

Louis Carlson starts term as 4-H Foundation trustee

Louis Carlson, Ione, has begun a three year term as a member of the board of trustees of the Oregon 4-H Foundation, according to William Kendrick, Salem, president.

Carlson was named a trustee at the 1978 annual meeting of the foundation held at the Oregon 4-H Center near Salem.

Previously he had served as the Morrow county member of the foundation representing the county's 4-H leaders and others interested in the youth education program of the Oregon State University Extension Service.

The change was made to give county members a more active and responsible role in the foundation, explains Ron Campbell, executive director.

County trustees now will be more involved in all the foundation's work and are expected to serve as "on the spot" representatives of the foundation, Campbell notes.

The Oregon 4-H Foundation was established to assist 4-H work not supported by tax funds. By law, tax money may be spent only for professional salaries and for educational literature.

The foundation has been responsible for raising funds for the purchase and development of the Oregon 4-H Center, for securing audio-visual teaching materials for volunteer 4-H leaders, for supporting state events such as 4-H Summer Week at OSU, for financing leader training programs, and for supporting the International 4-H Youth Exchange program among other activities.

Morrow County youths attend National 4-H convention

Outstanding achievement in Oregon State University Extension Service's 4-H program brought statewide recognition and trips to Chicago and the National 4-H Congress to two Morrow county 4-H'ers, reports Lois Redman, OSU Extension 4-H and youth specialist.

They are Jan Peterson, Ione and Erin Evans, Irrigon.

Entering OSU this fall as a freshman in home economics, Peterson was chosen for the trip sponsored by General Foods Corp. for achievement in 4-H foods and nutrition programs. She is the daughter of Herbert and Barbara Peterson.

Evans, daughter of Vern and Francine Evans, was chosen for the trip sponsored by Coats and Clark for achievement in the 4-H clothing project. She is a senior at Riverside high school.

Both have been in 4-H work for nine years and both have served as 4-H camp counselors and as junior leaders. Both have served as members of statewide 4-H advisory and development groups and both are interested in careers in home economics.

While enrolled in 4-H foods and nutrition projects, Peterson has learned to prepare meals from scratch or using convenience foods, both of which have their place in today's homes, she believes. She used Extension's Sue Kangaroo nutrition lessons to teach nutrition to first and second grade classes.

In addition to foods, she has concentrated on the 4-H clothing project for the past eight years also.

State NFO convention to be held Saturday in Lincoln City

The State Convention of the National Farmers Organization will be held at the Dunes Ocean Front Resort, Lincoln City, on the evening of Sept. 22 and all of the following day, Saturday, Sept. 23.

There will be district meetings, commodity meetings, elections and reports.

Speakers include, Ken Meier from the State Department of Agriculture, Gene Nelson, ag economist from Oregon State, Dave Miller, head of the Feeder Cattle Dept. from the National office, and Ray Jorganson, area grain director.

State President Don Peterson of Ione, asks that producers of livestock, milk, grains and speciality crops take a look at the contracts and staff that NFO offers so the farmers may be able to exert strength in negotiating for equitable price levels. Members and non-members are invited.

Hospital Notes

Patients admitted and still receiving care at Pioneer Memorial Hospital this week are William Collins, Sadie Parrish and Celia Matteson, all of Heppner.

Admitted and later discharged was Kelly Hawker, Ione.

Hunter's Breakfast set for Sept. 29 weekend

Heppner American Legion and Auxiliary, Post No. 87, held their first regular monthly potluck and meeting of the fall season Monday, Sept. 18, at the Legion Hall.

Plans were discussed for the annual Hunters Breakfast, to be held Sept. 29, and for remodeling of the hall, still under way.

Auxiliary committee chairpersons were selected for the year. Gift items for the Veteran's Hospital at Walla Walla were also discussed.

Membership drive is now under way, as all dues must be forwarded to the state office before Nov. 11.

School employees meet to negotiate

Oregon Schools Employees Association Chapter 59 of Morrow County met at Riverside High School Monday, Sept. 18, at 7:30 p.m., for the first meeting of the new school year. President Betty Christman, Heppner Elementary Cafeteria cook, presided.

O.S.E.A. is the collective bargaining agent for the classified employees of Morrow Co.

Schools. A new salary schedule will be negotiated this year. The negotiating team will be Karen Cooley, Irrigon, spokesperson; Marilyn Stewart, Irrigon, recorder; and Darrell Vinson, Heppner, alternate.

The next meeting will be Oct. 16, at Heppner High School.

Ten to take Tut tour

Ten Heppner High School art students will leave for Seattle on Sept. 23 to tour the King Tut exhibit.

During the past two weeks, students in Ron Forrar's art classes have been studying the findings on what were once the young king's belongings. A project was assigned to help students build a stronger vocabulary and understanding of historical and contemporary art principals.

The Heppner students will travel to Seattle with a similar group from Riverside High. The trip will include a cultural tour of the Seattle area before visiting the Tut exhibit on Sunday, then returning home Sunday night.

Farm Bureau supports ballot measure 6

Oregon's largest general farm organization will support Ballot Measure 6, it was announced today in Salem.

The Oregon Farm Bureau Board of Directors in a phone poll cast a unanimous vote to support Ballot Measure 6, the 1 1/2 per cent property tax limitation, because it more nearly represents Farm Bureau policy than does the substitute measure passed by the special legislative session.

In announcing the Board's decision, Farm Bureau President Waldron Johnson of Yamhill, said that the 8600-member federation would support Ballot Measure 6, not because it is the best solution to property tax relief, but because the legislative alternative won't serve farmers as well.

"We met during the special session," Johnson said. "We supported concepts of the minority report offered by state Representative Cecil Johnson of Grants Pass. When that failed by a single vote in the House, we decided to wait and see what the session would pass out.

"Dad says we're going to insulate with Rapco Foam next year."

When kids hit the hay these days, they really feel the effect of higher energy prices.

A lot of parents have turned the heat down. Sacrificing comfort to save money. By reinsulating with Rapco Foam you can push the thermostat back to a reasonable setting and still keep your fuel bills down.

APPLIED OVER OLD INSULATION

Rapco can be installed in any home—no matter what the exterior—usually in just a day. It flows right over worn-out traditional insulators now in the walls of many homes. These cold, poorly insulated walls are a major source of heat loss and discomfort!

Since Rapco completely seals interior wall space, cold, costly walls turn warm and comfortable. Inch for inch, nothing offers more insulating protection.

Insulate with Rapco Foam. You'll save money, stay warmer, and who knows... the kids might give you a morning smile again.
