Gorge abloom for 'Hello Summer' tour to locks

By BIRDINE TULLIS, Morrow Extension Service

The beautiful green Columbia Gorge, abloom with scotch broom, poppies, and other wild flowers set the scene for the Homemaker's "Hello Summer" tour to Cascade Locks and The Dalles last week. A full bus load of men and women from Morrow County traveled down the Gorge to catch a quick look at the fruit orchards.

The "Hello Summer" tour was sponsored for an opportunity to ride the river boat and see the Locks and Bonneville Dam. A special added attraction was the fruit orchard tour on the way home, with tour guides Harold Kerr, D.O. Nelson and Virgil Choate, all of The Dalles.

Those participating in the tour were: Freida Majeske, Neva and Lee Palmer, Claudia Hughes, Frieda Slocum, Ruth McCabe, Dorris Graves, Monica Swanson, Shirley and Roger Palmer, Helen Graham, Barbara and Weldon Witherrite, Helen Currin, Marian Brosnan, Mildred Wright, Leila and Ken Palmer, Mary and Hal Wright, Donnie Beerman, Lyla Wilcox, Jean Nelson, Jean Ann Turner, Mary Goheen, Winifred Cox, Ida Coleman, Nadine and Paul Bailey Evelyn Kent, Juanita Ryan, Mildred Rhea, Roberta Campbell, Mrs. Curt Perkins, Martha Baker, Marie White, Pete McMurtry, and Mildred Padberg.

OTHER THINGS OF INTEREST DOWN THE COLUMBIA GORGE

Have you noticed the three large wind generators as you drive down the Gorge? The world's largest wind energy generators—three MOD-2 turbines, near Goldendale, Wash. have made that site the "Wind Energy" capital of the world, according to OSU Energy-gram.

Each of the 350 foot horizontal axis rotors, (longer than a football field) is mounted atop a 200-foot tower with self-contained elevators. The 80-ton rotors were built by Boeing at a cost of $4.5 million each. The generators cut in with 14-mph winds and provide maximum output of 2.5 megawatts in winds between 27 and 45 mph with rotors turning at a controlled 17.5 rpm and blade tip speeds of 187 mph. Electricity from the units is fed into the Northwest power grid via a BPA substation.

We all know that the winds blow down the Gorge... and we all know that new or additional energy sources are needed. Perhaps in the future there will be many more of these giant windmills churning out megawatts to help provide this need. In the meantime, it is fun to look across at the strange "windmills" as you drive down the Columbia River. My family has speculated about them... and I'll bet yours has, too!

Some of you may have heard rumors that I am taking an unexpected leave from work... and unfortunately, this time off will extend until after the first of July. This doesn't mean that the usual 4-H home economics trainings have been forsaken, only that they will be moved ahead until a later date in July.

In the meantime, 4-H leaders or members who have questions or need assistance are asked to call the Extension office where Lenna or Claudia will be available to answer questions.

In July there will be a foods training, a style revue training, and a 4-H Home Economics superintendents meeting. We hope that 4-H members will be busy with camp and Summer Week throughout July, and ready for home ec projects when Birdine returns to work.
