

and Steve Jones placed third. Are the residents of Heppner for or against the establishment of a dog facility by Morrow County? This issue will be placed on the primary ballot allowing residents to express their opinions on the dog situation in Heppner. This action was the first step taken by the City Council following a special meeting Monday night which approximately 28 interested city residents attended to voice their opinions on the controversial subject. At the Chamber of Commerce meeting last Monday President Larry Mills read a letter from Pacific Gas Transmission Company stating they are seeking the backing of the chamber for the proposed Arctic Gas Line. Presently the Pacific Gas Transmission Co. is paying $132,000 in taxes to Morrow County for the existing right-of-way. When the proposed project is completed the taxes paid to county should double. The 1976 Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) has been approved for the county, according to David McLeod, Executive Director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office. This program provides cost-sharing of 75 per cent of eligible costs of performing conservation and pollution abatement practices. Heppner native, Edward M. Kenny, administrative assistant for the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Spokane has announced retirement plans. Catherine McElligott, Inne High School has been named 1975-76 Betty Crocker Family Leader of Tomorrow.

Woodland owner assoc. to organize March 5

An organizational meeting will be held March 5 to form an association of Morrow County woodland owners. Maurice Mitchell, Extension Forestry agent, has announced. The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the conference room of the Columbia Basin Cooperative in Heppner. All forest landowners are encouraged to attend and participate in the formation of this group, says Mitchell. Other interested individuals who are not forest landowners are also invited to attend.

"The purpose of a woodland association is to provide an organized effort in providing educational opportunities to its members concerning the total management of their forest resource. This includes the establishment, production, harvesting and marketing problems associated with raising timber products as a crop. Another important benefit of an organized group is its ability to better influence legislative decisions concerning taxation, regulation and public policy than is the individual owner. It is through group effort that other organizations attempt to legislate policy detrimental to the landowners and it is only through an organized effort that the forest landowners may offer a strong restraint," said Mitchell.

"All forest landowners should plan to attend this important organizational meeting so their input may be incorporated from the beginning," he added.
