Museum not just a place for stray relatives

How many times have you taken a Saturday or Sunday afternoon off with the family and stopped by the Heppner Museum?

If you're like me, the answer is not often. Oh sure, the museum is a nice looking brick building to drive by once or twice a day. Very few cars are ever parked out front, but plenty spaces are designated, just in case. And should a stray relative or friend drop in from out of town requiring instant entertaining, where does one go? Suddenly, that handsome red-brick building on Main Street seems like just the place. It's amazing how much one can learn from their hometown museum; why, almost as much as the visitor!

The other day my husband, Larry, and I were visiting with a couple who had been living in Morrow County a good many years, and out of the conversation I was amazed to learn that neither of them had ever set foot in the Heppner Museum. Then I realized that I too hadn't truly seen all the displays. This Monday I remedied that.

When I first entered, I found Rachel Harnett, museum curator, working next door in the library. She was busily filing cards for Bethel Heinrich, the librarian.

Rachel explained to me that "This time of year you sometimes don't see anyone all week. I just come in here (to the museum) and sit. So, right now I'm spending time over at the library filing. At least I'm useful there."

Rachel Harnett led me into each room in the museum turning on lights as we went.

As I viewed the valuable antiques, pictures and items which came from the great flood of 1903, not to mention the displays representing life in Morrow County as it was through the decades using true clothing and furniture of the times, I realized how much of the community is represented through gifts from numerous local families.

Any questions in your mind about things of the past? Drop in and see your local museum.

'A Time for Friends' theme of '81 4-H Week

"A Time For Friends" is the theme of 1981 4-H Summer Week at Oregon State University, June 15 - 20, according to John Nordheim, Morrow County Extension agent.

The theme reflects the fact that 4-H members gather from throughout the state on the Corvallis campus to make new friends and to renew friendships made in previous years, Nordheim explains.

Actually, 4-H Summer Week is really two programs in one, explains Al Spider, OSU Extension 4-H youth specialist. One program is for 4-H members in grades eight and nine, while a separate schedule is planned for high school sophomores, juniors and seniors.

Local Bookworms review Anne Lindbergh book

By JUSTINE WEATHERFORD

Last year Anne Morrow Lindbergh's thirteenth book was published. Ruby Becket presented a review of this collection of selected excerpts from Lindbergh's letters and diaries for the Bookworms on March 24 in the home of Lorena Jones.

Mrs. Lindbergh's new book is the fifth and last of her published personal diaries and letters extending from 1922 to 1944 and spanning the years after WWI and leading to and during WWII.

"I started this volume in order to leave a record as I saw it of the period my husband and I lived through in the prewar years. I wanted to show the unwritten side of his 'War-time Journals,' to say the things he could never say. By looking at the inner side of a tapestry, one can often uncover patterns and colors that reveal a complexity and meaning invisible on the surface I find, in the end, I have revealed, not an annotated record of those years, but simply and intensely personal story of two individuals: a complex man and his struggle to follow what his background, his character and integrity demanded, and a complex woman of quite a different background, who must reconcile her divided loyalties in a time of stress. It is not so much history or a factual wartime record as it is simply a personal story. It is I realize, more personal, more open, and more vulnerable, and, because of this, ultimately more honest than any of the preceding four volumes."

Her excellent 18-page introduction to the book states are expected for the annual event which features a wide variety of classes, many geared to introducing young people to possible careers, leisure time activities and special programs.

A new feature this year will be a special leadership workshop for ninth grade students. The 40 young people in the class will plan and conduct a special evening program late in the week.

Morrow County 4-H members interested in attending should complete the application form they received in the mail and return it to the county Extension office by April 20. Those who did not receive application forms may obtain them at the Extension office, Heppner.

