County Extension Office urges home garden spraying

Home gardeners are reminded that a regular summer spraying program is the best way to avoid a harvest of wormy cherries, apples and pears, according to John P. Nordheim, County Extension Agent.

Two insects, the codling moth and the cherry fruit fly, are making their annual appearance and control measures are needed.

The codling moth is the adult stage of the worm that infests apples and pears. The adults lay eggs throughout the summer, thus making control difficult.

Several insecticides provide excellent control. Diazinon and methoxychlor should be applied to apple and pear trees now and repeated at three week intervals through the summer. Insecticides should be applied before 7 a.m. or after 9 p.m. when temperatures are cool and when beneficial bees are not working.

No completely effective organic methods of controlling codling moth have been found. Some techniques may reduce damage. Parasitic wasps may be purchased but they may not be practical for the home owner.

After cherry fruit flies emerge in late May and early June, they begin laying eggs under the skin of developing cherries. The eggs hatch in five to seven days and maggots mature in 14 to 20 days.

Once eggs have been deposited in cherries, nothing can be done to prevent wormy cherries. Control is directed to killing the flies during the interval between their emergency and the time they deposit eggs, a period of about ten days. Methoxychlor, Sevin and Diazinon are recommended for use against the cherry fruit fly.

Sprays should be applied beginning in late May with repeat applications every seven to ten days until harvest. The flies rest on foliage other than cherry, so spray nearby trees and shrubs if possible.
