

Ione School students to Jump Rope for Heart

Students of the Ione Schools will be competing for prizes in the Jump Rope For Heart special event, March 13, 1982 from 1 - 4 p.m. The event, sponsored by Oregon Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance, will benefit the American Heart Association, Oregon Affiliate, said an association spokesperson.

This marks the third year of involvement for the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance.

Jump Rope for Heart is a special event conducted by school physical education teachers and students who organize the rope-jumping competition. The six-student teams jump rope for a maximum of three hours. Pledges collected from sponsors of their rope-jumping efforts contribute to Oregon Affiliate programs in research, education and community service.

Coordinators of the Jump Rope For Heart note that the event is a public awareness vehicle for promoting cardiovascular fitness and public school physical education programs. The emphasis in physical education is a public awareness vehicle for promoting, cardiovascular fitness and public school physical education programs. The emphasis in physical education is now on lifetime sports and physical activities which are more concerned with encouraging general participation rather than competition.

They are following a new physical education concept, which places more emphasis on an individual commitment toward health, while still maintaining the traditional elements of fun, team sports, and formalized activities. The importance of both healthy bodies and sharp minds is being taught. This is all a part of a concern that young people learn early in life about rope jumping, which is an excellent exercise for helping to improve the cardiovascular system and general physical fitness. Minimum equipment is required. All that is needed is a good pair of shoes, a rope and a small space to jump. And it's good for persons of all ages, at any time of day, indoors or outdoors, he said.
