Irrigon man takes Army course in Maryland

Pfc. Guy L. Knight, son of Mrs. Clara Knight of Irrigon, is attending a wheeled-vehicle mechanic course at the U.S. Army Ordnance and Chemical Center and School, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md.

During the course, students are trained to perform organizational maintenance and assist in the repair of automotive vehicles and associated equipment. They become familiarized with the functioning of automotive wheeled-vehicle components, operating principles of internal combustion engines, fundamentals of fuel and electrical systems, and the use of organizational and test equipment.

Knight entered the Army in September 1979.

His father, Lee Rustien, lives in Portland.

Forest grazing aids cattle weight gain

Grazing in the forest can improve the weight gains of beef cattle, at least on the summer ranges of northeastern Oregon's Blue Mountains, researchers at Oregon State University's Eastern Oregon Agricultural Research Center at Union have learned.

"It appears that if you could manipulate it, cattle would do best in a lot of summer grazing areas in the Blue Mountains if they started out on grassland range in early summer, then were moved to forests when the open grasslands started drying up," said Martin Vavra, superintendent of OSI's Union research station near La Grande.

Vavra said he bases his conclusion on cooperative tests run in the summers of 1976, 1977 and 1978 on a 10-square-mile tract of the U.S. Forest Service's Starkey Experimental Range and Forest in the Blue Mountains.

Tax credit available to families

Certain Oregon families who have earned income below $10,000 and have at least one child living with them may qualify for the Earned Income Credit (EIC). The EIC is a refundable tax credit. For 1979 the maximum credit is $500, according to Internal Revenue Service information.

For the first time, recipients may receive their EIC in advance payments along with their paychecks, this will serve as an option to claiming the credit on an income tax return and receiving it in a lump sum.

There are other qualifications in addition to earning below $10,000 and having a child live with you. However, families who think they might qualify, based on these two basic requirements, may contact their local IRS office.

Approximately 150 friends attended Don Kenney's birthday party Saturday night. They gathered at the Lions Clubhouse to honor him on his 75th birthday. Kenney has been active in community affairs for many years.

His children gave the party and his wife, Freda, said she didn't lift a finger to help because the children "took care of everything." His children include Jim of Portland, Bob and George of Irrigon and Fay Hermans of Waitsburg, Wash. Fay has won honors in worldwide quarter-horse competition and presently teaches a class of 60 in horsemanship.

The Good News Singers will be at the Irrigon Assembly of God church Sunday to participate in the 11 a.m. service.

The high school and junior high classes of the Sunday School had an outing at Hat Rock Park last Sunday afternoon. They had planned to go to Cutsforth Park for a "Fun in the Snow" outing only to discover there was not enough snow.

On Wednesday night a former pastor, Wesley Cronk, was present and gave a program of his favorite gospel songs. He was returning to Alaska after visiting family and friends in Oregon, Washington, and California.

Ivan Dike has returned to his home after spending a month at St. Anthony's Hospital in Pendleton. He and his wife are managers of the Irrigon Motel and Apartments.

Tammy Rock is home from Hawaii, where she spent a month with a geology class from Whitworth College in Spokane.

The city employees have been busy thawing out pipe lines and frozen meters. One large water meter that required help was to the Columbia View Fellowship Church.
