

AROUND ABOUT

By Justine Weatherford

Although it was actually almost one month late, spring has finally come to South Morrow Co., where we hope it will sparkle until summer is scheduled to arrive on June 21. Before summer's advent many special events will brighten life here. Those involved with schools as pupils or teachers or staff, know that their schedules are well filled. Last week's column suggested you mark calendars for the coming production of "Fiddler on the Roof" at Heppner High. I thought it would be given three nights, May 13-14-15, but have just talked with its director, Larry Cerullo, and now know that you must not plan on attending on Saturday, May 15, because it is set for just Thursday and Friday because of schedule pressures.

Mr. Cerullo told me that the high school dramatists will be presenting a special evening on June 8, which I surely hope to attend. This will be a dinner theater at the high school, that will be sponsored by the Heppner Lion's Club as a benefit for the solar heating project at the town swimming pool. More details about that evening will be released later.

One of Morrow County's biggest annual occasions is the Memorial Weekend Pioneer Picnic. This year the family of Pioneer Henry Padberg is in charge. Descendants of Mr. Padberg, who came here from northern Germany about 100 years ago, met last night at the home of the Eldon Padbergs in Lexington to work on plans for this year's picnic. A story will be published about this thriving family and give details of their plans soon. This year's picnic will be on Sunday, May 30, at the county fairgrounds.

Hopefully everyone survived T-Day on April 15. I was pretty well exhausted when I finally stuffed my four reports into four different envelopes and mailed them to the IRS and the Oregon Department of Revenue. It would be nice to have income taxes out of the way now, but many of us have to watch that we pay three more installments to the U.S. and Oregon for quarterly payments on our estimated income for 1982. Seems like we just never catch up with taxes.

The 16th of April my Loatian housemate, Eleanor Gonty and I made a one-day trip to Portland. The weather cooperated beautifully, the great snow-capped mountains Hood and Adams were brilliant, the Columbia River was clear and calm and the many waterfalls along the south-side cliffs were fascinating.

Our various errands in Portland took Bouapeth and me all over town. We got a great view of almost the entire city from the University of Oregon Health Sciences Center high on the west hills. The big excitement of the day came during our stop at the Mekong Market on east 39th just off Broadway where many Asian refugees shop. Eleanor and I were standing by as Bouapeth gathered rice noodles and other Asian foods that the Thongdy family enjoys. Suddenly delighted squealing shook the entire establishment.

Bouapeth and a young woman she knew in a refugee camp in Thailand had most unexpectedly found one another. They were both so full of joy because they never expected to see one another again. This woman, her husband and their son live in Portland. She is especially fond of Mrs. Thongdy and asked that Bouapeth's mother telephone her. So when we got home Friday night this message was delivered, and on Saturday morning Smjit called and had a long visit with this friend who relayed some news concerning Asian friends and family.

Many folks enjoyed an unusual musical treat at the United Methodist Church in Heppner last Saturday and Sunday. The large, proficient Bell Choir from the Hillsboro United Methodist Church were weekend guests and presented great concerts here. They have a fine set of bells which cover a full five octaves. These unusual musicians are well trained and professionally directed. The Rev. and Mrs. Sheridan each performed briefly with the bellringers. Linda took a place in the group on Saturday evening, and Mike showed some of his skill on Sunday morning.

I finally got some replacement parts for my aging lawnmower and soon I expect to be getting my small homestead in better shape. The beautiful yard which surrounds the home of Johnny, Linda, and J.J. Shaw is inspirational, but I know I can never hope to achieve the neat, attractive, award-winning type yard they have.

Homemakers day slated

By BIRDINE TULLIS
Morrow Co. Extension Service Homemakers of Morrow County will gather Thurs., April 29 at Columbia View Fellowship Church in Irrigon to commemorate 50 years of OSU Extension home economics programs in Oregon. Special recognition will be given to women who have been involved for the full fifty years, in addition to a full day of special events including a style show of garments from the last fifty years, a demonstration of makeup for women of all ages and a noon potluck salad luncheon. Two events that are traditional to the spring homemakers event are the announcements of Extension Woman of the Year, and Study Group of the Year. The annual event is sponsored by the Homemakers Advisory Council. They invite everyone to join them on April 29. There is no charge and everyone is welcome.

Applications for Lions scholarship available

Applications are now available for the Lions Vocational Education Scholarship through Michele Portmann, Heppner High School counselor, said a Lions member.

Deadline for entering applications is Friday, April 30. The scholarship winner will be announced at HHA commencement exercises. May 22, he said.

Three Heppner students chosen to attend U of O summer program

Ron Sporseen

Three sixth grade students from Heppner Elementary School have been accepted for participation in a summer Enrichment Program for Talented and Gifted Students at the University of Oregon. The students chosen are Mark Fishburn, son of Earl and Peggy Fishburn; Ron Sporseen, son of John and Rita Sporseen; and Kathleen Brazzell, daughter of Albert and Jean Brazzell.

Kathleen Brazzell

The students will be on campus for two weeks, selecting courses from a variety of topics ranging from science to the performing arts, said a spokesperson from Heppner Elementary.

Mark Fishburn

To be considered for the session, the students had to demonstrate or show potential for high performance in one or more of the following areas: general intellect, academic achievement, creativity, leadership and performing or visual arts, said the spokesperson.

Wranglers hold playday

The first Morrow County Wrangler Playday was held Sunday, April 18. "Although it was cold and very windy, everyone had a lot of fun," said a spokesperson.

F.F.A. members place 3rd in contest

Heppner Future Farmers of America (F.F.A.) Chapter members competed and placed third in a Blue Mountain District Shop Skills Contest on April 15 at Pendleton High School. Pendleton High School placed first, followed by Riverside High with second. About 200 students from Heppner, Hermiston, Pendleton, Milton-Freewater, Athena, Umapine, and boardman participated in the contest, said Roger Records, Heppner instructor.

The following Heppner F.F.A. members placed in the contest:

Mike Currin - third in a master mechanic contest, Cliff Dougherty - second in advanced oxy-acet. welding, Marty Britt - second in advanced Arc Welding, Jay Keithley - second in advanced wood working, Craig Miles - second in advanced electricity, Mark Way - second in beginning oxy-acet. welding, Jennifer Hughes - third in beginning arc welding, and Steve Currin placed second in beginning wood working and third in tool reconditioning. The Heppner surveying team of Terry Gray, Cliff Dougherty and Marty Britt, placed fourth.

Also competing were Mike Bronson in oxy-acet. cutting, and Pat Schwarz in the tap and die contest.

The top three winners in each contest were presented tools as prizes. Records said.

Pettyjohn Oil omitted

An advertisement in last week's Gazette-Times naming local members of the Oregon Wheat Growers League accidentally omitted the name of Pettyjohn Oil Co. in Ione.

Pettyjohn Oil Co. is an associate member of the Oregon Wheat Growers League.

The Gazette-Times regrets the error.