"This introduction, written today, has the benefit of hindsight and almost forty years of reflection, study and reading. I have tried to be accurate and objective, a necessary and crucial effort. Fact and figures have blurred in the mists of propaganda from both sides. Who were the non-interventionists - or isolationists, as they were called by their opponents? It is a rare individual who remembers anyone but Charles Lindbergh. The widespread impression remains that only a small minority of reactionaries and bigots opposed the United States entry into the war."

After the death of Charles in 1974, Anne's life took a new direction. Five children and numerous grandchildren have given continuity to her close-knit family life, but beyond this, her energies were absorbed in helping prepare her husband's papers for posthumous publication. Just recently has she concentrated again on writing her own thoughts.

"War Within and Without" includes 44 illustrations principally showing the Lindberghs and their children, their many homes, their activities and their family pets. Anne Morrow Lindbergh skillfully combines elements of her husband's biography, her autobiography and much contemporary history in this work.

CowBelles meeting postponed

The CowBelles spring meeting originally scheduled for April 7, has been postponed. CowBelles will be notified of the new date and plans when they are completed.

Christian Women Family Night slated April 9

The Heppner Christian Business and Professional Women's Club reminds the community of their Family Night, April 9, at 6:30 p.m. at the Heppner High School cafeteria. All adults and young people 10 years old and older are invited.

The dinner will be $3.75 for ham, turkey, and salad. It is suggested reservations be made early because of limited seating. The deadline for reservations is Monday, April 6. Call Faye Green at 989-8194. For free baby sitting service call Joyce Hughes, 989-8419.

Music will be provided by Jim Ackley and the Heppner High School drama class will act out a scene from the play "Cheaper By The Dozen." Fred Crowell, director of Northwest Volleyball Camp and Northwest Basketball Camp, will be the guest speaker for the evening.

Norenes attend veterinary conference

Dr. Jim and Cork Norene attended the Washington State University College of Veterinary Medicine spring conference March 26 - 28.

The Norenes toured the new veterinary facilities at WSU as well as attending scheduled conferences, exhibits and seminars.

Get head start on lone's 'City Beautiful'

Now is the time to get a head start on your yard clean-up, if you haven't already done so. The grass is ready to mow. An early mowing is much simpler than when it gets so high that it becomes a real task. First pick up the litter (for paper use sharp ended stick which the kids would enjoy using).

Grass clippings have several uses: make a compost pile in a secluded part of your property; feed it to animals, particularly rabbits; or bag it for the garbage collector. In any event dispose of them immediately and not on city property.

With the Lone Clean-Up Week scheduled for April 3 - 11, Mayor Linda LaRue makes the following reminders of the rules and regulations concerning garbage. Only covered garbage cans, 30 gallon in size or smaller, may be used. The city requests that you line your cans with plastic bags or newspaper to aid in keeping your cans clean and free of odor. The city will not pick up garbage that is not bagged unless special arrangements are made with G.E. Tucker, city garbage collector, in advance of pick up days. Citizens are encouraged to bag grass clipping and not allow them to accumulate. Burning of garbage is prohibited.

"All citizens are urged to take part in the "City Beautiful" campaign by cleaning their property and any surrounding city property. A helping hand given to your elderly neighbor might be greatly appreciated. Let's have 100 percent participation."

AAUW offers scholarship

South Morrow County AAUW members are again offering a $200 scholarship to a qualifying Morrow County woman. This is the third year the award has been offered and the number of applicants has increased each year. This scholarship is intended to serve women of the general community rather than those graduating from high school.

Requirements for an applicant are that she be a Morrow County woman already involved in some course of study. (This study may be at a college, professional or trade school.)

Sharon McCarl, last year's winner, is finishing her third year of teacher's training at Oregon College of Education. She will be doing practice teaching in the fall term of 1981. Vicki Edmundson, the first year recipient, is nearing completion of a pharmacy course at Oregon State University.

Applications may be obtained by writing to: AAUW Scholarship Committee, P.O. Box 428, Heppner, OR 97836.

