

John Murray finalist in Oregon teen program

John Murray

John Murray of Heppner was selected as a finalist for 1981 at the Mr. Oregon Teen Program held Friday and Saturday, June 19 & 20, at the Holiday Inn in Eugene.

Sponsored by the Heppner-Morrow County Chamber of Commerce, Murray was one of fifteen young men selected from throughout the state to participate in the first annual Mr. Oregon Teen Program.

Bill Halliday of Oregon City was selected 1981 Mr. Oregon Teen. Other finalists include Steve Toppila, Seaside; Dave Ferguson, Vale; Benjie Maxwell, Dayton; and Scott Hedges, Astoria.

Selection of Mr. Oregon Teen was made on the basis of 20 percent for scholastic, 20 percent athletic, 20 percent community service and achievement, 20 percent personality and 20 percent teen image. Interviews were conducted with the candidates and written profiles were submitted for examination by the judges.

The Oregon Teen Program has been established to recognize outstanding young men throughout the state of Oregon and to foster and promote worthwhile ideals among today's teens. Besides the competitive aspect of the program the participants also have the opportunity to make new friendships and take part in a variety of social and recreational activities.

During the honors-recognition and fellowship event participants raised over $1,500 in the fight against multiple sclerosis in a "Strike for MS" bowling event. Multiple sclerosis is a disease of the nervous system which affects nearly 500,000 in this country, a large portion of whom are young adults. The money raised will go towards MS research, patient services and public awareness.

In addition to the title and winner's trophy, Murray is invited to represent Heppner as an Oregon Representative at the Mr. U.S.A. Teen Program to be held in Minneapolis, August 8-16. Approximately 100 outstanding young men from throughout the country will be vying for the title of Mr. U.S.A. Teen and national awards including a $5000, $1500, and $1000 scholarships to the winner, first alternate, second and third alternates in athletics, scholastics and community service and achievement.

City to visit country at Lone Church of Christ

The country folks are getting a visit from the city folks. On July 11 and 12, about 20 members of the Community Church of Cedar Hills will spend a weekend learning about rural life from the members of the Lone United Church of Christ.

Several months ago the lone church sent a packet of resources entitled "Rural America: Life and Issues" to the church in Cedar Hills, a suburb of Portland.

"We hope to create better communication between urban people and rural people," said the Rev. Cathy Barker, pastor in lone. "We are eager to explode myths and make friends."

The people who received the packet were enthusiastic, too. The pastor, the Rev. Ken Eaton, phoned immediately to set up a visit. At the same time he extended an invitation to the church members to visit Cedar Hills.

The suburbanites will arrive Saturday morning, to be greeted by several lone people who will usher them, in ones and twos, to farms in the area. Many want to don work clothes and help with the harvest, or other farm work. Others may choose to spend time with local business men and women, or listen to senior citizens tell of pioneer days.

The visitors will be included as "one of the family" in area homes. Sunday morning all will attend the 10 worship service, and join in a pot luck dinner and discussion of the weekend's experience.

The population of Cedar Hills is about 7500, and the Community Church (United Church of Christ) lists 373 members. Lone's population is 420, with membership of 125 in the United Church of Christ.

The Lone United Church of Christ has been a place to "see as well as hear" the Scriptures in recent weeks. The Rev. Cathy Barker is using sign language in the worship services.

While taking the BMCC extension course in sign language, taught by Carol Faith, the Rev. Barker began to explore the possibilities of using the expressive language to enhance worship. As the congregation sang the Benediction at the close of the service, she sang and signed. One Sunday she taught the congregation a song, and the signs for several key words in it.

Vacation Church School students were delighted to learn the signs to "Jesus Loves Me" and key words in the Johnny Appleseed Song. Many of the children knew some signs from school.

On July 5, the Rev. Barker signed the Words of Institution in the service of Communion. Next Sunday, July 12, she will sign the Gospel lesson, the well-known Parable of the Sower, from the Gospel according to Mark.

"Familiar texts come alive in a new way with the symbolism and expressiveness of signs," says Rev. Barker. "I want to give others the opportunity to see as well as hear God's word."

Donkeys and Hondas?

There's something touching about the following story, and I think it's got to do with more than the fact that donkeys are kind of cute.

Normally a donkey could take a goat or leave it. Raise the two together, though, as Dr. George Haenlein is doing, and you've got friends for life. Such friends, in fact, that a goat-reared donkey will watch over a herd of goats like a shepherd. (In the words of a famous rock 'n' roll song: "If you can't be with the one you love, love the one you're with.")

Dr. Haenlein insists that donkeys make even better sheep and goat dogs than dogs, because they can be plenty fierce when pushed, and they don't need a human around to feed them. They just nibble grass right along with their barnyard buddies.

Okay Dr. Haenlein, I'll buy that, but have you heard of the alternative in herding those little critters?

Instead of riding horseback while herding sheep, says a local sheep rancher, some folks have bought themselves Hondas.

Traibikes get around easily on the dirt and grass, and can move faster than horses.

"There's just one thing people should watch out for," cautions the sheep rancher, "and that's your dogs..."

Those poor old dogs won't know any better and will run and run to try to keep up with the motorbikes until they drop from exhaustion and frustration.

Somehow I don't consider donkeys as being in the same category as Hondas.

Scalloped satin piping adorned the skirt which flowed into a cathedral train. A Venice lace bandeau caught her fingertip veil with rolled edges. She carried a bouquet of ivory bridal roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Maid of honor for her sister was Linda Fleck, LaGrande, who wore a blue gown of polyester crepe, with gathered drape bodice, and chiffon cape. She carried a clutch bouquet of apricot-colored roses with looped ribbons. Bridesmaids Kristi Haguewood of Hermiston and Kimee Haguewood of Coulee City, Wash., sisters of the groom, wore dresses identical to the maid of honor, only with bouquets tied in ivory ribbon.

Best man was Joe Kenny, Heppner. Ushers were Keven Haguewood, brother of the groom, lone; Jeff Cutsforth, Lexington; and Mike Sweek, Hermiston.

Organ music for the ceremony was provided by Christopher Lundell, The Dalles. Sister Wanda Marie Jordan sang "Evergreen", and "Ave Maria" before the ceremony.

In charge of the outdoor reception at St. Mary's was St. Peter's Altar Society.

Mrs. James Patrick of White Salmon, aunt and godmother of the bride, and the bride's sister, Mrs. John May of Gresham, cut cake. Pouring coffee was Mrs. Richard Carey of Vancouver. Punch was served by the bride's sister, Mrs. Joe Kirkland of Clatskanie, and Sharon Dunlop, Hermiston. Attending the guest book was another sister, Mrs. James McMahan. Passing wheat bags was Christy McMahan and assisting at the reception were Julie and Lisa Kirkland, all nieces of the bride. In charge of the gift table was Mrs. Joe Kenny.

A rehearsal dinner at Spooky's Pizza Village was hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

For travel, the bride changed to an orchid and white ensemble, and wore a corsage of carnations and roses. After a week in Hawaii, the couple are at home in Heppner.

The bride is a 1979 graduate of EOCS and a teacher at Heppner. The bridegroom is a 1979 graduate of EOCS and is presently ranching with his father.
