Heppner Council re-zones town

fies plans for bik routes, parks and streets. Mayor Jerry Sweeney thanked Hager for the Planning Commission's time and energy in preparing the report to the City Council.

The Council accepted the proposal by an auto recycling company in Hermiston, Peck's Auto Recycle, to enter the city and remove abandoned cars. A company spokesman, Steve Jones, told the Council that the company has met all planning guidelines in Umatilla County and involved in removing abandoned cars, refrigerators, washing machines and other junk.

"There would be no cost to the city to pick up abandoned autos," Jones said.

Two letters are sent to the deed-holder and to the car-owner, an appraiser offers the vehicle for sale and if the value is determined to be under $300 the company dismantles or crushes it.

Jones said the company might require a small storage area to hold the cars before removal is accomplished.

Police Chief Dean Gillman, who originally contacted the company, said the city has "a real problem with junkers; there's no where to put them." City Attorney Bill Kuhn recommended that the Council Committee consider approving a new abandoned car ordinance, and the council advised Kuhn to draw up a business license for the firm.

In other action, the council agreed to a $.50 cent hike per garbage can for the Heppner Disposal Service; officially approved a resolution supporting the proposed Willow Creek Dam; approved new swimming pool rates; recommended selling a portion of property west of Hager Creek Park in an oral auction starting at $300; learned from the City Administrator that shutoff and cutoff valves are needed for water pressure on Gilmore and Fairview Way, and learned that the Morgan Street Bridge needs fill dirt from the county. The city hopes to obtain permission for dirt this week from the County Court.

Priorities for future street repairs will be decided by the city this year and heading the list is a resurfacing project from First National to the Christian Church on Gale Street.

Police Chief Dean Gillman recommended installation of guardrails on Barratt Blvd. and received a promise from Mayor Sweeney that if funds are left over from the city's street repairs, funds would be diverted for the project.

The Department of Environmental Quality, said Mayor Sweeney, will consider the city's application for upgrading its sewer treatment plant on June 25.
