

Morrow County budget committee searches for wisdom

The budget committee overruled the committee that recently looked into the possibility of combining the two courts. That committee ruled to keep the justice system in the county as it is but the budget committee overturned that decision and will cut the Heppner justice position to four days. The county court will adopt that policy at its next meeting.

There was also considerable discussion Monday about the county clerk's request to add one more full-time position to her staff.

Barbara Bloodworth has 1½ positions in her office and she wants 2½ positions. This will add another $9,342 to her budget. Bloodworth said with the addition of the district court, there will be extra filing five days a week. She said circuit filing has increased and so another position is needed.

She also said they all should be paid on the same pay scale. "All my girls have to know how to do everything," she said.

"You can't understand what goes on and I'd like for all of you to come down to the office and see," she continued. "Sadie (Farrish, the preceding clerk) should have had more help."

"She never asked for it," budget member Daniel Creamer said.

Commissioner Krebs said all of the employees should not be paid on the same step scale because of the new policy of salaries the county is adopting.

Bloodworth said her half-time employee will probably not come back at the new pay scale because it would mean a cut in pay.

Commissioner McCoy said the county does not want to lose an experienced employee so the budget committee agreed to make an exception and allow her to receive the higher pay scale.

"I was in their same shoes 10 years ago and I know how it is," Bloodworth said. "I would rather my girls made a decent living wage than to see my salary increased that high."

The budget committee also talked with Sylvia McDaniel, county treasurer. The committee wants the county treasury department to have banks bid on the interest it will pay to have the county put its funds in the bank.

Budget committee member

Terry Thompson said "We should keep the money in the county even if we could get more (in interest) somewhere else."

The committee asked Sylvia McDaniel how she thinks the containing of the tax collector and the treasurer will work.

She said she did not know how an inexperienced person will be able to do it.

"I don't think people realize what a burden being the treasurer is," she answered.

Seminars on grain, livestock planned at Pendleton's BMCC

National Farmers Organization seminars on grain and livestock production will be held in Pendleton on Tuesday, March 18, from 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9:30 p.m., at Morrow Hall at Blue Mountain Community College.

Don Peterson, grain coordinator for the National Farmers Organization, said tickets are $10. They may be purchased from Harold Snider, Lloyd McNary, Carl Marquardt, Dave Baker or Don Peterson.

Extension sponsors horse riding workshop

Oregon's first 4-H trail riding and horse camping workshop will be held in May, according to John Nordheim, Morrow County Extension Service agent.

The workshop, for up to 100 4-H leaders and Oregon State University Extension Service staff members, will be May 16-18 at the Oregon 4-H Center near Salem. Those wishing to attend must register with the county extension office by April 1.

The program is designed to teach 4-H leaders and others how to plan and conduct trail rides and camping programs for the more than 6,000 young people enrolled in Oregon's 4-H horse project.

Topics will cover trail rides and camping, preparation for rides, outdoor education, equipment, meal preparation, and first-aid for both horse and rider. Although the workshop is being supported by a grant from the Oregon 4-H Foundation, participants will be charged $19 each to cover the cost of meals and lodging.

Additional information about the workshop is available from the Morrow County Extension office in Heppner.
