Senior citizen news

Senior citizen activity last week included two bi-monthly meetings.

On Monday, March 24, 10

seniors traveled to Irrigon by bus to attend the Morrow County Senior Citizen Advisory Council meeting. Doris Gollyhorn, Ione, presided. Reports were given on the Nutrition Program and the Homemaker Program. It was announced that Suzanne Jensen, the tri-county Homemaker Supervisor, would be taking on some leadership of the Nutrition Program while Rogena Marks is on leave. Sue will also continue as homemaker supervisor for Morrow, Gilliam and Wheeler counties.

Meal site reports reveal that Irrigon's Monday dinners are attracting the largest attendance in the county. Heppner believes that its attendance is rising gradually since the move to the new diningroom. Ione is trying hard to bolster its sagging attendance.

Considerable time was spent discussing the better use of the county bus. Transportation Chairman Truman Messenger said it was very disappointing to set up bus trips, line up a qualified driver, and then have those who had indicated that they wanted to make the trip reconsider and decide not to travel as they had planned.

The 10 seniors from Heppner, Lexington and Ione joined the 70 who eat regularly for Monday night dinner at Irrigon.

On Thursday, March 27, eight Morrow seniors traveled to Condon in private cars to attend the bi-monthly, five-county Area Agency on Aging meeting. Several also attended the mealsite meeting before noon. Paul W. Jones presided at the AAA meeting. Reports were given concerning the activities in each county. The matter of the budget for the area was carefully considered. Area Director Rollin Reynolds of the AAA sector of the East Central Oregon Association of Counties assisted presiding officer Jones in explaining the budget and some anticipated changes. It seems that the monies coming under the federal Title III, Title IV A and Title V appropriations have not been confirmed. The state's Oregon Project Independence budget has been re-worked several times but is still not ready for confirmation.

Yesterday, May 2, County Health Nurse Pat Wright conducted a free blood pressure clinic at the Heppner Neighborhood Center.

The Ione Senior Citizens have scheduled a bus trip to Pendleton on Saturday, April 12. They will leave the United Church of Christ at 10 a.m., and Dot Halvorsen will be driving. The group will go to Pendleton to look around and to have dinner at The Kings Table. They plan to return to Ione in the late afternoon.

It is hoped more groups will be scheduling bus trips as it is possible that if Morrow County Seniors and other groups do not make more use of the bus it could be taken away from this county.

Senior dinners at the county mealsites next week are:

At Irrigon April 14—orange juice, hamburger and gravy over rice, potato rounds, creamed peas and carrots, three-bean salad, artichokes and peanut butter filled celery relishes, hot bread, butter and apple jelly and birthday cake and applesauce.

At Heppner, April 15—orange juice, stew with vegetables, cheese sticks, Waldorf salad, plain and garlic bread, banana pudding with topping.

At Ione and Heppner April 16—meatloaf with tomato sauce baked sliced potatoes, molded lime jello and grapefruit-pineapple salad, buttered carrots, cornbread and fruit pie.
