

'Tour' of Jerusalem featured in local Good Friday service

A "guided tour of Jerusalem, AD 30" will enable worshippers to "see Jesus" suffering through the eyes of the day in a community Good Friday service planned for this Friday, April 17, at All Saints Episcopal Church in Heppner. Those attending the 7:30 p.m. "tour" will "see" through a tour guide, Gethsemane, the high priests' palace, the Roman court and Skull Hill.

Labo plans progressing

By BIRDINE TULLIS
Morrow Extension Service

Liz Curtis, coordinator for the forthcoming Labo exchange in Morrow County, reports an excellent response from families wishing to host a young student from Japan. Ten youths, 12 through 17 years are scheduled to spend about a month in Morrow County in mid-summer.

Liz has planned an orientation program for host families in mid-May, to help them get acquainted with the culture of their soon-to-be-guests, as well as receive information and pictures of their assigned student and his/her family.

The Labo program has brought friendships between Morrow County and Japan, which continue over the years. Many former Japanese Labo students have returned to visit their host families here, and most continue their friendship by mail. One Labo student returned to live for an extended period with the Paustian family in Heppner and will return again to attend the wedding of her "host sister" this spring.

The Curtis family has a continuing interest in the program; son Steve traveled to Japan to spend a summer under the exchange, living with the Japanese student who had previously visited the Curtis' home.

The Roger Palmer family, too, has strong ties to the exchange program. Shirley served as coordinator in the past and daughter, Cathy, visited Japan. The Palmers have previously hosted students, and will again enjoy the experience of sharing their home and hearts with a traveler this summer. Eight other families will experience the fun and adventure of an international visitor for the first time this year.

The Labo program originated as an educational tool for Japanese students to learn English. Under the program, the youths meet and study with a tutor, often working with records and participating in drama to develop language skills. The highlight of the Labo experience is having the opportunity to travel to America where they perfect their English. The Labo exchange is highly regarded in Japan, with some children entered in the program soon after birth to ensure them of the opportunity to participate.

PATTERN FITTING AND ALTERATION CLASSES ATTRACTED AUDIENCE

Extension helps on altering commercial patterns, as well as pattern selection for body characteristics, attracted interested women in Morrow, Umatilla, and Union counties recently. Attendance at the three sessions offered totalled approximately 75 persons. A relatively new concept in pattern alterations was shown by instructors, Cheri Jo Carter, Union Extension agent, and Birdine Tullis, Morrow County.

Altering commercial patterns to fit is one of the most challenging parts of successful sewing at home, and also one of the more important. Commercial patterns are drafted to a standard figure, with few women fitting the patterns sizing exactly. Pattern alteration help has been an often requested topic from local homemakers.

Gene Rietmann will provide music for the service. The Reverend John Maas of Hope and Valby Lutheran Churches will serve as coordinator.

The service will be conducted in a "you are there format," said the Reverend Maas.

The Good Friday service is sponsored by the Southern Morrow County Ministerial Association.

Mild winter portends good angling when season opens April 25

A mild winter with less than normal snow build-up in the mountains, and steadily warming weather may mean better than average access to fishing waters and better angling conditions than usual when the general trout season opens on Saturday, April 25.

For these same reasons, access to campgrounds on opening weekend should be better than average.

Although the bulk of Oregon's trout waters open on April 25, there are some that don't. Coastal rivers, most streams in northeast Oregon and a few lakes stay closed until May 23. There are also a few waters that have opening dates different than these.

Anglers should pick up a copy of the 1981 angling regulations booklet available free wherever hunting and angling licenses are sold and check out rules and regulations for specific waters.

Most angling regulations remain unchanged from last year. A reduction in the daily stream trout bag limit from 10 fish to five last year remains in effect this season. A few waters have more restrictive limits. Most lakes and reservoirs still retain the 10 fish daily bag limit.

