

Jeff and Kathie Maben buy Tom's Chevron

Jeff Maben, owner of Heppner Chevron

In another recent business change in downtown Heppner, Tom's Chevron has a new owner - and a new name.

Jeff and Kathie Maben bought the station from Tom and Donna Troxell the end of October and have renamed it Heppner Chevron.

Tom began working for the Morrow County Road Dept. on Oct. 20 as a mechanic. The Troxells, who owned the station for around two years, have two children.

The Mabens formerly worked at the Horseshoe Hereford Ranch near Ruggs. They and their daughter, Tara, 3, are in the process of moving in to Heppner. The Mabens are also expecting a new baby.

Souper Seamers have meeting their skirts.

Cookies were provided by Nance Wright and punch was provided by Merry DeSpain.

The next meeting will be Nov. 29, at 1 p.m. at Judy's house. Punch will be provided by Nance and cookies will be provided by Merry.

School readiness program slated Nov. 20

The last session of the school readiness program has been scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 20, at 7 p.m. at the Heppner Elementary School multi-purpose room. Pat Edmundson, first grade teacher has announced.

The program, which began last spring, is geared for children from three to six years old, but, says Edmundson, all ages are welcome.

Beverly McIntyre DeBorde of the Umatilla-Morrow Education Service District will

Burning Wood

by Birdine Tullis, Extension Service

To answer many questions of local residents regarding burning wood as an alternate energy source, Maurice Mitchell, OSU Extension Forestry agent, will offer a program on that topic Dec. 4 at 7:30 p.m.

Stove efficiency and selection, costs involved in cutting your own wood, characteristics of the wood commonly available for use locally, as well as storage safety and other topics of interest to those considering the addition of a wood-burning stove will be discussed.

Mitchell, who shares his time between Grant and Morrow counties, is well qualified to present the topic. He not only is a forestry specialist, but practices what he preaches. His new home in John Day is heated by wood stoves.

Everyone is invited to attend the free meeting to learn all about burning wood.

Pasta Programs

Variety noodles, won tons, manicotti, noodle salad, ricotti stuffed shells, and other pasta goodies were enjoyed by the crowd who attended the pasta program in Heppner last Tuesday night.

Special guest speaker, Ivan Packard, administrator, Oregon Wheat Commission, told of the work of that agency in promoting the use of wheat and research as well as the importance of the wheat dollar to the local economy.

Demonstrations included preparation of pasta in a food processor and noodle roller and cutter by Birdine Tullis; whole wheat noodles made entirely by hand method by Jean Brazell; won tons by Janet, Kevin, and Nina, Brok and Bryce Tucker. Molly Saul served as moderator and included consumer information on nutrition, where to buy the products, and the history and background of pasta.

Samples of the wide variety of pasta snacks prepared by Lou Ann Wolfe, public relations for Oregon Wheat Growers, chicken and shrimp noodle salad, sausage and ricotti stuffed giant shells, won tons, whole wheat noodles, prepared by demonstrators, and manicotti by Marcia Anderson.

Pastas are perfect for family meals, adding variety and good nutrition. Since pastas have become so popular recently, consumers will find a greater variety available in supermarkets and groceries.

Copies of the recipes given out at the two pasta programs are available free at the extension offices in Morrow and Umatilla counties.

Sponsors were Extension Service, Wheat Commission, Wheat Growers League, and Wheathearts.
