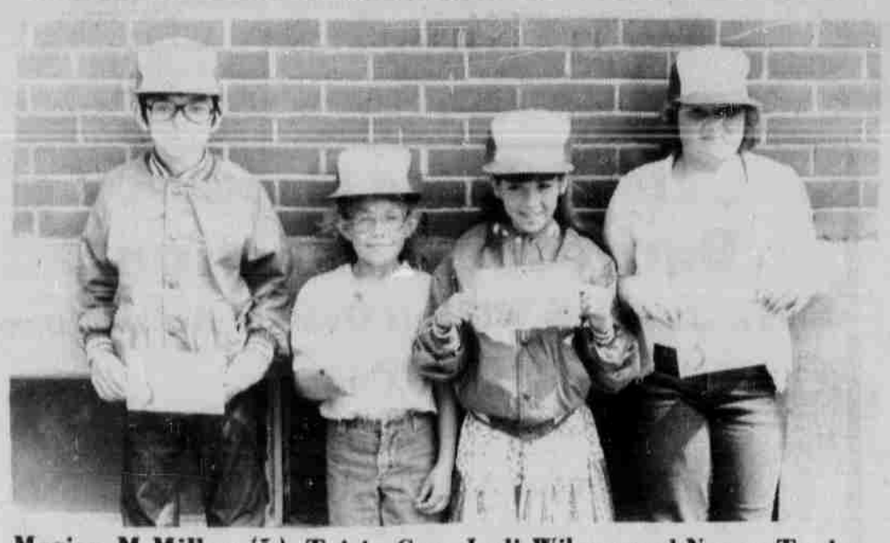
Heppner Elementary Easter Seal Book-A-Thon winners announced



Marion McMillan (L), Tricia Coe, Jodi Wilson and Nancy Taylor

Heppner Elementary School students have just completed participation in an Easter Seal Book-A-Thon. The Book-A-Thon is held every year to raise money for the Easter Seal Society For Crippled Children and Adults of Oregon.

Children signed up sponsors and then read as many books as possible in a three-week period. The children were split into two levels (first grade through fourth grade and fifth grade through eighth grade).

The following children received a certificate of participation: Grades one - four: Michelle Cameron, Tricia Coe, Amy Greenup, Cori Hutchinson, and Jodi Wilson.

Grades five - eight: Kathy Bonner, Deanna Carey, Missy Gates, Marion McMillan, Robin Mattison, Nancy Taylor, and Nance Wright.

In addition to the certificate, the following people have received a cap from the Easter Seal Society for collecting $30 or more from their sponsors: Nancy Taylor, Tricia Coe, Marion McMillian, who was the top money-earner for his grade level, and Jodi Wilson, who was top money-earner for her grade level. The top money-earners also received jackets from the Easter Seal Society.

For participating in the Book-A-Thon this year, the school library was given an autographed copy of Beverly Cleary's new book "Ramona Quimby, Age 8." Miss Cleary is this year's Oregon chairperson of the Book-A-Thon.

HHS coaches resign

John Sporseen

Dale Holland

Two familiar faces on the Heppner High School sports scene won't be back next year, as the head football coach for the Mustangs, and the head basketball and baseball coach have announced they are retiring.

John Sporseen, who has been at the helm of the Mustang football program for the past six years, says he will not return, and Dale Holland, who has been leading the blue and gold basketball and baseball teams, said he is also hanging up his whistle. Both say they will remain on as teachers, however.

Holland and Sporseen both said their main reasons for giving up coaching are to spend more time with their families.

"I should be spending more time with the kids," Sporseen told the Gazette Monday. "I just felt it was time to give it up."

Sporseen came to Heppner in 1976. He coached his teams over six years to a 49-11 won-lost record overall, and district titles the last four years.

Holland has been coaching varsity baseball at Heppner for 17 years. He compiled a 168-151 record for a .527 winning percentage.

Overall, Holland has taken teams to the state playoffs four times in baseball, winning the AA state title in 1963 while coaching at Crow High School.

While at Crow, where he coached four years, Holland compiled a 69-20 record in baseball and a 47-33 record in basketball.

He also coached at Huntington High School for three years, where he compiled a 42-15 record in baseball and a 61-21 record in basketball.

Holland coached varsity basketball for the Mustangs for three years, compiling a 34-27 record, and taking the team to the state tourney in 1982.

His overall career record is 279-186 in baseball and 142-81 in basketball.

Both Holland and Sporseen turned in letters of resignation to the school board last week, no replacements for the men have as yet been named.

Your Mental Health Leaving Home

(Editors note: The following article is the fourth, and last of a series, to be published in the Gazette-Times consecutively, throughout the month of May.)

By Terrel Templeman, PhD.

This month our high school seniors are graduating. It is easy for us over 30 to think back on our senior years in high school as a time of carefree happiness. Studies of stressful life events have concluded however, that for young people themselves, graduation is the most stressful event of their lives. As one senior put it, "The party's over. Now I have to actually do something with my life."

Decisions facing young people leaving home are plentiful and few of them are easy. Just the decision to leave home or not may be quite stressful for both young people and their parents.

It is perhaps not surprising that many mental health problems first c op up in late adolescence, when the young person is wrestling with adulthood and the issue of leaving home. It can also be a time of much family strife. Parents are faced with their own decisions, such as whether to continue providing financial support, how much more responsibility to allow the youngster to take on himself or herself and how to reorganize the family after the young person leaves.

Family therapists have noted that for most families, the time of greatest change and the time of the greatest stress on the family, is when someone is either entering or leaving the family. Just as a couple must also accomodate the leaving of the first child when he or she reaches adulthood.

Most families, at first, do adjust to children leaving home and most youngsters do grow up without developing major mental health problems. This is probably because most families are flexible enough to adjust to change. Nevertheless even for healthy families the adjustments may be painful. Here then are some ideas that may help in making those adjustments.

First, for parents, decide clearly in your own minds what your expectations for your son or daughter are. Second, it is helpful for both parents to agree on their expectations before going to the youngster with them. The father encouraging the child to move out and a mother inviting him to stay home offers a very confusing picture to the son. Third, discuss your expectations together with your son or daughter. Find out what his or her expectations are. Decisions that all have participated in are generally the easiest for all to follow.

For the young person faced with graduation and the decision to leave home, remember foremost that none of the decisions you make have to be perfect ones. There is for some people, a tendency to think that their decisions after high school are the most critical ones in life. If you believe this strongly enough, you will set yourself up for much anxiety, especially if you want to change your mind later. Remember with each decision you make, the better you will become at learning from your mistakes and making better decisions. What seems right for you now may not be right for you in a few months or a few years. Keeping your options open, and discussing them with your parents will give you the flexibility you need to adjust to new situations.

Heppner Swimming Pool to open June 13

The Heppner Swimming Pool will begin this year's swimming season with a free swim on Sunday, June 13, from 1 to 5 p.m.

Margaret Kincaid will be pool manager for the coming season.

Pool admission will remain the same as last year, said a spokesperson from Heppner City Hall. Family season tickets will be $50; students, $20; and adults, $25. Tickets are available at city hall. Daily admission prices will be 75 cents from children through age 10; $1 for students 11 through 14; and $1.50 for ages 15 and up.

No one will be allowed to participate on the swim team before obtaining a season ticket, said the spokesperson.

Fees for swimming lessons will be $5 per person, per session. The lessons will begin after the pool's July 4 closure, said the spokesperson. Specific dates and hours for the lessons will be announced at a later date.
