is asked to bring a sample of a favorite Christmas cookie, candy or cake on a paper plate.

For reservations, call Val Cooley 676-5149. For babysitting service, call Joyce Hughes, 989-8412.

Heppner hosts GED testing

For the first time, upcoming G.E.D. tests will be given at Heppner High School instead of the present Blue Mountain Community College location.

Vicki Tollefson, local G.E.D. coordinator, encourages every adult who would like to study for a high school diploma to come to the Neighborhood Center on Thursdays from 7-10 p.m. for night classes, where books and materials are provided.

Students study at their own rate and take the G.E.D. when they think they are ready. Materials can be checked out for home study.

For more information, contact Mrs. Tollefson at 676-9224.

Viola Gilman with daughter

Mrs. Viola Gilman is convalescing at the home of her daughter, Lora Stotts, Heppner. She welcomes calls and visits from her friends.

Heppner Garden Club plans Greens workshop Dec. 12

Members of the Heppner Garden Club have scheduled their annual Christmas Greens Workshop for Monday evening, Dec. 12, in the basement of the United Methodist Church.

Persons interested in learning how to make door decorations, wreaths and swags, and table decorations may come and create these articles. Each person is asked to bring pruning clippers.

For the 50 cent registration fee the club furnishes the greenery needed. Ornaments and ribbons will be sold by club members.

The workshop will begin at 7:30 p.m. with Garden Club members assisting those attending with their projects. Club members are asked to come by 7 p.m. for a brief December meeting.

BMCC winter classes to open

Pre-registration for Blue Mountain Community College winter term classes will officially begin on Dec. 12 but course forms can be picked up now by contacting Nancy Brownfield, area coordinator for BMCC evening classes. Mrs. Brownfield's phone number is 676-5039.

Classes being offered include: Beginning Swedish, Physical Fitness for Women, Literary Film Series, Expectant Parents Class, Ceramics, Tole on Clocks (advanced), Beginning Tole, Guitar, Calligraphy, Micro-wave Cooking, Genetics, Basic Math, and Cross Country Skiing. All classes except the Tole Painting will be evening classes and further information can be obtained by calling Mrs. Brownfield.

Many of the classes have limited enrollment so interested persons are encouraged to get their registration forms in as soon as possible. Pre-registration is important to secure a place in the class and to give the instructor an idea of how many students to expect. Two of the classes—Ceramics and Literary Film Series carry college transfer credit.
