

Aides play important role at Heppner Elementary

Volunteer aides at Heppner Elementary School will again be an important part of the school's instructional program. Aides participate in such activities as visiting with students about books read for recreation, listening to individuals or small groups read, practicing math facts and sight words, duplicating exercises, and bulletin board preparation.

Anyone interested in finding out more about the program or in signing up for the coming school year can call Heppner Elementary School, 676-9129, or Linda Shaw, 676-5283.

Heppner Garden Club plans potluck dinner

Members of the Heppner Garden Club have planned a potluck dinner before their first meeting of the new club year. They will be very pleased to have interested persons join them the evening of Sept. 14, next Monday, at the home of Jane and Bill Rawlins at 260 S. Gilmore at 6:30 p.m. After dinner the group will discuss plans for the year's monthly meetings, programs and special activities. The Heppner Garden Club is part of the Oregon State Federation of Garden Clubs. It is open to couples or singles who are interested in gardening. Regular meetings are held on the second Monday evening of each month.

Ruth Locust slates first fall meeting

Ruth Locust Chapter 32, Order of the Eastern Star, will hold their first fall meeting, Tuesday, September 14 at 8 p.m.

Everyone is asked to bring a dessert as a dessert luncheon will follow the meeting.

Senior Citizen News

The established Senior Citizen noon dinners held each Wednesday in the 4-H Annex at the county fairground, of course, gave up that location during the last two weeks in August when preparations for the fair and the fair itself required that space.

On August 19, a good group of seniors enjoyed a hamburger-barbecue picnic dinner in the fairground park near the 4-H Snack Shack. Along with hamburgers and relishes, beans and several salads, a wonderful assortment of desserts was brought by volunteers to round out that meal.

On Wednesday, August 26, fourteen Heppner seniors journeyed to Echo to join the senior group there at their regular Wednesday dinner in their site in the historic Echo Masonic Hall.

After dining some of the Heppner folks visited places of interest in Echo, such as the Echo Historical Museum, the Catholic Church and the transported, large, old Butler Creek home of the O.F. Thompson Family.

Those who visited the unusual museum were thrilled by its setting in the lovely old Echo Bank Building with its elegant marble and lovely dark wood. There they viewed a picture of Echo Koontz whose father founded the town in 1881 after two former settlements had ceased there along the Umatilla River. Several of the visitors brought home printed material telling about the Echo Community: "First it was an Indian Agency erected in 1851, where many early settlers camped, but which was burned by Indians in 1855. Then Oregon Volunteer soldiers erected Fort Henrietta there, naming it for the popular wife of Major Haller. When Indian hostilities ceased in the area the soldiers destroyed the fort.

"James H. Koontz came up from Umatilla Landing in 1881 and laid out a new town, naming it after his small daughter. Soon numerous business houses lined the main streets and a fine school and both a Catholic and a Protestant church were erected.

"Settlers appreciated the fine climate, good rainfall, lush meadows for livestock, and very soon fine homes as well, as sturdy cabins dotted the hills and meadows. The railroad, in 1883 served as a lifeline for shipping grain, wool and livestock. However, all too soon, good roads drew ranchers and farmers to shop in larger towns and Echo was left to become a town of homes.

"In 1980 Joseph G. Andrews, a rancher of the Meadows purchased the lovely Echo Bank Building and donated it to become the Echo Historical Museum."

During September, South Morrow senior dinners will be held each Wednesday noon in the 4-H Annex. Seniors will soon select a place of interest that they may visit on their next bus tour. Several places have been suggested, more will be considered, and the group will choose one and will plan the tour.

The Morrow County Health Clinic will conduct a flu clinic Sept. 9 at 1 p.m. at the Heppner mealsite.

Senior passes available at HHS

Senior Citizen passes are now available at the Heppner High School office. The pass entitles seniors to free admittance to all sports contests, school plays and musical
