

AAUW Artifactory to offer tempting displays

Plans for the annual AAUW Artifactory are well under way. Among the tempting displays planned so far by local craftsmen are silk flower arrangements, silver jewelry, wooden toys, homemade mints, quilting, ornaments, wreaths, paintings, wheat weaving, breads, and inexpensive gifts which are especially for children to purchase.

The fair is scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 6. Individuals and groups with handcrafted items or baked goods to sell are encouraged to reserve table space now. This may be done by calling Joy Krein, 676-9956, Inez Erwin, 676-5806, or Marie Boor (evenings), 422-7568.

Ione girl models way to state wool contest

Petite Diann Morter, Ione, modeled her way to the state 'Make it With Wool Contest' by winning the junior division of the district contest last Saturday, at Blue Mountain

Community College in Pendleton.

Her choice for the contest was a black Pendleton wool blazer, vest and bias-plaid skirt, accessorized with black hat and short boots. Every stitch in the tailored outfit was hand tailored. She completed the outfit with the popular white shirt and gold chains. Although tiny in size, her modeling and sewing skills have earned her the right to compete for a state championship for the second time. Two years ago she participated in the state event where she received a special award and was among the top participants in her division.

The district contest was held under the sponsorship of the Auxiliary of the Wool Growers. Dorris Doherty, Pilot Rock, is district director of the contest. Tedde Holcomb, also of Pilot Rock, served as narrator of the public contest. Judges were Debbie Lee, Pendleton, Roberta Anderson, Pilot Rock, and Mickey Madison, Ione.

Sponsors, besides the Oregon Wool Growers Association, included Burnhams Buttonhole, Doherty's Sheep Ranch, Tom Watson, Shirley Rugg, Jim West, Henry Krebs, and Wavel Wilkinson. The state 'Make it With Wool Contest' will be held at the Marriot Hotel, Portland, Nov. 22. The Oregon Cattlemen and Oregon Sheep Growers will be meeting at the hotel this year on that date, so Diann is assured of an admiring crowd of people from home as an audience.

Other local girls who competed in the contest are Patti McElligott, Ione; Lori Phillips, Boardman, and Veronica McDonough, Irrigon.

Bridge Creek Flats roads to remain open

Complete road closure of the Bridge Creek Flats area, a popular winter range for a large elk herd, located approximately seven miles south of Ukiah, will be postponed until Dec. 17 this year, according to Herb Rudolph, forest supervisor of the Umatilla National Forest.

Many of the secondary roads in this area are closed all year. All roads south of Forest Road No. 52 have been closed during the winter period beginning Dec. 1.

This year's closure will not take effect until after a special antlerless elk season, Dec. 6-14. The old state road across the Bridge Creek Wildlife Area, Forest Road 5209, and Forest Road 5212 will remain open to vehicle travel during this December hunt.

During this 16-day period, the restrictions on no motor vehicles over 40 inches in width on roads, trails, and cross country will still be in effect on the west end of National Forest land on Bridge Creek Flats.

The modification of the motor vehicle travel closure for the special antlerless hunt has been brought about by agreement between the U.S. Forest Service and the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife.

The principal objective of the special hunt is to achieve an increased antlerless harvest by allowing easier access during the time period when animals are concentrated. The higher harvest is necessary to keep elk numbers in balance with available forage on the winter and spring ranges.
