

Smith to visit Boardman, County Fair on Aug. 20

Second District Republican nominee for Congress Denny Smith will be traveling to Morrow County on Wednesday, Aug. 20.

Smith's first stop in the county will be at Boardman where he will attend a no-host luncheon at the Nomad restaurant.

Leaving Boardman, his next stop will be downtown Heppner. He is scheduled to visit with local business people here on Main Street at 2 p.m.

At 3 p.m. Smith will visit the Kinzua plant in Heppner.

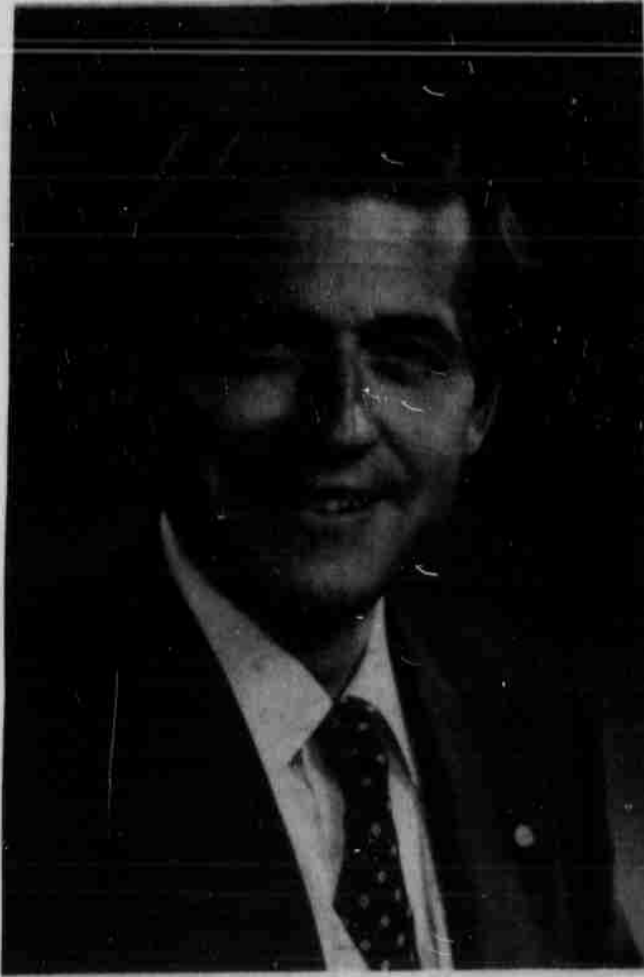

At 5 p.m. the public will have an opportunity to meet with Smith and discuss any concerns that they may have at the Fairgrounds. Everyone is invited to enjoy a casual dinner at the Snack Shack and Fair Park and meet informally with Mr. Smith and his aides.

Smith will also visit the Republican Fair booth and will wind up his visit at the 4-H

Livestock Barns for the Fat Stock Auction.

"This will be a wonderful time to support the Fair, the 4-H Snack Shack and get acquainted with our next Congressman Denny Smith," said Kenny Turner, Chairman of the Morrow County Smith for Congress campaign.

Also available at the Fair and Republican Fair booth will be many copies of Kathy Smith's budget cutting recipe books, added Turner.

Lookout to Monitor Channel 9

Heppner Ranger District, Umatilla National Forest, has placed a citizens band radio on Madison Butte Lookout, the lookout will monitor Channel 9, the emergency channel.

The radio has been placed there to enable forest visitors to report fires and request assistance in emergency situations that require medical or law enforcement personnel.

If the need arises, dial Channel 9 and call Madison.

Training event attracts many

The pre-fair training event held last week for all 4-H girls attracted a larger than anticipated crowd of members and parents and created enthusiasm for fair events.

Girls were given instruction and encouragement on participation in style revue, interviews with judges, participating in food contests, consumer information, and grooming.

The program was planned by Erin Evans, University of Idaho student in Home Economics, and former 4-H member. Make up and grooming tips were by Jan Stroeber; all-about-style revue by Francine Evans; interview judging by Ruth McCabe, assisted by Kim Wright, Noella Rill and Merry DeSpain. Fashion show and consumer information was by Erin, with assistance from Mari and Angie Evans. All girls had the opportunity to practice modeling with instruction by Erin. Lunch was a "make a nutritious sandwich" informal luncheon.

The girls have it all together for fair...they are enthusiastic and ready to show you what they have learned and accomplished in 4-H this year. See them at the public style show Monday, August 18, at 8 p.m. in the main pavilion at the fair grounds.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture will soon begin approving grants to help finance the construction of fuel alcohol and methane plants on the nation's farms. Secretary of Agriculture Bob Berglund said.

The Department of Energy is to supply $2.3 million which will be used to supplement loans and loan guarantees from the USDA's Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) to boost alcohol production.

The Farmers Home Administration has set aside $10 million in farm loans and $100 million in business and industry loan guarantees for alcohol and methane production.

Woolen garments to be on display

Natural fiber fabrics are way up there in the world of fashion, with wool one of the most popular for fall and winter. Many 4-H clothing members will be exhibiting woolen garments in both the construction class and the style revue.

Special awards to encourage 4-H'ers to sew or knit with wool, are offered this year by the Auxillary of the Wool Growers, and by Hank and Dode Krebs of Ione.

Those who exhibit wool garments at county fair are also eligible to participate in the district "Make It Yourself with Wool" Contest which is held in late fall.

When you visit the clothing and knitting project area at county fair, be sure to take note of the many ways the 4-H girls use wool. Their construction techniques may give you some hints on handling the popular fabric, as well as current fashion trends.

