

BMCC evening class information in the mail; registration through March 9

Butterflies adorn Blue Mountain Community College's spring schedule of classes currently being mailed to Umatilla and Morrow county residents.

The "hint of spring" schedules carry information on evening and day classes offered both on the Pendleton campus and throughout the tw-county area. Spring term begins March 26.

Pre-registration for all courses will be accepted Feb. 26 to March 9. This early registration assures students a place in the class of their choice. Part-time and evening students may pre-register by using the mail-in form in the spring schedule. Evening students may also attend the first meeting of their class and register there.

Tuition must accompany pre-registration requests.

Forms for registration are available in the college Admissions Office, Morrow Hall. A full day of registration on campus March 26 is also set for students who do not register early.

Irrigon news

• Francis Rose Wilson • 922-3352

The Irrigon community is participating in the state-wide Heart Fund program headed by the Oregon Heart Association. The Rev. Carl Wright, pastor of the Baptist Church is the community chairman.

Heart week is February 25 to March 2. During this week volunteer workers will be visiting their friends and neighbors asking for a donation. The Heart Fund workers in Irrigon are: Vera Cooley, ner, Rachel Parson, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Eppenbach.

Diseases of the heart and blood vessels is still the number one cause of death in the United States according to the Oregon Heart Association. Three courses of action could reduce death and disability according to their research.

The women of the Irrigon Assembly of God met with Women's Ministries Representative, Margaret Thomas of Hermiston on Tuesday morning. The group has been inactive during the winter and hope to start again with renewed organization and enthusiasm.

Several couples from the Irrigon Church attended the senior citizens potluck dinner at the Hermiston Assembly of God at noon Tuesday.

The women of WWI Veterans Auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. Sylvia Moogan in East Umatilla.

Nine women gathered from Hermiston, Umatilla and Irrigon. Those from Irrigon were, Mary Stephens, Minnie Hoadley and Mildred Howell. For many years they have met from time to time and cut and sewed blocks of material to make robes for the Veterans Hospital in Walla Walla. They have sent as many as 60 lap robes to the hospital.

They are making the robes of polyester knits with an outing flannel back. The finished product is both attractive and useful.

The Irrigon City Council filled the position of recorder late in January when Lillian Cox was chosen from a number of candidates. The Tuesday session was her first council meeting, although she had been performing other duties for some time.

City manager Jack Baisden reported on a health hazard meeting. There appears to be some disagreement among various agencies concerning the seriousness of the condition existing in Irrigon. The exact wording used by the director of the Health Department in describing the health hazard was also questioned. That "conditions conducive to the propagation of diseases, which could contribute to the possibility of a health hazard" exists rather than the health hazard itself.

The finding by the Dept. of Health was the result of a hearing in Irrigon, Dec. 5, 1978, on septic tank use in the area and their polluting impact on ground and river water. Testimony given then overwhelmingly agreed that a health hazard exists in the area.

Baisden also reported on efforts to coordinate funding potential among various federal agencies. Although Dept. of Environmental Quality has "discretionary" funds and Housing and Urban Development could have funds available for sewer construction, Farmers Home Administration appears the most likely source for an early start on the project. A meeting on Friday in the Portland office of F.H.A. to work out details of funding was attended by the city manager and representatives of the council.

Mayor Vernon Stewart announced that the city's comprehensive plan had been reviewed by the Land Conservation and Development Commission and had been accepted. The plan is the result of approximately 4 years of planning and coordinating those plans with other interlocking and related government agencies. Planning grants were received to assist in the cost of the program.

Police officer Berry Kirkpatrick, who was hired the first of January is presently attending the police academy. This training is to be completed in early March when he will return to assume his local duties.

Unit Nine of the Oregon Retired Educators Association will meet Saturday, Feb. 24 at the Tapadera in Pendleton with business meeting at 11 a.m., luncheon at noon and the program at 1 p.m.

Vi Washburn, program chairman, said Eugene Hallman, of the firm Mautz and Hallman, will present a discussion on "Wills: the need, the pros and cons of making one."

Hallman is a graduate of the Portland State University and the Willamette University Law School. He worked as a clerk for Justice Edward Howell, Oregon Supreme Court, before coming to Pendleton in 1975. He will be accompanied by his wife, Michelle Hallman, attorney for Umatilla County. A question and answer period will follow the discussion.

LaVelle Province and a group of Pendleton members are in charge of arrangements.
