Heppner's teaching force received a dozen reinforcements last week, in the form of sophomore and junior education students from Eastern Oregon State College.

The week provided the first opportunity for the 12 EOSC students to experience firsthand what life in front of a classroom is all about. It was also the first time that the EOSC class used Heppner as the site for its field experience week.

In addition to classroom experience, the students got a taste of what the lifestyle of a teacher is like, since most of the students were houseguests of Heppner High and Heppner Elementary instructors during their stay here.

"The response was good from our students," commented Heppner Elementary Principal Don Cole. "They don't often get to know people who are college students. And it was a shot in the arm for the staff, too. It gave them something to look forward to, and I think it sharpened their skills, because they really wanted to be on their toes when working with the college kids."

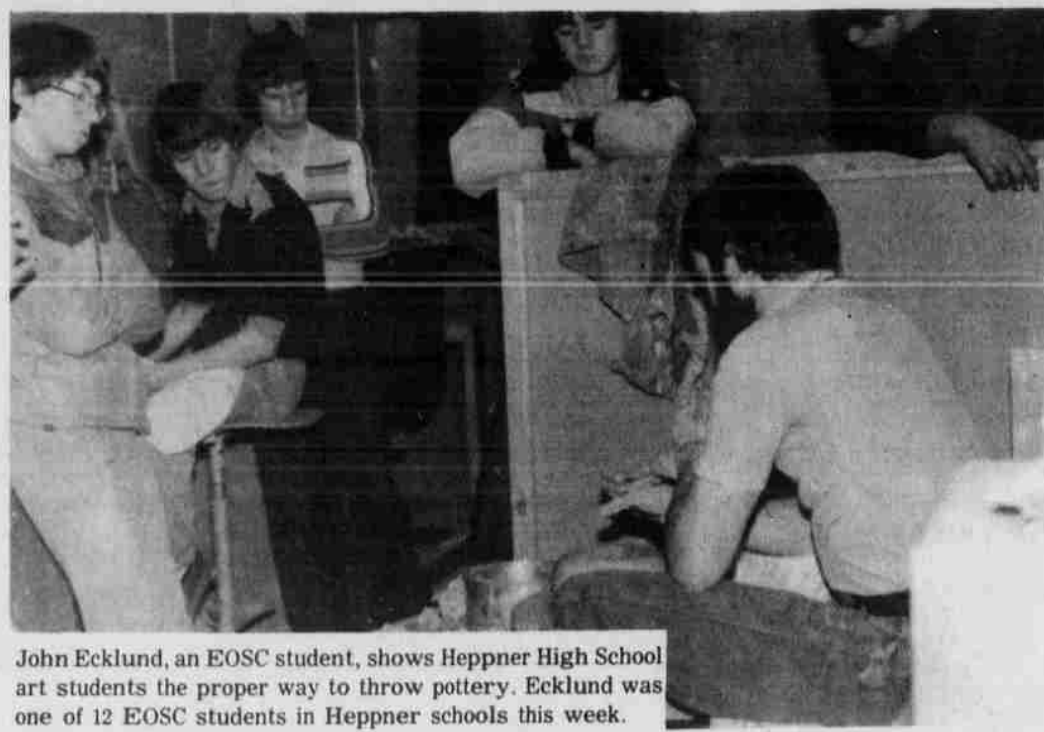

The EOSC students "have been college kids up to this point," noted Dr. Dayle Slater of the LaGrande college. "Now they have to take a look at what it's like to 'act like a teacher.'"

While the experience reinforced the desires of many of the EOSC students to pursue careers in education, the time spent in Heppner classrooms may also help some of the education majors decide that teaching may not be their ideal occupation. Roughly one-third of the enrollees in Eastern Oregon's education program decide not to go into teaching, Dr. Slater noted.

Donna Ragsdale, one of the eight EOSC students assigned to Heppner Elementary, admitted that her first day in front of a classroom was a bit harrowing. "It was a lot more tiring than I expected," she added, "But I got my second wind by the end of the week, and felt fairly comfortable." Her teaching experience at Heppner ranged from presenting lessons on fractions to basic Spanish.

"The teachers here are really super," Donna added. "They really helped me to get involved with the program... The Heppner system seems to give its teachers quite a bit of say regarding what they want to teach," she noted. "It has a lot to offer."

"This is a great group of kids," commented EOSC sophomore Maureen Kasnick. "They really seem interested in you, and want to talk with you all the time. It makes your ego feel good. I'm going to miss them."

John Ecklund, an EOSC student, shows Heppner High School art students the proper way to throw pottery. Ecklund was one of 12 EOSC students in Heppner schools this week.

No replacement named for Trooper Dixon

Just when a replacement will be named remains a mystery, but Heppner will receive a resident state police officer to fill the vacancy created by the departure of Trooper Tom Dixon.

Shower slated for Irma Morrison

A general Household shower is being planned for Saturday March 17 for Irma Morrison who lost everything when her house on the ranch burned Jan. 3. The community is invited to attend and the place and time will be announced at a later date.

Irma and her girls, Michelle, Cheryl or Tass, and Merrie Jo, were very active in community and school affairs. All of their pictures taken over the years were lost. Mildred Eubanks and Dot Halvorsen are making up a photograph album, and would appreciate everyone having pictures they would like to donate to contact them or leave at the bank of Eastern Oregon.

Irma loved to cook and she lost all recipes in the fire. Dorothy Zinter, June Crowell, Fran Barnett, Darlene Meyer and Linda LaRue are making up a recipe box, and would like to have everyone submit their favorite recipes on a 3 x 5 card with your name on it. These can also be left at the Bank of Eastern Oregon.

Both the pictures and the recipes they would like to have as soon as possible so they can be completed before the shower.