Style revue shows improved skills and confidence

Watching the 4-H members from their first style revue appearance, on through their years of 4-H, one can see a growth of confidence and poise, as well as improved sewing or knitting skills and selection of fabrics, & styles from year to year.

A special contest in this county, the "Favorite Outfit", allows girls or boys to model garments they have either made, or purchased. Here the members model some of the current fads of youth, or perhaps just an outfit that they have liked and worn a lot. This contest is judged with twenty-five percent on the participant's poise, attitude, etc.; fifty percent on the outfit on the member, and twenty-five percent on value for money spent.

Objectives of the contest are to encourage wise selection of purchased items, and to allow all 4-H girls or boys the opportunity to be a part of the public style show.

State Fair participants are picked from the intermediate and senior age groups. Come on out to Fairgrounds, Monday evening, August 18, 8 p.m. The public style is for you...and a good audience is much appreciated by the members.

Abrams named chairman of Frohnmayer campaign

Bob Abrams, Heppner attorney and past Morrow Co. district attorney, has been named Morrow County Chairman of the Dave Frohnmayer for Attorney General Campaign.

Abrams, who has been the Heppner School Board attorney since 1967, is past president of the Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Blue Mountain Community College Board.

"I think Dave Frohnmayer is one of the best candidates I have seen for Attorney General in the 28 years of my practice as an active attorney in Oregon," said Abrams.

I find him extremely impressive. He is intelligent and honest, and can converse with just about anyone, which is important," Abrams continued. "He has an outstanding background."

"I am delighted to have someone of Bob's stature and community involvement helping my campaign," said Frohnmayer.

"We plan the largest grass roots campaign ever held for Attorney General in Oregon," continued Frohnmayer. "I am looking forward to working with Bob Abrams and my many helpful friends and supporters in Morrow County."

Watch for seasonal sales

To keep ahead of inflation and rising costs today takes time and planning. Watching for special sales and bargains is one way to keep ahead. While not all stores follow a timetable for sales, many have traditional sales at various seasons, or months. Keep an eye out for seasonal sales. In August, you might watch for car clearances to get ready for new models, back to school sales, white sales, and final storewide clearances.

This is also the time stores might have special sales on camping equipment and sporting goods; preseason coat sales, swimwear, and women's pre-seasonal clothing events.

Ash questions answered

The June 12 eruption of Mt. St. Helens left parts of Northwestern Oregon covered with volcanic ash and many Oregonians who live there wondering what to do about it.

The Oregon State University Extension Service offices in Oregon's 36 counties are now prepared to help answer these questions.

Some volcanic ash questions that OSU Extension agents will be able to respond to include: how to cope with ash in the home, how to protect livestock from ash, what effect ash will have on farm crops, physical dangers of inhaling ash, and the effects of volcanic dust on food processing and machinery performance.

More than ribbons to be won

There are more than ribbons to be won at the 1980 State Fair. Exhibitors have the opportunity to take home silver trays, microwave ovens, sacks of sugar or flour, blankets, a sewing machine, canning jars, kitchen-ware, a vacuum cleaner, other home equipment, and cash prizes.

"Now is the time to sign up to exhibit your best cooking or baking effort, prize livestock, most perfect flower, favorite photo, or result of your long-time hobby," says Dwight Butt, fair director.

"If you have some favorite item you want to show off to your friends and neighbors and perhaps win a prize, write to the Oregon State Fair, 2330 17th St. N.E. Salem, Oregon.

Sugarless preserves need extra care

Some persons preserve fruit without sugar for health reasons, states Morrow and Umatilla Counties Home Economist Molly Saul. Fruit, she says, may be canned or frozen without adding sugar, but sugar is an important ingredient in jams and jellies.

Mrs. Saul points out that it isn't possible to reduce the amount of sugar in a traditional jam or jelly recipe without changing the consistency and keeping the quality of the product. Proper amounts of fruit, pectin, acid and sugar are needed to make these products gel. In addition, the sugar acts as a preserving agent.

Certain "no" or "low" sugar jam and jelly recipes have been developed using gelatin, pectin, or starch to form the gel. Mrs. Saul says, but the flavor and consistency of these products are sometimes quite different from the "real thing." Nor do these products have the same keeping quality as jams and jellies made with the full amount of sugar as a preservative. Therefore, the "diet" jams and jellies must be stored differently.

Traditional jellies can be sealed with a layer of paraffin, and the sugar will prevent the growth of microorganisms, Mrs. Saul says. However, as an added precaution, jams should be sealed with canning lids and processed in a water bath canner for 5 minutes to destroy microorganisms that might be present. In contrast, the jams and jellies with little or no added sugar should be kept refrigerated. The cool temperature will prevent growth of microorganisms. If these products are to be stored for a long period of time, freezer storage is recommended.

4-H to offer reduce rates for State Fair

Again this year, persons planning to attend the Oregon State Fair Aug. 23-Sept. 1, can save money and support Oregon's 4-H program by buying their tickets in advance.

According to Ron Campbell, executive director, the Oregon 4-H Foundation has an exclusive arrangement with the State Fair to sell $3 admission tickets for $2.50. The foundation will receive 50 cents from each ticket sold.

Tickets will go on sale about Aug. 1, at Oregon Fred Meyer stores and at county offices of the Oregon State University Extension Service.

The advanced ticket sale plan was used the last two years and raised several thousand dollars for the foundation to use in support of the Extension Service's youth education program.

The foundation receives money from the private sector to be used to help finance new 4-H program ideas, to support volunteer 4-H leader and 4-H member training programs, and to develop the Oregon 4-H Center near Salem, Campbell explained.