You may also contact any member of the Scholarship Committee: Ann Spicer, 676-5033, Mary Ann Cerullo, 676-9635, Cathy Barker, 422-7530, or Marion Abrams, 676-9789.

Russian painter lone Topic Club subject

Nicholai Fechion, Russian portrait painter, was the subject for discussion presented by Shirley McNary at the lone Topic Club meeting on March 25. The meeting was held at the United Church social rooms with Loree Hubbard and Lorraine Ladd as hostesses.

Fechion was born in Kazan, Russia, but spent at least half of his life as a citizen of the United States. As a young man in Russia he studied under Illyan Repin at the Imperial Academy of Arts at St. Petersburg.

Following the struggles of World War I and the Russian revolution he came to the United States in 1923 as a protégé of W.S. Stimmel. He spent some years at Taos, New Mexico, where he became a part of the art colony and painted many Indian portraits. He also lived for a time in Mexico and Bali before returning to Los Angeles where he resided till his death in 1955.

He is also included in the Cowboy Hall of Fame which shows his great versatility.

During the business meeting plans were announced for a library benefit to be held April 17 at the Legion Hall from 10 till 3. There will be baked goods, pie and coffee and "bits and pieces" for sale. Frances

Discussion planned on proposed victim advocate program

The Heppner-lone Branch of AAUW welcomes all interested individuals to attend a meeting Wednesday, April 8, to investigate the potential for a Victim Advocate Program in Morrow County.

Such a program would be funded after that of the Clackamas County Rape Victim Advocate Program coordinated through the Clackamas County District Attorney's Office by Roi Haakanson. Ms. Haakanson was a guest on the Phil Donahue Show in January and may be in Heppner again in May to speak to interested people about setting up a local program.

Since reported rapes are few in South Morrow county, a local program would be concerned with all victims of physical and mental abuse. The April 8 meeting will determine if there is enough public interest to develop such a program and how such victims can best be helped - through "safe homes," awareness programs for children, compilation of services already available for victims, or other means.

It is hoped that enough interest will be shown to get a program into the initial stages. The meeting will be held at the home of Mary McCoy, 60 Canyon Road, Heppner, at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, April 8. For more information call Cathy Barker, 422-7530.

AAUW members are requested to meet at 7:00 for a very short business meeting.

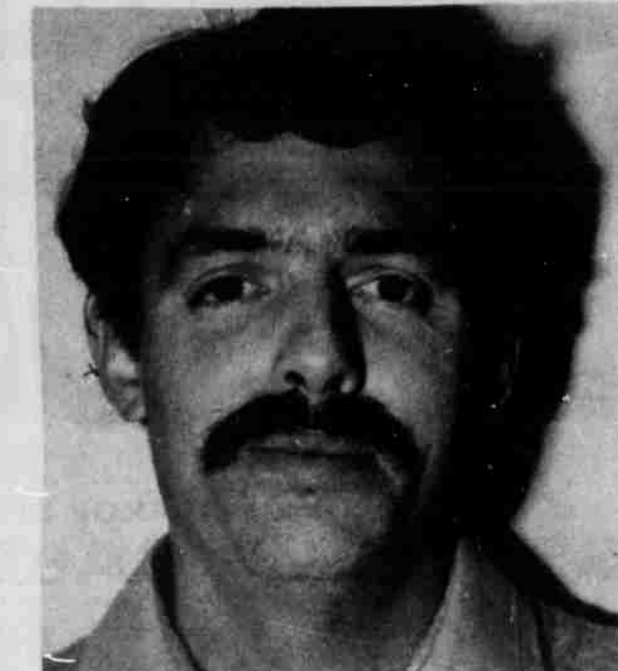

Natural Family Planning Seminar registration

deadline
April 6

An April 6 deadline has been set for registration for the Natural Family Planning Seminar scheduled for April 11.

For reservations call Chris Adelman, 676-5196, or Jeri McElligott, 422-7257.