Although many waters will be stocked with pan-sized trout before the opener and in the weeks following, others will not be stocked until later in the year after water conditions have improved. Some waters are not stocked at all, but are managed for wild fish.

The following is a summary of prospects for the opening weekend compiled from the reports of 22 field biologists whose districts cover the fishing waters of the state. These reports generally summarize the Department's early season plans for stocking legal-sized trout.

An attempt has been made here to accurately reflect water, road and campground conditions, but it should be recognized that weather will have a major influence on fishing prospects in the days immediately prior to the opening.

NORTHEAST

Many northeast Oregon streams do not open until May 24. Check the angling regulations for details.

Exceptions which open April 25 include Willow Creek, Rhea Creek, Butter Creek and McKay Creek above McKay Reservoir.

Ponds which are open year around but which will be planted with catchable sized trout prior to April 25 include Cutsforth, Tatone, McNary and Hat Rock ponds. Access to all of these should be okay by the general season opener on the 25th.

In the John Day basin, access is open to the campgrounds at Bull Prairie Reservoir and the lake is ice free. Magone Lake is also ice free and Olive could possibly be free of ice by opening weekend.

Strawberry Lakes are iced over and unlikely to be open by the 25th. Access is open to Olive Lake.

Canyon Meadows Reservoir is accessible and ice free and should be fair for opening weekend.

Waters for which stocking is planned include Row Creek Reservoir, Wineland Lake, Carpenter, Dollarhide and Long Creek ponds. These

Cardinal Club plans Goodies on the Go

The Cardinal Club of the Ione Schools is planning a traveling "bake sale" this Friday, April 17, but the special little "something" about this sale that sets it apart from other bake sales is the location. The location is your own doorstep. Goodies on the go will be available to you from the back of the cars, right on your own street, at your own driveway.

The Goody Wagon will be by anytime after 10 a.m. Parents are asked to have their food donations at the school cafeteria by 10 a.m. or send them to school in the morning with your child.

Little League tryouts Sat.

Final Little League baseball tryouts have been scheduled for this Saturday, April 18, at 1 p.m. at the Little League field at the fairgrounds.

Anyone eight to 12 years old, who hasn't signed up yet may do so at this session. For more information, call Ted Toll, 676-5520.

Ione Library problems resolved

The furnace problems plaguing the Ione public library have been resolved, according to Lorraine Ladd, librarian.

The library is now back on its regular schedule, being open on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3 to 5 p.m.

IUCC auction in the works

Lucile Rietmann, Ruth McCabe and Judy Rea are hard working members of the Ione IUCC who have organized and accomplished the feat of getting the quilt together for the annual auction. Despite great odds, they have the quilt placed and framed in the basement of the church, where hard working church members may sit for a while and work on the quilt.

Also on the auction committee is Katherine Lindstrom and her co-chairperson Mrs. Tullis, working on the Country Store section of the annual auction. They remind everyone that the Country Store donations should be prepared now.

Irrigon women pian bake sale

The women of the Irrigon Assembly of God will have an Easter bake sale Friday, April 17, starting at 10 a.m. at the Thriftway Store in Umatilla.

Children's mental health problems topic of workshop

Mental health problems of children is the topic of a two-day workshop sponsored by the school of nursing at the University of Oregon Health Sciences Center to be held April 24-25 at Eastern Oregon

Slate College in LaGrande. Due to the increasing prevalence of children who experience difficulty coping with developmental, situational and family stress, the workshop is designed to aid in the screening, assessment and nursing diagnosis of mental health problems of the school age child.

The program, intended for nurses in schools, pediatric settings, community health and mental health practice, is also open to others in the community who have frequent contact with children and are interested in primary prevention.

The fee for the course is $25. All persons must pre-register by April 17 as enrollment is limited. Continuing education credit will be given for the workshop.

Those seeking additional information should contact Pam Hellings, director of continuing education at the UOHS School of Nursing in Portland at 225-7791.
