

Mr. & Mrs. Ronald Everette Stroble

Bergstrom-Stroble wed in Ione church

Shauna Marie Bergstrom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Bergstrom, Ione, was wed to Ronald Everette Stroble, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everette Stroble, Pendleton in a double ring ceremony June 16 at Valby Lutheran Church in Ione.

Pastor John Maas of Valby Lutheran Church officiated at the afternoon wedding.

The bride, wearing a white chiffon over white taffeta with French lace covering the bodice and neck set off with a single pearl necklace was given in marriage by her father.

Carley Drake, Heppner, the sister of the bride, served as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Kay Bergstrom, Salem, sister of the bride, Lori Bergstrom, Ione, sister of the bride, Cheri Frey, Tulelake, California, Marie Hall, Pendleton and Stephanie Cameron, Chehalis, Wash. The bridesmaids each carried three sonia roses and wore long yellow quiana dresses with voile flowered peach and yellow bodice overlays.

Candlelighters Ann McElligott, Helena, Mont. and Shelley Piquet, Golconda, Nevada wore peach quiana dresses with solid peach voile bodice overlays.

The best man was Paul Smith of Richland, and groomsmen, John Carter, Menlo Park, California, the groom's brother, Jim Carter, Portland, the groom's brother, Kim MacKelvie, Spokane, Greg Duff, Pendleton and Kelly Tubbs, Pendleton.

The bride carried a bouquet designed by Fern Marcum, her grandmother with large yellow roses with baby's breath and long white and yellow streamers. The design came from a bouquet carried by Esther Bergstrom, the bride's grandmother.

Jeff Bergstrom, the bride's cousin sang "Oh Perfect Love and "Wedding Prayer."

Rikka Tews, Ione and Kris Linder, Hermiston, played organ selections.

The mother of the bride wore a multi-colored flowered chiffon formal, and the groom's mother, a mave skirt and matching blouse formal.

Flower girls were Danielle Stefani, Ione, the bride's cousin, and Erika Bergstrom, Ione, the bride's cousin wearing yellow dotted Swiss dresses.

Following the ceremony, a ceremony was held at Valby Lutheran Church and another at 7 p.m. on the same evening at the Pendleton Country Club.

Dorothy Stefani, Ione, the bride's aunt, and Denise Locati, Portland, cut the wedding cake. Elsie Weeks, Forest Grove, the bride's aunt, served tea and coffee and Betty Bergstrom, the bride's aunt, served punch. Debbie McCoy attended the guest book.

The couple spent their honeymoon on St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands and Ft. Orlando Florida's "Disney World."

The groom is a graduate of the University of Oregon and employed by Western Heritage of Pendleton. The bride is a graduate of Oregon State University and employed by the Pilot Rock School District.

Local couple featured in state magazine

Ray French and wife Norma, Heppner, made the cover of the Oregon Cattleman's Association Magazine for the month of June.

Gardeners see variety of flower arranging styles and artistry

Ione Garden Club held a public flower arranging workshop at their July meeting at the Willows Grange Hall in Ione Wednesday.

Nancy Miller demonstrated construction of arrangements in two forms of design: asymmetrical triangle and crescent. There are nine principles to consider for success in floral artistry, Nancy said. Design, scale balance, repetition, rhythm, accent or focal point, harmony, unity.

Flowers, foliage, containers and tools were provided by members so that all might actively participate in making an arrangement. Mrs. Miller lead them through the steps in formation of an all-around table arrangement to be viewed from any side.

Delta Huber told how to choose containers based on the principle of harmony.

There was an exchange of floral materials brought by members from their gardens and guest Jeanette Logan shared oats and two kinds of wheat.

Hostess Helen Martin was in charge of refreshments.

The workshop was sponsored by Ione Garden Club as a community service to help interested persons learn how to prepare flower entries for exhibits at the Morrow County Fair and the public flower show planned by the club in September to celebrate their 30th anniversary, as well as for home, church and friends.

