

Richards—Rockwell nuptials performed

Maria M. Rockwell and David L. Richards, both of Corvallis, were married at the Irrigon Baptist Church June 14 by the Rev. Carl Riley. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Refugio Cardenas of Granger, Wash. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Pete

Richards of Irrigon. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Monse Guerra. Her wedding dress had a white lace bodice decorated with small pearls. The long lace sleeves were ruffled at the wrist. The long skirt had lace panels on the sides and a long train. The bride wore a shoulder-length ated with small pearls. Her flowers were a blue daisy and baby breath arrangement. The maid of honor was Irene Julian, who wore a dark blue two-piece suit. The groom chose Ken Yoder for his best man. The ushers were Robert and Donald Richards, brothers of the groom.

The nuptial music was by Marilyn Hellberg. Rhonda Yoder was the flower girl, while the bride's son, Richard Rockwell, was the ring bearer.

At the reception the bride and groom took the first cut of the three-tiered cake topped with daisies and two wedding bells. The brides aunt, Paula Guerra, served the guests.

The bride attended high school in Granger and is employed in Corvallis as a secretary to the Federal Credit Union.

The groom is a graduate of Riverside High school in Boardman, and is a senior at Oregon State University in science education. After a trip to Seattle, the Richards plan a home in Corvallis.

Camp now a memory

Pouring rain and happy clowns, greeted the "Muppet" campers as they arrive at 4-H camp Sunday at Cutsforth Park.

Undaunted by the weather, the plus 50 campers and counselors settled in for fun filled days and evenings. Names like "Animal House", "Miss Piggy's Parlor", and "Kermit's Hermits", appeared over doorways in tents, and posters depicting the popular Muppets decorated the dining hall almost instantly.

Song leaders, Lottie Laughlin and Larry Palmer soon had the kid's singing well remembered camp songs. Camp was underway.

Days were filled with crafts, hikes, exploring, and getting to know new freinds from all parts of the county. Evenings were the times for skits, jokes, ceremonies, and songs around the campfire, or the fireplace in the dining hall.

Few sunny minutes occurred during the camp, but the cool weather and drizzles did not dim the enthusiasm of campers or counselors. Camp is a special time for 4-H members fourth through seventh grades. They enjoy every minute of their time in the mountain setting.

Good food helps make the camp experience memorable, said volunteer camp cook, Francine Evans of Irrigon. Homemade doughnuts, hot rolls, pizza, spaghetti, and other goodies that kids like make up her menus, and washing dishes after a tasty meal doesn't even seem like a chore to those campers on kitchen duty.

Also popular with the campers were assistant cooks and helpers for the camp, Bob and Sharon Harrison of Lexington. John Nordheim and Birdine Tullis, extension service, were camp directors. Camp nurse, Eunice McElligott, checked the health of all campers each day.

Counselors were: Angie Evans, Todd Harrison, Larry Palmer, Paula Palmer, Jay Keithley, Nancy Miller, Lottie Laughlin, Shane Laughlin, and Heather Winter. Each counselor was given the responsibility for a tent family of four or five campers. Concerned, sensitive counselors make a camp a good experience for 4-H'ers since some are having their first experience at camping, or being away from home without their parents.

All counselors shared responsibilities for activities at the camp, assisting with craft classes, leading hikes, games, and table fun, as well as preparing evening programs and awards which were presented at the closing ceremony Wednesday. Campers were transported to and from camp by truck, which was provided and driven by Bob Harrison.

Muppets at camp were: Kim George, Amy Hobbs, Patty McElligott, Shannon McLaughlin, Jennifer Rill, Susan Evans, Deena Hamms, Brenda Mathis, Tareena Nash, Dawn Palmer, Penny Connor, Neila Corriell, Kimberly Wright, Cindy Stroeber, Renee Murrell, Trina Palmer, Tonja Van Dorn, Jimmy Cason, Ken Curtis, Stan Sporseen, Bert Cason, John Coen, Jason Palmer, Ron Sopraseen, Gibb Evans, Travis Harrison, Kevin Hughes, Marion McMillan, Duane Ball, Swayne Evans, Trent Harrison, and Mike Van Schoiack.

A highlight of camp each year is the dreamboat ceremony. Each tent makes a "dreamboat" with lighted candles, which is placed in the pond just before lights out on the last night of camp. Tradition tells us that if the dreamboat reaches the other side of the pond, the special wish which the campers have made as they set it sail, will come true. It is a beautiful, and remembered sight, to see the little boats, decorated with moss, flowers, and greenery with candles glowing, slowly cross the pond in the darkness.

We hope that 4-H camp is an experience that helps 4-H'ers learn and grow and is one more step in helping their dreams come true. Thanks to all who helped make camp 1980 successful.
