A Cub Scout Day Camp was held last week at the Morrow County Fairgrounds, Heppner, with 31 boys attending, reported Bobbie Angell, den mother.

The camp began on Tuesday and boys took part in a wide variety of projects and events, including archery, a treasure hunt, a wooden turtle race, a pinewood derby race, painting ceramic totem poles and participated in various physical activities. The boys also built their own storage benches.

The camp closed with a potluck dinner and campfire awards ceremony Friday night. Parents and siblings attended the event, and many Scouts received awards.

Den mothers conducting the camp were Bobbie Angell, Martha Munkers, Sam Devin and LaRae Kindie.

Other women assisting with the camp were Linda Clough, Sandra Holtz, Susan Johnston and Joy Krein.

Paula Plocharsky and Kristin Green watched the young children that attended a tag-a-long camp.

The day camp program and awards ceremony were organized by the Blue Mountain Council whose representatives provided training for the local volunteers. The representatives were also present throughout the camp to provide assistance wherever needed.

Heppner swim team keeping busy

Members of the Heppner Swim Team have been competing in a number of meets this summer and many members of the team have placed well.

Boardman man makes hole in one at W. C.C.C.

Scott Wilson, 30 of Boardman, was thrilled Friday evening when he holed out his tee shot on hole number three at Willow Creek Country Club.

Wilson's skeptical father, Darrell, and uncle, Ken Wilson, looked for the ball in the adjoining rough while his optimistic mother, Bev, discovered the ball nestled in the cup.

Wilson was using a seven iron when he made his first hole in one.

The largest light-bulb was a 12 inch, 75 thousand watt one created to celebrate the 75th anniversary of the bulb's invention.

4-H Snack Shack needs volunteers for fair

By BIRDINE TULLIS
Program Assistant
Morrow Co. Extension Service

The 4-H Snack Shack will again be the main food service operating at county fair, offering burgers, hot dogs, fries and all the other usual foods for hungry fair go'ers. Nadine Bailey has volunteered to chair the money-making project, but many volunteers are needed to assist with food preparation and sale throughout the long days of county fair. Her job can be easier if volunteers will let her or the office know when they are willing to help. Parents of 4-H members, friends of 4-H, leaders, or older members are needed to staff the project. The Snack Shack is the annual money making event of the 4-H Council. Funds derived provide scholarships, assist with camp expenses and improvements, partial payment of cost for local members to attend Summer Week in Corvallis, and other expenses of the 4-H program.

Those interested in volunteering to work in the Snack Shack are asked to call 676-9642. Calling will tell us you think the 4-H program and the opportunities offered all youth are important and that you would like to help provide the extra opportunities possible through 4-H.

I. U. C. C. begins produce exchange

As local gardens yield their harvests, the lone United Church of Christ congregation is helping people to share their bounty, announced the Rev. Cathy Barker, I.U.C.C. pastor. Each Sunday, from now through the growing season, a table will be set up at the church's coffee hour for the fresh produce people bring from their gardens. Anyone may take the vegetables and fruits, leaving a contribution in the cup, Barker said. Once the congregation has shared, Barker or the summer intern, Ginny Curinga, will see that the money and any remaining produce go to help hungry people in the area. "We have so much, while others are really struggling to feed their families. It's a joy to be able to share our garden produce and our contributions. Nothing should go to waste," concluded the pastor.

Pre-fair training session scheduled

By BIRDINE TULLIS
PROGRAM ASSISTANT
Morrow Co. Extension Service

To prepare home ec and other 4-H members for participation at county fair, a pre-fair training session is scheduled for Tuesday, July 27, 1:30 p.m. at the 4-H annex at the fairgrounds in Heppner.

Younger 4-H'ers often are apprehensive as they think about county fair. It is a whole new experience for them. The pre-fair event is offered to give them insights and experiences that will help them enjoy the fair.

The training session will include information for foods, clothing, and other members. Jan Peterson, student intern with Oregon Wheat Growers League, will demonstrate bread products. Each 4-H'er will make a loaf of bread. Jan will include information on various contests, and other tips. Junior contests such as cookie or measuring, will be shown and explained by Diann and Linda Morter. Presentation tips will be given by Kimberly Hughes, a creative arts member. Fashion Revue tips and practice will be under the guidance of guest instructors Karen Wheelhouse and Julie Carter, older 4-H members from Umatilla County. Exhibits, entries, and other information about county fair will be given by Birdine Tullis.

Karen Wheelhouse attended National 4-H Congress at Chicago, Ill. last year as Oregon's delegate in fashion revue; Jan Peterson was Oregon's foods-nutrition delegate to congress four years ago. Diann Morter is nominee for that honor this year. The four experienced 4-H'ers and the assistants have many tips and ideas to share. All 4-H'ers, their leaders, mothers and-or fathers, are encouraged to attend.
