

Irrigon Stokes Landing open

By FRANCES ROSE WILSON

The Stokes Landing Restaurant opened about two weeks ago in Irrigon, where the former Pivot Point Cafe had been located. It is now operated by Bill and Janet Cooley and Doug and Nancy Howell.

The name Stokes Landing has a colorful history. In the early days of the century it was the name of the port on the Columbia River. At one time a ferry boat traveled from the landing to Coolidge on the Washington shore. Other boats on the river could dock close to shore because of the deep water at this location.

The present Stokes Landing is a pleasant place for refreshments with a nautical theme. They specialize in hamburgers, a variety of ice cream and sandwiches, hot chili and salads.
