Beware of bogus pipeline job info kits

To the Editor:

Those of us affiliated with the Alaska Highway Pipeline Project and concerned about the appearance of ads around the country which purport to sell information that will enable a person to land a "high paying job" on our project. We would appreciate your cooperation in warning readers in your area that some of the information contained in these so-called "job information kits" is misleading.

To begin with, our current project schedule calls for pipeline construction to commence in 1983. As a result, we will not be doing any substantial hiring until at least 1982. Even then, most hiring will be done through execution contractors who will be announced at the appropriate time in the "Alaskan Newsline," our monthly newsletter, and through press releases.

In addition, detailed information concerning the terms and conditions of employment and the selection of those contractors who will perform the field construction of our project is not available at this time. These matters will be the subject of federal and state regulations, collective bargaining agreements, and competitive bidding practices.

Further, much of the material in these "job information kits" is available free from a variety of sources, including the State of Alaska's Departments of Labor and Commerce. No other distributions are authorized or sanctioned by the sponsor companies for the project, except through legitimate media outlets such as your publication.

Therefore, we would appreciate any effort on your part to caution readers in your area about these "job information kits." It would be a shame to have people throw away good money on these materials or to add to Alaska's long list of unemployed persons because of them.

Your interest and cooperation in this matter are appreciated.

Peter W. Steven,
vice president,
administration
Northwest Alaskan Pipeline Company.

What's your opinion?

Question of the week: "Do you think 1981 will be better than 1980 was?"

"I'm hoping so," says Lydia Wilson, Heppner, "because the last year has been an awful one - pay and everything. I think us old folks should have a little more than we're getting."

School advisory committee to meet Jan. 8

County Court signs contract for county operations analysis

The Morrow County Court signed a contract last week to have an independent analysis done of county operations, to determine ways to increase efficiency and personnel productivity, and determine the feasibility of a computer system at the courthouse.

The contract is with Niemi, Holland and Scott, certified public accountants out of Portland and the study will cost $5,600.

County Judge Don McElligott said, among other things, that the study will look at ways to speed the flow of tax receipts into county investments, and look at alternate ways to handle process serving.

In other business at the Wednesday meeting, the court:

- re-appointed Dr. L. D. Tibbles, Heppner, as County Health Officer.

- appointed Helen Proudfoot, Ione, and Matt Doherty, Irrigon, to the county mental health board.

- appointed George Kenney, Irrigon, to the county planning commission and re-appointed Gene Trumbull to the commission.

- appointed Jean Brazzele as an alternate to Brok Tucker on the board of East Central Oregon Association of Counties.

- purchased a 1981 Dodge Diplomat to replace a 1979 model sheriff's automobile.
