Earl and Betty Lewis are among the large group of ex-residents now living in the town of Prineville. The Lewis' mobile home was moved last Monday. Earl and Betty were in town Saturday to finish moving. I'll miss seeing their smiling faces around town. Steve and Roberta Conlee went to The Dalles Monday on business. Thursday they were back in The Dalles with son Rob for a visit with an orthopedic surgeon for Rob's foot. The Conlees are busy preparing to move to Fossil in the near future.

Vic Wallis and his mother Dorothy went to The Dalles Sunday. Mrs. Wallis has been visiting most of last week at the Kimberly home of her old friends, Mr. and Mrs. John Valcore. The two ladies are both sporting scratched hands and arms from picking blackberries. The compensation of good homemade jams and jelly will be enjoyed long after the scratches are forgotten.

Steve and Verla Benson were in Kinzua the weekend of the fifth to attend the tenth reunion of their graduating class from Wheeler High School. The Albany couple stayed with his parents, Stan and Norene Benson, while here.

Also in town to attend the reunion was Joe and Robin Bowman and infant daughter Natalie. Suzy Brooks and Cindy Bowman who had been attending cheerleading school in Portland rode home with the Bowmans. The Portland family spent the weekend with Jiggs and Rita Bowman, as did Ron and Ginger Bowman, Heppner, and Richard Kludt, Prineville. Erika Bowman who had been in Kinzua with her grandparents for the week returned home with her parents on Sunday. Friday Cindy was off to Prineville with Virginia Kelso. Jiggs and Rita went to Hermiston Saturday to visit with her sister and brother-in-law, Glore and Clayton Clapper for the weekend.

Nina Castle and Sue Mattison and her daughters Robin and Jodi were in John Day Friday on business. Sue and the two girls spent Wednesday and Thursday in Heppner visiting with her brother, Bob Hire, and family.

Bruce Pike and Sharon Hetzel left Friday evening for Sharon's home in Seattle. Bruce returned to Kinzua Sunday evening after spending the weekend with Sharon's family. Jeanette Spivey and LuAnn Pike are back home for a couple weeks of vacation time before school starts. The girls have been working at a wood products plant in Baker. Don and I went to Nyssa to visit our son and daughter-in-law, Lance and Hollie Van Meter and grandson Clay.

Board members sought

for soil and water districts

Election procedures are in full swing for positions on soil and water conservation district boards. District board members may take active roles in water development, soil erosion and sediment control practices and comprehensive planning. The responsibilities of the soil and water conservation district are largely dependent upon the interests and energies of the board of directors and existing State statutes.

Individuals interested in running for a position should contact the local soil and water conservation district for details. District offices are located at the Federal Soil Conservation Service location in each county. Those interested need to file for candidacy and obtain at least ten signatures on a petition. These must be verified by the County Elections Officer and returned to the State Soil and Water Conservation Commission at 1015 13th St. S.E., Salem, OR 97310, by August 25.

New veterinary program to aid students in tri-state area

The building was planned with the help of a school building committee headed by Michael Shires, OSU veterinary surgeon. The committee visited new veterinary schools in Kansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Florida, Iowa and Colorado. Architectural drawings are scheduled to be completed by Oct. 31 this year, with construction bids to be opened Jan. 1.

The first class of Oregon sponsored veterinary students (28 from Oregon and 8 from other western states) will be enrolled at OSU in September 1979. They will be taught at Dryden Hall and at other campus facilities until the new clinical teaching hospital is completed Aug. 1, 1980. The 36 students will attend WSU their second year, joining 70 WSU and UI students. They also will attend WSU for part of their third year before returning to OSU for the spring term of 1982.

Their fourth year before graduation in 1983 will be spent at OSU, at one of the other two institutions or in working with practicing veterinarians.

The veterinary school's new home will be built on the former site of housing for married students on SW 30th Street. Approximately 270 feet wide and 280 feet deep, the building will face the football practice field next to Parker Stadium. Designed by Payne, Settecase, Smith and Doss, Salem, the brick-faced building will be constructed with steel frames and concrete slabs.