Ione Garden Club meets on the second Wednesday of each month in members homes and has room for a few more members. Those interested may contact either Pres. Delta Huber, Vice President Pat Pettyjohn, Secretary Joyce Buchanan or Treasurer Helen Martin.

AROUND ABOUT

With Justine Weatherford

It was good to stay around about Heppner all week and weekend and to have friends come to my home and to hear of other folks travels for a change.

Maybe most of you waited anxiously for the return to earth of Skylab last Wednesday. I didn't expect it to come down over North America—but somehow its fall in Australia was a surprise.

There are many stories floating about regarding the gasoline shortage and the long lines far away from our county. One story is that the ambassador from Iraq, Salah Omar, appealed to some leaders of the United Nations for more gasoline to be allocated to him and to other diplomats because waiting in line was affecting their work. This is rather strange as the land Salah represents has helped make oil as dear as gold and been a big cause of the gas lines.

His plight may have fallen on sympathetic ears. The U.N. authorities may now arrange for diplomats to get gas from a pump in the building's basement, Time Magazine reports.

Perhaps you also listened to President Carter's half-hour speech last Sunday evening. His concern about our loss of freedom and our historic independence and great American spirit and about the huge lack of confidence in all levels of government which has been demonstrated by voter apathy surely brings a positive response from me. He stressed that citizens must vote, must take part in their government and must regain faith and confidence in themselves and in their elected leaders. He asks that we make some changes in our habits and avoid unnecessary traveling.

A very nice recent social event that would please the President was the blockparty, potluck and backyard cookout that Bud and Romona Marshall and Cam and Jim Wishart put together in the attractive backyard of the Wishart's Gilmore Street home last week Thursday. Their immediate neighbors came and brought edible contributions. The gathering included the Dick Walters, who now live in the former Ron Palmer house, the Jim VanWinkles, who now live where Alice Hastings was, the Bob Burns from across the street, the Elwayne Bergstroms, who occupy the old Jim Driscoll home, Amanda Duvall and Jim Ackley, along with the Marshalls and Wisharts.

Reports are that the food and the company were great.

Senior Citizen News

Yesterday was the day in the woods for county seniors. Plans were made for at least 30 from Heppner and Ione and a group from Irrigon and other county areas to spend most of the day at Cutsforth Park and to enjoy a super picnic at noon.

On recent and coming Thursday afternoons the ladies who come to the craft group at the Heppner Neighborhood Center are creating interesting and useful craft items which will be put on sale at the Sidewalk Bazaar, an annual event that is set for Friday, July 27. They can use more hands to work at the craft projects and will probably be glad to have help with arranging and selling their items on the big Friday.

The Cornerstone

A musical ensemble from Pacific Lutheran Ceremony, Tacoma will perform tonight at Hope Lutheran Church in Heppner. The seven member group will begin their program of religious selections at 8 p.m.

Tacoma ensemble to appear in Heppner

Christian folk and contemporary music will be presented here in Heppner Thursday, July 19, by Cornerstone, an eight-member vocal ensemble from Pacific Lutheran University in Tacoma, Wash.

The Cornerstone performance will be presented at Hope Lutheran Church at 8 p.m.

The PLU vocal group is currently on a two-month concert tour of 6 western states, including Washington, Oregon, Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, and Utah. Sixty concerts are on the tour itinerary.

Frank Calsbeek and Jim Dicecco, both recent PLU graduates, are co-directors of the group. Calsbeek, a bass, also plays bass guitar and banjo. Dicecco, a tenor, plays guitar. In all, seven members of the group double as instrumentalists.

Since its organization last fall, Cornerstone has appeared in concerts throughout Western Washington. The variety of music presented, "from mellow to lively, from original to familiar," is intended to appeal to people of all ages, according to Calsbeek.

The concert tour is sponsored by the PLU Church Relations Office.

A free will offering will be taken.
